What a Landslide!

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BRITISH CONSERVATIVES have won by a landslide that surprises and frightens them.

One man is not surprised, namely Lord Beaverbrook, who was born in Canada and learned to look at British affairs calmly from a distance. Ten days ago he telegraphed this writer from London:

"The Nationalists will have 400 seats in the House."

RAMSAY MACDONALD is re-elected by a diminished majority. It is therefore not necessary to "kick him upstairs into the House of Lords," making him a peer to let him continue as head of the government.

LADY ASTOR, of America, and Lloyd George's daughter, two intelligent young women, are re-elected.

One of the political cartoons most frequently used in the campaign showed British workmen out of jobs, on a dock, where ships were landing boxes labeled "Germany," "Japan," "United States," etc.

The idea was to make workmen understand that free trade means free competition in labor.

With this election, Britain becomes a protectionist country, an important step and a great change.

WALL STREET woke up to find Britain "gone protectionist," and brokers didn't like it. They said:

"That will close British markets to United States exports, and business won't be so good."

London's stock exchange was much pleased and prices went up, from the opening. But a stock exchange, which means largely the "floor trader," often looks no farther ahead than 3 o'clock the same afternoon.

Wall street and the rest of the world may learn that better times for England must mean better times for every country.

THE BRITISH Socialist-Labor party that threw overboard Ramsay MacDonald, who had led their party to power, disowning him merely because he put patriotism ahead of party, got exactly what it deserved.

For the time being it ceases to exist as an element of any importance and lies flat on its back, defeated, with MacDonald at the head of the united government.

MR. M'CAMPBELL, of Holmdel, N. J., candidate for the state Legislature, has an idea that should elect him and many others adopting his idea.

He would exempt from taxation up to $5,000 valuation any home in which a man lives and exempt farms up to $10,000.

He suggests that a man raising a family should be put on a basis of "tax equality" with a vast amount of untaxed invisible wealth and millions of untaxed visible property held by government institutions, schools, churches, preachers, fraternal orders, etc.

THAT'S A SOUND suggestion. If the Lord should see a man raising his family in a little house, struggling to pay his tax bill, and the Episcopalian Cathedral of St. John the Divine, costing several millions, free of taxes, who doubts that He would say:

"Turn that around; free the little man of taxes. Christians able to build a $5,000,000 church for Me are able to pay taxes on it."

WRITE THIS on your tablet. THE MONEY SYSTEM OF THE WORLD WILL BE MODIFIED.

Ninety per cent of the world's people and nations are off the gold standard, two countries have gold, the United States and France. The others must use something for money, and will use silver.

The average human being knows what silver is, or thinks he does. When a Chinese got an English bank note, even in days when it was supposed to represent gold, he hurried to the bank and changed it for silver taels. Then he knew he had money.

SENATOR BORAH, of Idaho, wants silver made into money at the rate of 14 to 1. That won't happen.

But the amount of silver produced during the last 10 years has averaged less than 13 times the amount of gold produced, weight for weight, and gold is selling at almost SEVENTY TIMES the price of silver, weight for weight.

That will not last. All the gold in the world amounts to about 11 per cent of one year's income of the United States in good times. The world cannot do business on that amount of money, hokus-pokus or juggle it as you will.

UTILIZE SILVER on a proper basis, and you will stop hoarding. If President Hoover and Secretary Mellon will realize that and act energetically, and promptly, they will start business going, encourage trade all over the world and especially among 1000 million human beings that have no gold.

And incidentally THEY WILL MEET WISELY A VERY BIG DANGER FOR THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN 1932.

IN NEW YORK State, forest fires are attributed to "sportsmen," shooting and setting fire to dry leaves. The state politely urges them to be cautious.

It should tell them to take their guns and matches home and stop shooting.

Girl Bound in Holdup, Fiancee of Bandit, Held

THREE ADMIT ROBBERY OF CLEANING PLANT

Failure to Identify Pair Leads to Holding Victim; Sobs Facing Sweetheart

In a cell in the North Side Police Station, Anna Marshall, 21, of 2425 California avenue, ponders the holdup of the Sismour Dry Cleaning establishment next door to her home, where she was one of three tied with ropes when $480 was stolen last Tuesday.

She is the fiancee of Frank Puglin, 30, of 99 South Tenth street, alleged leader of the robber gang, who with two companions, John Fox, 27, Mexican, of 1220 Mimosa street, and George Schultz, 38, of 610 Danbury street, is held for the robbery. The three men, police said, have confessed.

Miss Marshall today told police she and Puglin were to have been married as soon as he obtained steady work. They had already bought the wedding ring, she said.

ARREST CAUSED

It was Miss Marshall's failure to identify Puglin's two alleged accomplices that led to her arrest today on order of Magistrate Ray E. Schneider.

Called to identify the suspects Miss Marshall is said to have collapsed. When she confronted Puglin she sobbed brokenly and threw her arms around Puglin. She said:

"I love you, Frank. Please tell them you didn't do it."

Puglin stared at her, but did not answer.

Miss Marshall sobbed and said:

Capt. Anthony Block interrupted:

"He has confessed and we found $185 of the stolen money in his room."

Miss Marshall stared at Puglin. She asked:

"How could you? I still love you, Frank, but how could you do it?"

VISITED AFTER HOLDUP

Miss Marshall said Puglin returned to visit her an hour after the holdup.

Police said Miss Marshall repeated details of the robbery in which she and two men were tied up, but failed to identify Fox and Schultz.

Puglin, police said, was waiting in an auto in front of the store, while the robbery was perpetrated. Other store employes, however, identified Fox and Schultz.

Edward Brown, of 3867 Brighton road, police say, identified Schultz and Fox as the men he had seen coming from the cleaning shop. Police say Schultz and Fox told them they had each received $80 as their share of the loot.

MONEY RECOVERED

Police later went to the home of Puglin's parents on the South Side, finding $185, which they say Puglin had told them he hid there. A. W. Sismour, assistant manager of the cleaning company said that Puglin had been a frequent visitor at the establishment, calling upon a girl.

Traffic Policeman Walter Bracken arrested Fox, and, after questioning, Fox implicated the other men. While Puglin was in his cell in the North Side Station police say they frustrated an alleged suicide attempt. He was found, according to Turnkey Michael Callen, fastening his tie to the bars above his head.

Police believe they may connect the men with the attack made upon Fred Saturley, 37, a collector for a gas company, in Cottage place, North Side, which also took place Tuesday morning. Two men tried to bind Saturley, but he beat them off. The same kind of rope was used in both cases, police allege.

EDISON ESTATE LEFT TO SONS

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Thomas A. Edison left the bulk of his estate to the two sons of his second marriage, leaving it largely to them to decide how much the older children could have and how soon they could get it.

He provided for his wife before he died and so left her nothing in the will filed today.

The value of the estate was not mentioned in the will.

Not only were Charles Edison and Theodore Edison, sons of the inventor, and the widow named executors, but they were also made residuary legatees with full power to distribute the residue among themselves and their half brothers and sisters whenever they deem wise and in such proportion as they think best.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Richard Tauber, German tenor, believes jazz is one of the highest forms of musical expression. He says he never has heard of Rudy Vallee.

Hawks Forced Down By Leaking Motor

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank Hawks, noted speed flier, landed at Lambert-St. Louis Field last night on a flight from New York. Airport attendants said the motor of Hawks' plane was leaking oil, causing him to change his plan to fly on to Kansas City.

Pilsudski Surprises Capital by Return

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Marshal Josef Pilsudski, Poland's dictator, surprised the capital today by returning home unannounced after abandoning a trip which took him as far as Rumania where he suffered an attack of influenza.

M'GOVERN ASKS PROBE ON BALLOTS

Commissioner Acts to Learn Who Ordered Printing of Mansfield-Lawrence Slips

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern's fear that duplicate ballots for Tuesday's election may be printed and "stuffed" into ballot boxes in an effort to defeat his re-election, may cause him to ask District Attorney Andrew T. Park to start an investigation of the printing of 240,000 sample ballots.?

McGovern announced he would seek the District Attorney's aid after a special meeting of the County Commissioners failed to clarify the situation.

The meeting had been called for the ostensible purpose of discovering who ordered the sample ballots printed. They were prepared in the office of the Pittsburgh Printing Company, which holds the contract for the official ballot sheets and were printed on "official" pink paper.

NAMES MARKED

A black border around and a cross behind the names W. D. Mansfield and David L. Lawrence showed voters how they could cut McGovern, the Republican running mate of Mansfield for the majority county commissionerships, and vote an otherwise "straight" Republican ticket.

Louis Golder, president of the Pittsburgh Printing Company, refused to divulge the names of the persons who ordered the ballots. He admitted he had received no order for the samples from the County Bureau of Elections.

Failing to obtain this information from Golder, McGovern asked that the meeting be adjourned while he conferred with the District Attorney.

M'GOVERN'S PROTEST

In asking Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong to call a meeting to consider protective measures, McGovern declared:

"In view of the situation developed by Mr. Golder's admissions, it is possible and feasible for 'extra' or 'duplicate' sets of ballots to be printed and used for frauds in elections, such as switching of ballot boxes, and stuffing ballot boxes. It is possible, too, in view of Mr. Golder's action, to have official ballots forged in other printing places.

"In view of the existing situation created by Mr. Golder's unauthorized act, it is my opinion that the Board of Commissioners, in the special meeting requested, should take appropriate action to safeguard the official ballot by directing that the ballots for each district be uniformly perforated or stamped with a new stamp to prevent substitutions."

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock did not attend this morning's meeting.

Pittsburgh District Likely To Get First Colonies; Work Crisis Here Studied

HARRISBURG, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The first unemployment relief tent colonies in Pennsylvania probably will be established in the southwestern section of the state, it was learned here today.

Secretary of Highways Samuel S. Lewis said that representatives of the Highway, Labor and Industry, Welfare, Forests and Waters, and Health departments have been sent into the southwestern section of the state to inquire into local conditions for the purpose of selecting the communities where the unemployment situation is most acute. Possible camp sites will be selected.

Lewis said that after he receives the report from these representatives he will confer with the Governer, who will announce the establishment and opening date of the various camps.

Yesterday Gov. Pinchot announced his plan to afford unemployment relief to able-bodied men by providing tent colonies during the winter months, where some of the 900,000 unemployed in Pennsylvania may find work at the going rate of wages less the cost of their maintenance. The labor thus derived will be used in highway construction work, and the camps will be financed from the state's motor license fund.

USE NEW SERUM TO AID GIRL

Physicians here today are watching closely the case of Miss Mary Bahl, of 238 Charles street, Knoxville, who yesterday was given a Cortin serum treatment for Addison's disease. Dr. George Thorn came here from Buffalo to inject the serum prepared by Dr. Frederick A. Hartman, which has proved beneficial in other cases.

Miss Bahl has been ill for 11 months and has been under the care of Dr. James P. Kerr and Dr. James A. Martin, of the St. Joseph's Hospital staff, where Miss Bahl was for two months. Dr. Thorn several weeks ago treated Miss Josephine Spagnola, of Ambridge, now reported convalescing.

Soviet Chief Calls British Inscrutable

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—News dispatches from Riga last night credited Joseph Stalin, Soviet chief, with the statement that the British mentality is inscrutable.

The Riga dispatches also said that Stalin remarked reports from Communist agitators in England were unreliable.

Congressman Named Aerial Policeman

ST. PAUL, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—When Melvin J. Accepts Pay Slash; Was 'Roman' at Champagne Tea

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark says he is not going to resign.

He returned from a six weeks' tour of Europe today and vigorously denied the report that he would quit his office at once to accept another post in Mayor Charles H. Kline's cabinet.

Arriving home this morning with his wife, Clark said:

"I'm still the director and I will continue to be the director. "I have no intention of resigning."

Clark said he would accept a cut in pay—the same as given every policeman under him in the effort to economize on city expenditures. He said:

"I'll have one day each week without pay. I'll work that day, however, but I think it's only fair that my pay should be cut along with the rest."

Clark went to Paris in September as an American delegate to the International Police Conference. He was elected one of the organization's vice-presidents.

CHAMPAGNE AT TEA

While in the French capital, the 200 conference delegates were invited to three teas, Clark said. The strange part of it, he added, is that no tea was served, only

Lewis Takes Slam At Writers of 90's

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Sinclair Lewis thinks most of the writers of the 90's were "as synthetic as bathtub gin."

The man who wrote "Main Street," "Babbitt" and won the Nobel prize for literature, before 3,000 persons in the Brooklyn Academy of Music last night, praised the "realist school" of Hemingway, Undset and Huxley.

Hoover as Citizen Gives Needy $5,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—President Herbert Hoover, acting as a resident of the San Francisco metropolitan area, has donated $5,000 to San Francisco's community chest, Newton W. Stern, chairman of the chest campaign, was informed of the donation today by Lawrence Richey, one of Mr. Hoover's secretaries.

QUICK PAYING SOUGHT IN DEPOSITS

Release of $5,000,000 in Yule Savings May Be Swelled By Closed Institutions

New sources of Christmas money for Pittsburgh seen today were:

1. A plan to hasten release of $5,000,000 in closed banks, already inaugurated in Philadelphia.

2. Maturing Christmas savings funds, containing a total more than $5,000,000.

Prospects of freeing, before Christmas or shortly after the first of the year, some of the $20,000,000 in deposits tied up in Pittsburgh's closed banks, were brighter today than they have been at any time since the closing of the first one, late in September.

PLAN SUGGESTED

Application to Pittsburgh of a liquidating plan whose tentative inauguration in Philadelphia was announced Tuesday by State Banking Secretary William D. Gordon was foreseen. Final acceptance of the plan for Philadelphia and other districts awaits approval by Attorney General William A. Schnader.

The Gordon plan aims to make immediate payment to depositors of cash on hand and to free money, directly, through speedy liquidation of assets of the closed institutions and, indirectly, through extension of credit by business firms to whom dividends are assigned.

Meanwhile, a survey of 36 representative banks in Pittsburgh shows 74,007 depositors will receive $542,863.16 in Christmas Savings on December 1. Last year these same banks paid out $670,975.76 to 72,809 depositors. From these figures, it was estimated that a total of more than $5,000,000 will be paid out in the district.

The Gordon plan will be applied to those Pittsburgh institutions, it is understood, whose condition, at the time of closing, justified the step.

TO CASH ASSETS

Actual cash will be obtained, according to the plan, through the operation of a realization corporation to realize as quickly as possible upon the assets of the closed institutions. Dr. Gordon will head the Philadelphia corporation's board of 10 directors; other members will include prominent representatives of banks, industries and commercial houses.

Money realized from sale of banks' assets will be paid to Dr. Gordon, who, through a private banker will pay it to depositors of the closed institutions. The corporations will, in effect, act as selling agaent for the closed banks.

Extension of commercial credit in the institutions will be somewhat simpler.

Depositors who wish to purchase goods with their deposits in closed banks as collateral will present their passbooks with balances

U. S. Hunter Killed By Lion in Africa

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Dar-Es-Salaam, Tanganyika, East Africa, today said that an American tourist named Heron was clawed to death by a lion which he was in the act of shooting while two American companions prepared to photograph the feat.

The first names of the men were not learned. The last names of Heron's two companions were Peret and Home, the dispatch said.

Football Injuries Kill Child of 8

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—A Coroner's inquest was to be held today into the death of Kenneth Dreischner, 8, who succumbed to injuries received during a children's football game. The boy's skull was fractured when he fell after being tackled. His schoolmates, who were playing with him, have been summoned to the inquest.

Missing Monessen Girl Happy Bride of 'Kidnaper'

Sought since Saturday midnight as a kidnaping victim, Mary Lastoka, 20, of 217 Seneca street, Monessen, today was a happy bride of the reported abductor, Joseph Valenson, 21, automobile salesman of Library.

They are spending their honeymoon in Pittsburgh. They were married in Wellsburg on Monday. Both denied the report that the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna Lastoka, was slugged when Valenson drove up to her home Saturday night. The bride explained the situation:

"Joseph had driven me from my place of employment in Donora. Mother had forbidden his going with me and Joe was going to tell her he would not see me any more. She was furious at seeing Joe and grabbed for him. To prevent a scene, I told Joe to drive on. We did not know she was on the running board, but stopped when we saw her fall. When mother got up we drove on rather than create a scene. It was then we decided to elope."

John Slifko, Jr., employer of Valenson, today said he had given his consent to the use of the automobile.

Plane Crash Reveals Troth Of Alicia Patterson

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The crash of Miss Alicia Patterson's airplane near South Bend, Ind., yesterday while it was being piloted by Joseph M. Brooks, of New York, led today to the revelation that Miss Patterson and Brooks are engaged, and are to be married this winter.

Miss Patterson is touring Europe in company with Mrs. Alton A. Brody, daughter of Irvin S. Cobb. Brooks has been using her plane while she is away. He was bound for New York from Chicago yesterday when he was forced down by motor failure near Notre Dame University. A gust of wind tossed the plane against a tree as he landed, and the craft caught fire. Brooks was hurt slightly.

The circumstance of Brooks' piloting Miss Patterson's plane led to inquiries which were followed early today by announcement in the New York Daily News—published by Joseph Medill Patterson, the young woman's father—of the engagement.

INDEPENDENTS HEAR ATTACK ON MACHINE

Commissioner Nominee Says Next Battle Must Be for Mayor, Council Control

Declaring he was "publicly grateful" to former Senator C. M. Barr for becoming a candidate for County Commissioner as a running mate of C. C. McGovern on the Independent ticket, P. J. McArdle, Republican nominee for City Council, addressed a congressional dinner last night in McGovern's Highland avenue home. McArdle and Barr addressed the gathering.

"The Independents after winning in the County Commissioner contest and three-fourths of the City Council nominations in the primary must stick together and fight hard or the 'gang' will sneak in the back door November 3 after having been kicked out the front door last September."

NEW 'HOOKUP' SCORED

Barr, responding on behalf of himself and McGovern, the latter suffering from a severe cold, charged that the Republican city and county machines were trying to get control of the County Commissioners' office by electing a Republican and a Democratic nominee and, as he said was the very situation, he and McGovern have been fighting for 30 years.

Barr said:

"The fight in Allegheny County will not be over until it is made impossible for two such vicious and corrupt machines as have run riot for years to build up an organization necessary for a resumption of their power. When we emerge from this engagement the next thing will be to elect a Mayor and five members of Council in 1933."

DEMOCRATS ASSAILED

Calling himself "a disgusted Democrat," John M. Henry declared that loyalty to the genuine Democratic party demanded repudiation of the local bi-partisan machine which used the Democratic name as a trading post for political jobs. He said:

"I appeal to the Independents who adopted the label of the Republicans in the primary and accomplished half a victory, to complete it by electing McGovern and Barr. The Democratic party in Allegheny County under the present leadership is a sham and a pretense which threatens to obviate the September victory at the polls by means of specious argument, chicanery and an abandonment of the spirit of Democratic principles."

Other speakers included the Rev. A. R. Robinson, pastor of Sixth United Presbyterian Church; Attorneys W. Clyde Grubbs and Edward O. Spotts, Jr. Dr. F. C. Ferrante, Henry O'Neil, A. D. Brandon and Ralph H. Smith, toastmaster.

SEVENTH WARD RALLY

A Seventh Ward rally for McGovern and Barr, arranged by Mrs. Frank J. Boyle, was held last night in Liberty School, Ellsworth avenue and Ivy street. J. Garfield Houston presided. Speakers included Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Frank, Attorneys Spotts, Henry and Churchill B. Mehard and E. G. Boyle.

McGovern and Barr have been indorsed by Fort Pitt Division No. 672, Order of Railway Conductors, according to a letter submitted to campaign headquarters by Chairman J. R. Herring.

Alpern's Withdrawal To Aid Lawrence

The withdrawal of Louis Alpern from the County Commissioners' race as a candidate on the Liberty party ticket will benefit the candidacies of W. D. Mansfield, Republican, and David L. Lawrence, Democrat, according to some political observers. Alpern did not ask his friends to support any candidate.

Alpern issued a statement yesterday declaring he had reached the conclusion that he was not justified in expecting a large enough vote to win. He said:

"I cannot conscientiously remain in the fight, especially in view of the fact that Mr. McGovern, capitalizing his Republican nomination, is now attempting to set himself up as dictator through his efforts to force the election of his partner Barr as an 'Independent.'

"Mr. Mansfield, who led the Republican ticket by some 40,000 votes should not be the victim of Mr. McGovern's scheme to force him into the minority position on the new board of County Commissioners. This is what McGovern and Barr are seeking to do."

CLEARING HOUSE TO BACK POOL

Directors of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association are expected to approve steps being taken to make the notes of the National Credit Corporation legal security for state, county and city deposits at their meeting scheduled today. This follows federal approval of the notes as security for United States government deposits.

The notes to be issued by the National Credit Corporation will represent the subscriptions of banks to the $500,000,000 bank credit pool being organized at the suggestion of President Hoover.

Bankers declare that the use of the notes as security will release other negotiable investments and will materially improve the position of banks.

Clearing house officers have been in communication with the office of the State Attorney General to secure official ratification of the plan.

Depositors Pledge Aid to Defunct Bank

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Hundreds of depositors in the closed City Trust and Savings Bank at a mass meeting last night pledged 25 per cent of their deposits to take stock in a reorganization of the bank. The depositors also agreed to leave the remainder of their deposits in the bank if it is reopened, drawing out not more than two per cent a month.

Injured Boy Playing With Gun Kills Baby

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Fourteen-year-old Myrum Mudget, confined to his bed by injuries suffered in a fall, today accidently shot and killed his nine-month-old niece, Dorothy Mudget, with a revolver he had been given by his father when the latter died several months ago.

The boy, who was exonerated by police, was twirling the gun on his finger when it was discharged.

Painters Quit Jobs, Union Faces Suit

Court action loomed today in a dispute between employing painters of the Pittsburgh district and union painters over alleged withdrawal of men from a number of big jobs. The employers asked the union to explain its action under threat of a suit, it was said. E. M. Adams, secretary of the Painters' District Council, declared his organization has no statement to make at present.

Judges Assail Sentencing Of 'Suspicious Persons'

The practice of police magistrates imposing fines and sentences on suspicious person charges was questioned in an opinion handed down in Common Pleas Court yesterday by Judges Joseph Stadtfeld and William H. McNaugher.

They ruled the legality of the practice under city ordinances respecting summary convictions is doubtful. The question arose in a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus procured on behalf of Frank Clyburn, Negro, an employe of the Crucible Steel Company, arrested by police last Sunday and fined $25 with the alternative of 30 days in the workhouse, by Magistrate J. J. O'Connor on a suspicious person charge. The jurists ordered the discharge of Clyburn from the workhouse.

Assistant City Solicitor William M. Randolph, arguing that under the penal statutes and city charter act Council could enact an ordinance authorizing the practice, asked a formal decision. He said none had ever been made. The judges suggested he advise Council to enact a new ordinance in conformity with the law.

NEW YORK STATE has recently paid thousands of dollars to boys for raising pheasants, $1 for each pheasant. The birds are turned loose and for a short time each year. Those that like to kill things are permitted to shoot them.

A CIVILIZED government pays little boys to raise birds that adults may kill when birds are needed to protect farmers from insect pests that destroy crops.

If birds were properly protected, harmful insects would disappear. The shooters should confine their aim to stray cats, foxes, weasels and other enemies of birds.

PROF. EINSTEIN, a skyscraper among highbrows, patiently taking the universe apart and putting it together again, like a child with a jig-saw puzzle, abandons early theories.

Now, he has "a vector with five components, or determination elements, in a space of four dimensions, which is the Einsteinian space-time-continuum." If that isn't perfectly plain, write to the professor.

ANOTHER SUPER-HIGHBROW, Doctor De Sitter, from Holland, measuring the universe on his own account, finds that it is limited, but is expanding constantly, the total number of protons could be represented by a figure seven, with 78 zeros after it.

Prof. Einstein says the universe was originally "space-filled homogeneously, with a certain amount of matter, but with no motion." And Dr. De Sitter says it was "a finite original universe, having no matter, only motion." Take your choice.

Fortunately, we only argue about it, and no longer burn each other up for disagreeing.

M'DONALD, KING MAP BRITISH POLICIES

Prime Minister Confers Half Hour With Ruler On Destiny of Nation

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald conferred with King George for a half hour at Buckingham Palace today and a short time later met with his national coalition cabinet for the first time since yesterday's election swept them back into office.

The conference was the first of a series between the King and MacDonald, and the latter with his cabinet, to lay the groundwork for the rehabilitation program which is to be presented to parliament early next month.

MAJORITY OVER 500

Backed by an unprecedented majority of more than 500 of the 615 seats of the House of Commons as a result of the national election, the national government addressed itself to the task of executing the "doctor's mandate" it asked and received from the people.

The predominance of Conservatives led to the expectation that a demand for a full-blooded protection policy would be the first trouble encountered by MacDonald. He is pledged not to impose protection until it has been fully investigated and scientific legislation has been prepared.

Other measures which are expected to make up a principal part of the new government's program are stabilization of the pound, negotiations for a review of World War debts and correcting the British adverse trade balance.

ROYALTY ATTENDS SHOW

The royal family, rejoicing in relief from the tension of the campaign, went to a show last night.

King George, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and Prince George made up the family party. They saw Noel Coward's "Cavalcade."

The whole family sat in the same box, the theater's biggest, adorned with the royal crest. It was the first time so many of the family attended the same performance.

The Queen, in a rose colored dress and wearing her diamonds, sat first. Next was the King, with a gardenia in his buttonhole. Beside him was his daughter-in-law, also in a rose colored gown, then the Duke and lastly Prince George. The Prince of Wales was half-hidden behind his mother.

JURY RECESSES IN VOTE QUIZ

The October grand jury investigating election frauds recessed at noon today until tomorrow morning after reviewing evidence thus far obtained in issuance of tax receipts in wholesale lots for use of Second Ward voters.

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt and several aides will classify the evidence over night for presentation to the jury tomorrow. No presentment is likely before next week, it was indicated.

PEOPLES BANK SHARE LOOMS

Depositors of the closed Peoples State Bank of East Pittsburgh may receive a dividend of 50 to 60 per cent within a month, it was indicated yesterday. At present a committee headed by J. C. Evans, Pittsburgh broker, are working on a plan for reorganization of the bank which closed in February.

The committe has obtained permission for circulation of the program to determine the attitude of stockholders, although the plan has not yet been given the approval of the state Banking Department. The proposal of the committee calls for depositors to subscribe 50 per cent of their deposits in the closed bank for shares of stock in the new organization which would be named the Community Savings Bank and Trust Company.

Coolidges Leave Old Home in Rain

CLARK IS HOME, WON'T RESIGN

champagne. Of the 200 delegates, he revealed, only two refused wine. He was asked:

"Were you one of the two?"

He answered:

"My boy, there's an old saying: 'When in Rome do as the Romans do.' I did as the Parisians did."

From London, Clark brought back an innovation for his traffic patrolmen. It is to be put in operation as soon as Council can provide the funds, he said.

It consists simply of equipping each officer on traffic duty with long, white arm bands and white gloves. The arm bands and gloves, Clark said, make an officer easily visible in fogs and have greatly reduced the injuries to traffic men after dark in heavy London fogs. He believes the equipment will be particularly valuable in Pittsburgh due to the climatic conditions.

CITY AS LEADER

Pittsburgh, the Director declared, is recognized throughout the world as the leader in the use of radio for the apprehension of criminals. He was constantly questioned as to the radio methods used here.

Crime in Europe is on the increase, he found. In London, the proportion of crimes of violence has increased so rapidly that the police department, for the first time in its history, is considering furnishing its' "bobbies" with pistols.

His most interesting sidelight on the tour, Clark said, was a political meeting which he attended. Lord Beaverbrook was the speaker. Policemen were barred from the hall. Members of the audience were permitted to interrupt, heckle and question the speaker at will. Several times Beaverbrook made utterances unpopular with his listeners and they responded with showers of fruit, vegetables and eggs. The Director said:

"London would be a fine place for Rudy Valle. He had to use a band to get two grapefruit. Lord Beaverbrook, all alone, collected enough fruit and vegetables to start a market."

TRUNK SLAYER, YOUTH SILENT UNDER QUIZ

Self-Confessed 'Accomplice' Refuses to Talk on Plea Shouted by Mrs. Judd

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—Frozen silence was maintained by Winnie Ruth Judd today on the "confession" of Fred Williams, El Paso youth, that he was an accomplice in the murder of her two woman friends.

Mrs. Judd, the "Tigress," declared her attorneys had instructed her not to talk about the case as they prepared to battle in court against her extradition to Arizona. Arizona officials are opposing a writ of habeas corpus.

Williams was taken into the presence of Mrs. Judd and asked if he recognized her. He said:

"I won't talk if she won't."

As Williams was being led away by his guards, the woman shouted after him:

"Don't talk until you see my attorneys."

Williams, a chemist, told police he witnessed the battle in a Phoenix, Ariz., apartment, which culminated in the killing of Agnes Leroi and Hedwig Samuelson. He declared he shot Mrs. Leroi and then helped Mrs. Judd pack the bodies into two trunks and a suitcase.

Evidence in Phoenix Hints at Accomplice

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—New evidence intended to contradict the story of Winnie Ruth Judd and indicating that possibly she had an accomplice in the slaying of Miss Hedwig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Leroi here two weeks ago was being rounded up by Phoenix authorities today.

A street car motorman in Phoenix, Benjamin W. Jurgemeyer, said yesterday that Mrs. Judd was a passenger on his car the night of October 16, getting off the car near the Leroi-Samuelson apartment at 10:15 p. m., and again boarding the car at 11:35 p. m., returning to a point near her own home. Mrs. Judd had alleged she remained at the home of her two victims the night of the slayings.

Neighbors of the two slain women said that late the night of October 16 "a large black sedan" entered the driveway of the Leroi-Samuelson home.

Phoenix authorities were endeavoring to trace the ownership of this car and to learn whether it contained Mrs. Judd or some friend of the slain women, or perhaps an accomplice in the killings.

Meanwhile the extradition fight and future defense of Mrs. Judd rested with Paul Schenck, veteran Los Angeles attorney, retained last night by Dr. William C. Judd, husband of the slayer, to supplant other defense counsel. Schenck gave no intimation what defense would be made by Mrs. Judd. Her former counsel, Louis P. Russill, had indicated he might change her plea from one of self defense to insanity.

Man Who Hit King, And Got Paid, Dies

KINGSTON, Ontario, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—A man who once struck King Edward VII of England, accidentally, and got a sovereign for it, died here yesterday.

He was James P. Delph, a drummer boy of 13 with the Canadian Rifles when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, visited Canada. The prince happened to be standing nearby when some sailors pulled at the plumes of the drummer's hat. Delph struck at them with a drum stick and hit the prince.

Rescuers Discover No Trace of Miners

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 29.—After more than 100 hours of continuous effort rescue workers had learned nothing definite of the safety of six miners who were entombed last Saturday night in mines of the West End Coal Company at Mocanaqua.

Company officials said that crews are working from two directions, but that they had no idea how close the squads might be to the spot where the men are believed to have been trapped.

Woman of N. Y. Triangle Slaying in '72 Dies

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Josie Mansfield, who died alone, was buried in Paris today with none but an aged servant to mourn.

The beautiful, dashing Josie, over whose affections Edward S. Stokes shot and killed James Fisk, Jr., 59 years ago, remains a legendary figure in this city.

Josie was Jim Fisk's girl, for whom he had built a house on West Twenty-third street, only a few doors from his own home. He boasted that she set the styles rode in the finest carriage on for the women of New York Fifth avenue, and gave the most lavish parties.

Fisk was a man-about-town closely associated with the notorious Tweed ring, and had had his share with Jay Gould in the looting of the Erie Railroad. Stokes, a Philadelphian who had come to New York to speculate in oil, took Fisk into business and introduced his associate to Josie Mansfield.

Stokes, young and handsome, caused jealousy. Disputes between him and Fisk brought Josie's loyalty to Stokes. When the two men met, on the night of January 5, 1872, in the then famous Grand Central Hotel, Broadway and Bleecker street, both carried loaded revolvers. Stokes shot Fisk, who died a few hours later.

Stokes was condemned to death, but was granted a new trial and served four years in prison.

HOOVER RELIEF GROUP SCORES HOARDERS AND ALARMISTS

NORMAL BUYING URGED TO AID JOBLESS

Committee Also Proposes Distributing Employment By Spreading Out Work

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. (AP.) — Sharply criticising some classes of Americans for their fear of financial loss, the planning committee of President Hoover's unemployment relief organization has outlined a 10-point program to better the domestic situation.

The committee declares that, although it may be true that normal good business must await removal of adverse world conditions, "it is certain we delay recovery by passively accepting our relation to the international situation and in failing to make a concerted, determined effort to correct domestic conditions."

Headed by Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago, the committee presented the program to Chairman Gifford late yesterday.

BUYING URGED

The report urges resumption of normal buying by persons who have jobs and rebukes those uneasy individuals who hid away money which might be mixing freely in trade channels.

Its findings are commended to the country by Gifford as requiring "immediate and thoughtful consideration of all individuals and organizations to the end that so far as possible they may be promptly translated into action."

He cited the committee as an answer to the insistent demand for appointment of an economic council to determie what could be done to improve business.

Where husbands are making a living, the committee recommends that employment of wives be looked into. It also urges immediate action to give needy "white collar" workers part-time employment, at least.

EMPLOYMENT AID

As a further means of distributing employment by families, investigation of sons and daughters living at home, but not contributing to the budget, and teachers instructing in both day and night schools is proposed.

Also on the committee's program are proposals to spread available work as much as possible; speeding up of authorized public works; making district and community surveys in search for emergency employment opportunities, and a survey to determine the possibility of transferring surplus labor from cities to farms on a work-for-keep basis during the winter.

OHIO OPERATORS MEET MINERS

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Led by Gov. George White and John M. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; miners and union officials of Ohio met today at a conference called by the Governor in an attempt to put the coal industry back on its feet.

Refusing to allow a fractured collar bone to delay the conference, Gov. White, his arm in a sling, welcomed the miners and union officials into the executive mansion.

Tomorrow the Governor will be host to Ohio coal operators who refused to meet with miners in joint conference.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that appeared over Minnesota yesterday morning moved very slowly. It is now centered over Wisconsin, with diminished intensity. The lower Mississippi Valley now is now centered over the Middle Atlantic coast. These disturbances are producing much cloudiness this morning, and there is a large rainfall area. The rains were light over the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley states, but the eastern low produced generous amounts over the Appalachian mountains and eastward over the Middle Atlantic coast. Temperature changes were towards cooler over most of the country, but there were no freezing temperatures reported except over the Far Northwest.

Auto Drivers Asked to Care For Mummers

HARRISBURG, Oct. 29—(INS.)—Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, today appealed to Pennsylvania motorists to "give the kids a chance on Halloween."

At the same time, commissioner Eynon warned parents to caution children against tampering with automobiles. In his appeal to the drivers, Eynon said:

"The streets will be filled with groups of masked, fun-intent children on Halloween. Older persons will be going to parties in their motor-cars. Give the kids a chance. Drive carefully when approaching groups of children. They won't be thinking of danger. The operators of automobiles must think for them.

IRENE RICH AND HUSBAND PART

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The Times said today Irene Rich, film actress, and her husband, David Blankenhorn, investment broker, had separated, and that divorce proceedings would be filed soon.

The newspaper quoted Miss Rich as saying "a totally different viewpoint on a great many matters, especially money," was the cause of the rift.

Miss Rich married Blankenhorn four and one-half years ago, soon after Blankenhorn's first wife obtained her final divorce papers. It was the third marriage for Miss Rich. Her first was a girlhood romance with Elvo Deffenbaugh. She later married Maj. Charles Rich.

Miss Rich, according to the Times, planned to file divorce proceedings in Los Angeles this week before starting on a vaudeville tour.

4 CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Four children were burned fatally and another was injured in an explosion which accompanied their attempt to start a cook stove fire with kerosene in the absence of their parents last night.

A discussion of Halloween stories previously had led the children to lock the doors of the home, delaying rescue attempts.

The dead were Thomas Roy Wright, 6; Kathleen Wright, 9, and Edith Fern Wright, his sisters, and Thomas Brown, 11, a neighbor boy.

3 CASTAWAYS DESCRIBE HORRORS

Modern Robinson Crusoes 'Crazy' With Happiness' After Rescue From Isle

By J. A. RYAN
International News Service.

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 29.—The three Americans who were rescued by the United States Gunboat Sacramento from Cocos Island, 500 miles southwest of here, where they had been marooned since last April 15, are "a little crazy with happiness" today as they steam back towards the civilizations which they feared they might never see again.

Radio dispatches from the rescue ship to the International News Service correspondent here state that three castaways—Capt. Elmer Palliser, of San Diego, Cal.; Paul Stachwich, of Huron, S. D., and Gordon E. Brawner, of Springfield, Ill.—are all in excellent physical condition despite being confined for six months to a diet of coconuts, wild pig and fish.

Their own account of their experiences, however, discloses that at times the marooned men feared that the strain of watching for a sail that never appeared until chance brought Julius Fleishmann's yacht Camargo to Cocos Island might drive them mad. Describing their six-month long vigil, they said:

"It was a terrible sort of empty feeling. The waiting business was a long, drawn-out horror. Work was the one thing that would keep us from going off our heads. We spent a lot of time fixing up an old shack we found just to have something to do.

"Truly, we were three modern Robinson Crusoes—and, believe us, every man was his own man Friday."

JAILER STUDIES MOP AS CAPONE DIVERSION

Menial Labor With Ordinary Thugs May Relieve Glum Cell Life of Gang Czar

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The question which worries Warden David Moneypenny is whether Al Capone shall scrub and mop.

These menial labors, performed alongside wife deserters, alimony dodgers and ordinary thugs, the warden of the county jail said, would keep Al's mind off his troubles.

As for troubles, Moneypenny asserts the scarface gang overlord has many.

Now in jail where he sits pending appeal from the federal prison term of 11 years imposed for evading income tax payments, Warden Moneypenny says that Capone merely sits and reads and thinks. Mostly he reads.

While his attorney, Michael J. Ahern, considers whether to appeal to the United States Supreme Court for Capone's admission to bail pending appeal from conviction in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court, the tall, burly gangster has nothing to do but read detective stories.

Moneypenny has expressed the opinion that these might not be any too good for Al. He intimated scrubbing and mopping are more constructive.

Raiders Find Capone Gangsters Vanished

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—The Lexington Hotel, "front office" of "the" Al Capone syndicate, was raided today by a detective squad, which found the hoodlum crew vanished and virtually all of their effects gone.

THE MINE MOUTH: DUMPING COAL INTO TRUCKS TO TAKE TO JOBLESS HOMES . . . ALL SATURDAY COAL GOES TO WIDOWS

Trucks Are Donated To Haul Winter Coal Needs

More than 150 of Swissvale's unemployed are hauling between 55 and 65 tons of coal daily from an abandoned coal mine under the Milligan Manor plan, Manor and Highland avenues, Swissvale, to supply their winter fuel needs.

The coal is free to those who work in the mine and it is hauled to their homes in donated trucks. All coal mined on Saturday is distributed to needy widows of the borough.

Chance discovery of the mine, believed abandoned after it had been worked during the Civil War, by John Sabol and Harry Bowersox, six weeks ago, resulted in its opening under the direction of Tony Valantino, an experienced miner.

Co-operating in the enterprise are Joseph F. Milligan, real estate operator and owner of the property, the Mine Safety Appliances Company and the Borough of Swissvale. The latter wired the mines and furnished the lights.

The Mine Safety Appliances Company provided regular inspection and first aid and rescue equipment.

More than 800 tons have been mined since its opening. Its value has been estimated at between $2.75 and $3.75 per ton delivered.

The mine extends back 119 feet from the entrance and is naturally ventilated. The coal is hauled to the outside in wheelbarrows and loaded into waiting trucks for distribution to homes.

Gus McClelland, of the Mine Safety Appliances Company, who makes daily inspections of the mine, said the greatest hazard is poison ivy. Several of the workmen have encountered the poisonous growth which abounds near the mine entry.

Nesbit's Daughter Continues to Gain

Further improvement has been shown in the condition of Miss Nancy Elizabeth Nesbit, confined to the Casualty Hospital, Washington, as a result of an automobile crash last week. In the same accident her father, Harrison Nesbit, retired Pittsburgh banker, was killed. Physicians attending the young woman stated she has continued to make slow but steady progress. Although she is unable to speak, physicians believe she understands what is spoken to her.

Director's Alimony Decision Held Up

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The question of whether Alan Crossland, film director, is in contempt of court because he has not paid $71,400 in alimony to Juanita Thompson, film player, was taken under submission by the Superior Court.

Crossland claimed the payments of $500 a week could not be enforced because they never had been ordered by a court, but were merely the provision of a property settlement effected at the time of the divorce, 1927.

INFANT WILLED FORTUNE

NEW YORK, Oct., 29.—(AP.)—If the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Reynolds were old enough to understand that his great grandmother had left him $1,785,415, the matter would have to be explained to him in French.

He has been addressed mostly in that language since he was a few weeks old.

The fortune, of which the baby John Mitchell Reynolds, 3rd, receives a share, was founded by his great grandfather, P. J. Sorg, in paper and tobacco.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were notified their son's share must be held in trust until he becomes 21 years old, under Ohio inheritance laws.

Savants Hope to Make Gold By Shattering Atom

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Installation of a huge electro-magnet at the University of California by which two professors expect to perfect a method of breaking down the component parts of atoms and thus possibly evolve a way to make gold out of less precious metals was announced today by the California Monthly, alumni publication.

If successful, the experimenters, Ernest O. Lawrence and Dr. M. Stanley Livingston, would realize a dream which scientists have cherished since the days of the alchemists hundreds of years ago, and also would open possibilities for creating new sources of energy.

Lawrence and Livingston said they had been successful on a small scale in the basic principle of their experiment. They said they had succeeded in isolating and collecting the protons, or nuclei, of hydrogen atoms and would apply these portions under electrical force as projectiles with which to break up the atoms of other elements.

By using the hydrogen protons as "bullets" propelled by electrical force, the scientists expect to "shoot" the protons or nuclei out of atoms of other substances, much as an ordinary rifle bullet would knock the bullseye out of a target. Thus robbed of its nucleus, the atom of the baser substance would be broken up, causing it to change its nature.

10 GIRLS HELD, 300 MEN FLEE RAID ON SHOW

Crowd Routed in Drive on 'Wild' Performance in Dance Hall Near Avella

A Mt. Lebanon woman and nine entertainers who police charge participated in a wild show in a secluded dance hall near Avella, Washington County, spent the night in the Washington County Jail as the aftermath of a raid by state police, county detectives and constables on the show last night.

Nearly 300 men dashed for freedom when the troopers, detectives and constables forced their way into the Reawood Hall, located in Crosscreek Township. The raiders arrested a woman who said she was Mrs. Eleanor Savage, 30, of Shady Drive, West, Mt. Lebanon. According to County Detective William B. Dinsmore, she had furnished nine young women as entertainers. Paul A. Ronyak, 24, of Avella, was arrested by the raiders, who say that he staged the performance.

GIRLS IN BOXING BOUT

A boxing bout between two young women, clad only in boxing gloves, was in progress when the raiders entered, according to Dinsmore. The two performers fled into a small room, where Mrs. Savage and the other girls were found. Ronyak and the women were taken before Justice of the Peace W. W. Weigman, at Avella.

According to Dinsmore, Ronyak pleaded guilty to staging an immoral exhibition and was committed to jail in default of bail. Mrs. Savage and the girls also pleaded guilty, Dinsmore said, and were also committed to jail. Only a brief hearing was held, Dinsmore and a few of the raiders telling of what they had seen when they entered the dance hall.

TROOPERS AID IN RAID

Assisting Dinsmore in the raid were County Detective Frank A. Creps, State Policemen Redna and Sanute, of the Washington barracks; Constable George Williams, of Crosscreek Township, and Constable Albert Jukes, of Hopewell Township.

The entertainers when arraigned before Justice Weigman, said they were Sally Rice, 22, of Reddour street, North Side; Elizabeth Baker, 22, of Perrysville avenue; Helen, 17, and Norma Bennett, 19, of Whitney street, Wilkinsburg; Ina King, 18, of Rippey street, East End; Bertha Muller, 21, of Western avenue, North Side; Mary Bloom, 20, of Bellefonte street, McKeesport; Yetta Gould, 24, of Wolfrun street, North Side, and Anna Martin, 20, of North avenue, North Side.

STRIFE IN CHINA SPREADING

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Shadows of trouble generated by the controversy over the Japanese occupation of Southern Manchuria crept into the northern portion of that province today, threatening to develop into a serious situation there. Disorganized soldiers who had become bandits were reported increasingly active. Vernacular newspapers here said they were endangering railroad property in which th Japanese are interested.

The Russian government, which with China jointly controls the Chinese Eastern Railway across Northern Manchuria, was said by the vernaculars to have sent three armored trains with 500 troops to the vicinity of Taitsihar to protect the line.

Bandits looted several stations and small towns along the Chinese operated Supingkai-Taonan Railway in which the Japanese are financially interested, Rengo News Agency (Japanese) said bandits last night attacked a Japanese garrison near Kikousha.

issued by the State Department of Banking at stores willing to honor them.

CREDIT AT STORES

Through a committee of merchants one member of which will cast as "go-between" between the committee and the banks the store will determine what percentage of the deposit it is safe in advancing. That percentage then will be credited against the depositor's purchase at the store.

One example of the working of this plan might be:

Richard Roe had $1,000 in the "Trust Bank" at the time it closed. He has already received 10 per cent from the State Banking Department and a statement verifying his balance. He wishes to make purchases at a department store.

Through the merchants' committee, the store has learned that it will be safe in giving credit of 25 additional cents on the dollar to depositors in the "Trust Bank." So Roe is permitted to purchase $250 in goods at the store.

The store takes Roe's passbook and notes in it over Roe's signature, that Roe has contracted to give to the store the next $250 paid by the bank to Roe in liquidating. The passbook with the contract or assignment is turned over to the Secretary of Banking who is thus authorized to deliver the first monies to the store.

If the bank is able to pay more than $250 to Roe, he will receive everything above that.

Application of this merchants' credit plan to Pittsburgh, if merchants here co-operated and assuming a 25 per cent average slow credit, would free about $5,000,000 in purchasing power.

Inauguration of the Gorden plan in Philadelphia will be accompanied by orders from the secretary to special deputies in charge of the closed state banks to hasten their work. Philadelphia is months ahead of Pittsburgh by ordinary process, because liquidation has been proceeding in many institutions since their close last spring and summer.

RECEIVERSHIP METHODS

Ordinary procedure of a state bank after failure involves appointment of a deputy secretary of banking in charge of the bank. The deputy takes inventory of the bank's assets, which he files with the Banking Department in Harrisburg.

Following inventory, he conducts an appraisal of the institution, filing and accounting, if liquidation is decided upon rather than reorganization, with the Prothonotary of County Court.

After 30 days, the court approves the accounting and the deputy can pay his first dividend to depositors. The entire process generally consumes six to nine months before the first dividend is paid.

Under the Gordon plan, the secretary pays depositors through a man who has set himself up as a private banker. This man he "hires" to pay money to depositors. The money he pays out is paid to the banker as "salary" for his services. In this way, any cash on hand is immediately paid to depositors and accounted for on the books as expenses of liquidation.

Under form prescribed by law, expenses of liquidation are paid as they are incurred, but dividends to depositors cannot be paid for months.

PLAN EXPLAINED

National bank procedure is much the same. The national bank receiver, however, must wait 90 days between the date he files his account and the date the controller approves it. The account is filed with the United States Controller of Currency and is never a matter of record.

Dr. Gordon's statement, in announcing his plan for Philadelphia, read:

"The Secretary of Banking has submitted to the Attorney General for his opinion as to the legalities, a plan for the formation of a corporation to operate in the district of Greater Philadelphia, having for its purpose the realization upon the assets now held in the various closed banks in the possession of the secretary.

"The corporation will have a board of 10 trustees, of which the Secretary of Banking shall be chairman. The trustees will consist of bankers, prominent business men and other persons fitted to aid in the work of dealing with the miscellaneous assets now held in these banks.

"Immediately upon the formation of this corporation, it is the purpose of the Secretary to take every step to realize upon the assets of these banks as speedily as possible, in order that the purchasing power of the large class of depositors now in distress may be restored.

"Of course, it must be understood that, before this can be accomplished, the co-operation of the business interests in Philadelphia will be necessary and it is the purpose of the secretary to to invite this co-operation to the fullest extent as soon as the legal forms necessary to the creation of this corporation are completed under the direction of the Attorney General.

"This co-operation may take the form of merchandise credits upon a safe and simple plan, which will allow the retail merchants of this district to assist in the work of realizing upon otherwise slow assets."

MRS. JOHN W. LAWRENCE

MRS. LAWRENCE FUND LEADER

Mrs. John W. Lawrence has been named to take charge of the women's teams in the central neighborhood division for the Welfare Fund and Emergency Association campaign to be conducted next month, it was announced today. It is hoped that $5,981,184 can be raised.

Mrs. Lawrence has been active in support of the Welfare Fund since it was organized five years ago, and at present is vice president of the fund. Working as her assistant chairmen will be Mrs. William Frew and Mrs. John C. Dilworth. Also assisting her as majors will be Miss Helen Leovy, Mrs. Harry J. Miller, Mrs. George S. Ebert, Mrs. Joseph Dilworth and Mrs. C. L. Pierce, Jr.

HELD FOR QUIZ ON VET FUND

Arrested on complaint by American Legion and Veterans of Foreign War posts, H. A. Blume, 45, of 5445 Avondale street, is being held by McKeesport police for investigation of his alleged activities as a solicitor of funds for disabled war veterans. Blume was arrested by Police Chief John Whalen.

Tuesday morning police arrested Sarah Gueth, 28, of 530 Hazel street, and Gertrude Phillips, 28, of 324 Shaw avenue, both of McKeesport, alleged to have been soliciting money. They were accused of violating a city ordinance.

Arraigned for a hearing, the women testified they had been employed by Blume. They were discharged and Chief Whalen communicated with the veterans' organizations. Later he arrested Blume.

MRS. MILLER FOR M'GOVERN AND BARR

Woman Leader Urges Votes For Two 'Good Fighters;' Raps Lawrence Candidacy

Declaring that what the county needs is "good fighters," Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the County Government Committee, urged election of C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr as County Commissioners at a noon meeting today in the Independent headquarters, Magee Building.

Of David Lawrence, seeking election as Commissioner on the Democratic ticket, Mrs. Miller said:

"The city administration, headed by Mayor Kline, at present under indictment for serious offenses, and Senator James Coyne, is attempting to put over a minority Commissioner whom they can control. David Lawrence, an alleged Democrat, who for years has been taking the crumbs which fell from the king's table. He has sold insurance to the country for as long as I have been observing county government."

'GANG' BALLOTS

"We need not worry about Mr. Mansfield being elected. The 'gang' is sending out sample ballots marked for Mansfield and Lawrence."

Senator Mansfield has been indorsed for Commissioner by Local Union No. 3, Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers and by District Council No. 1, Painters, Decorators and Hangers, according to an announcement from the regular Republican headquarters, William Penn Hotel.

LAWRENCE MEETING

Mrs. Carroll Miller and others will address a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel tonight in behalf of Lawrence, Democratic nominee for Commissioner.

John Aten, secretary of the Heidelberg school board, complained to the District Attorney that he had been defrauded at the primaries out of renomination with the result that the ballot box was ordered brought in. A check of the votes cast is being made.

BULLETS MISS FLEEING THIEF

A robber detected in the act of looting the shoe store of William Rubenstein, at 301 Beltzhoover avenue, was fired upon early today by Patrolman Albert Beisroth, of the Mt. Washington Station. Patrolman Beisroth fired three shots at the man as he leaped over a fence in the rear of the shop and escaped.

The patrolman was walking past the store when he noticed a broken window. He saw a man in the store, but was himself detected. The man fled. Investigation revealed that $8 had been stolen from the cash register.

For the second time within 24 hours, highwaymen kidnaped a motorist, robbed him and put him out of the automobile. Early today two highwaymen forced George J. McDonald of 4410 Penn avenue to drive them from Forty-seventh and Plummer streets to Stanton avenue, where they put him out of the automobile after robbing him of $40. The car was later found in Mulberry way.

Forcing their way into the home of Mrs. Louis Levin, 36, of 6401 Forward avenue, Squirrel Hill, two armed men slugged the woman and fled after tearing two diamond rings, valued at $2,000, from her fingers. In removing the rings the robber lacerated the woman's hand.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

WELL, Barney is gone. I have the strangest kind of feeling as I write that line—because it doesn't seem real. To those of you who have never loved a dog, this entire piece will seem a little unreal.

Barney was a homely dog. No question about that. An English bull, he belonged to a breed of dogs never noted for being pretty. His nose was a pushed-in affair that was really a nose in name only. His teeth shot off in all directions. His face was so wrinkled that one might swear he was wrestling with the world's most difficult problems. And when he walked his 60 pounds lumbered all over the place.

Not much to love, you'll say. Well, not knowing him, you may be right. But he was a present to me out in Hollywood a little more than two years ago. He was only a week old when they slipped him into my pocket, and the wife and I have been watching him grow ever since.

We've had great fun together, Barney and I. I hadn't owned him more than two weeks when I stumbled upon an excellent racket. I had only to take him out on Hollywood Blvd. to have all the prettiest women in town flock right around me. It was an absolute cinch. To this day, I don't think the wife really knows why I was so anxious to take Barney out for a walk. I remember her telling me she never knew I was quite so fond of dogs.

Then there was the time we had to bring him back from California to New York by train. I did that yarn once, and some of you may remember it. It's hard for me to forget it.

They told me I'd have to put that puppy in that baggage car. Mrs. Hellinger gave them one look and told them they would do no such thing. So it was up to me to try and keep him concealed while every official on that train was looking for him.

I did fairly well the first day. They couldn't find Barney to put him in the baggage car. But on the start of the second day, the dog got loose. He ran through the train with with several conductors and myself on his heels. And you know where that doggone animal finally came to rest, don't you? Surely, you do. In the baggage car!

The time I was supposed to give a certain pill wasn't bad either. I lain pill wasn't bad either. I plucked one from the box and almost broke by hands in an attempt to have him swallow one. It was no use. I went out for a moment and when I returned, the game was over. He had pounced upon the package, eaten all of the pills and half the box as well!

Fond memories. The wife and I took him to Beechurst, Long Island, last Sunday afternoon. Around 6 at night, Barney wandered away. He has done that before, and we thought nothing of it. But this time, he must have wandered too far. Because nobody has seen him since. And the fond memories are all we have left.

Funny to get sentimental about a dog. Childish, almost. But that's the type of boob I am. And I can't help wondering how he met his fate.

Maybe he jumped into Long Island Sound and found the swimming too tough. He never did like those waves, and he always barked at them in belligerent fashion. Or maybe he met another big dog that didn't quite come up to his idea of friendship. Maybe they fought—and maybe Barney lost.

Maybe a car hit him.

There's just one more angle. Some person who knew the value of the dog might have picked him up and taken him home. If that's the case, I'd feel much happier than I do when I think of the other things. And if by any strange chance, that person happens to read this column, I want him to know that he has a swell companion.

Take good care of him, partner. Because you'll find him to be one of the grandest pals you ever had. . .

* * *

THE BOYS were sitting around with an actor who recently scored a great success. He had knocked around for 15 years without getting anywhere when suddenly the big break arrived.

"I'm terrific," he assured the group seriously. "The entire nation is conscious of me now. Why, a tobacco concern had me down this afternoon and named a cigar after me."

"Wonderful," grunted a producer sarcastically. "And I certainly hope it will draw better than you did for 15 years. . ."

* * *

SPEAKING of boring actors brings to mind a story of the late Georges Clemenceau that I do not believe has ever been published in this country. Before he became Premier of France, Clemenceau was noted as a critic of music. One night he was invited by a friend to hear a string quartet from Italy. Expecting a treat, he accepted the invitation.

Throughout the program, however, he sat with a look of pain upon his face. To reassure him, the friend leaned over.

"Would you believe it, Monsieur Clemenceau?" he said. "Those men have been playing together for 12 years."

Clemenceau sighed.

Many Features Are Listed For Program Saturday; Harris Meeting Also Set

All roads will lead to the Enright Theater, East Liberty Saturday morning, for the big meeting of the Warner Theaters Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club. Promptly at 10 o'clock a dancing class will be conducted on the stage, under the direction of Bob Alton. The officers will take their places on the stage and the meeting will open with a reading of the club pledge.

Tampa, the magician, will then entertain with feats of magic, will give a reading of the stars and a magic trick with instructions how to do it to every child in the audience.

The door prize for boys will be a big airplane that really flies, given by Graff Brothers, and for the girls a practical electric stove, courtesy of Dow's Drug Stores.

There will be another big meeting at the Harris Theater, Diamond street, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Two big features will be offered. First there will be Pay Day. Every child entering the theater will receive an envelope, and in every envelope there will be a coin. The other big feature will be the Barrel of Fun.

HUNT FIGHTER IN ATTACK CASE

Jack Burke, well-known pugilist-politician of the Strip, who police said was involved in a street fight in the downtown section early today, was being sought following the arraignment of Stanley Beninski, 21, of 136 Augustine street, Greenfield, before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Beninski identified the one-time sparring partner of Jack Dempsey as one of three men who attacked him in Smithfield street, near Diamond street. The other accused were Joe Snyder, 29, and Jacob Ryan, 31. Both gave their addresses as city.

During the hearing it developed that after the arrest, the four were released on their own recognizance. Beninski alone appeared. Police Inspector Albert Beebe offered no explanation as to why the men had not been required to deposit forfeits. Magistrate Rothenberg directed the release of Beninski and the re-arrest of his alleged assailants.

FOOD POISONS 11 ON AIR TOUR

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Reg. Robbins, former co-holder of the air endurance record, who failed last summer on a projected nonstop hop to Tokio, and 10 persons accompanying him on a land promotion flight suffered from poisoning yesterday.

The trip took them over the Rio Grande Valley. Physicians attributed their illness to ground meat sandwiches prepared in Brownsville, Tex., for their luncheon.

Robbins and Clyde Smith, a representative of the land company sponsoring the flight, were brought to a hospital here. Physicians said they probably would be able to leave today. Passengers received medical attention at a Dallas (Tex.) hotel.

SUITOR SUICIDE AFTER 'DATE'

Returning home shortly after midnight after visiting a young woman with whom he had been "keeping company," Paul D. Baker, 33, of R. D. No. 3, New Kensington, ended his life by shooting himself in the head. His body was found in his bedroom by his father, C. P. Baker, according to the report to the Coroner.

According to Private Bloom, of the state police, who reported the case to the Coroner, Baker returned to his home after visiting the young woman at her home in Renton. Before going to his bedroom he inquired of his father the whereabouts of a revolver, telling him that he intended to go in search of a man whom he had seen with the girl. However, after obtaining the revolver, he went into the bedroom and shot himself, the trooper's report to the morgue stated.

HERBERT FRANKLIN NICCOLS, 12 . . . HE KILLED A SHERIFF

BOY, 12, HAPPY ON LIFE TERM

ASOTIN, Wash., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Convicted of murder, 12-year-old Hubert Niccolls, Jr., faced life imprisonment in the penitentiary today with a degree of happiness.

Smiling on the jury that took two ballots to find him guilty yesterday of shooting Sheriff John Wormell, 72, during a grocery robbery August 5, the frail 60-pound schoolboy said:

"Well, I'm glad it's over, and I'm happy they didn't send me to an insane asylum, for even smart men go nuts in a mad house."

Superior Judge E. V. Kuykendall ordered the boy returned to the courtroom today to hear the life sentence pronounced. It was made mandatory by the verdict.

Passenger Robbed Of Purse on Bus

While William Reylar, 17, of Bayonne, N. J., a passenger on a Pittsburgh-Cleveland bus, slept early today, his purse, containing $43, fell from his pocket. Fellow passengers accused P. J. Vollis, 35, of 1413 Buena Vista street, a fellow passenger, of picking it up. Charged with being suspicious persons, both will be arraigned in Morals Court today.

Keep Baby's Milk in a Germ-Proof Temperature

Dr. Copeland

FEEDING BABY

This is the third of a series of eight articles on Infant Feeding by Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

In this series Dr. Copeland will discuss every phase of this most vital problem of mothers—what and how to feed baby! Clipped and saved, these articles will be useful as a comprehensive, informative brochure on this subject.

In this series of articles on infant feeding I have spoken about the different food elements necessary for health. I pointed out that cows milk would be a very unsatisfactory substitute for human milk unless given special treatment.

The treatment to which I refer is known to everybody as modification. After this preparation the milk becomes suitable even for the most delicate baby. There are very few infants on which modified cows milk upsets the digestion or interferes with the proper growth of the child.

It must be admitted that once in a great while there is met a peculiar sensitiveness of the baby to cows milk is not a proper food. In such event the doctor will make a skin test to determine positively whether the disturbance in the child's health is actually due to the milk or to some other cause.

Perhaps you have heard about the giving of goats milk. Because of the difficulty in getting this product it would seem desirable to make certain that the baby's trouble is actually due to the cows milk. If it is found to be then it would be wise to change to goats milk if breast feeding is impossible.

Even though there should be signs of slight disagreement they are likely to disappear within a few days or certainly within a few weeks. It does happen that a sensitive baby may have irritation of the skin or soreness of the mouth which is unrelieved except by a change in the milk. Strange as it may seem the only change necessary may be to get the milk of another cow or by a change of the milk supply to get the milk of a different herd of cattle. Your doctor will advise you about this.

It may not be out of place to say that milk that has been frozen is not good to give a baby. I hope you will remember this when the cold weather begins. I shall not undertake to tell you why frozen milk is unsafe but probably it is because of the physical effect of freezing upon the fat of milk. It is possible too that there may actually be a chemical change in the protein element of the cows milk.

Before I proceed further in discussing this matter of infant feeding I must impress upon you once more the absolute necessity of giving the baby pure clean milk. No matter how much such milk costs you will save in doctors bills far more than the extra expense. If you live in a city under no circumstances give your baby what is known as loose milk that is, milk that it brought in large cans. You must have the highest grade of bottled milk in order to be safe.

In this connection, too, keep in mind that after you have purchased the milk, or it has been delivered to your door you must keep it in a cool place. You cannot trust to the window sill or the cellar. It must be kept in a refrigerator and even then it must be a refrigerator so good that its temperature is maintained at 50 degrees or less.

No matter how clean and pure the milk may be when it is delivered to you it contains some germs which will multiply rapidly if the milk becomes warm. In an hours time certainly in a half-days time the number of bacteria or germs will multiply amazingly. Many cases of indigestion and other evidences of trouble can be traced to such milk.

Drama League Sets Tryouts for Nov. 7

The Pittsburgh Drama League will give tryouts to persons wishing to engage in league productions, Saturday night, November 7, at the home of Mrs. Albert Pettit, Forbes street, Squirrel Hill. In order to provide an opportunity of self-expression for those who are interested in taking part in plays, four one-act plays and one full length play will be presented during the season.

N. Y.-Jamaica Flier Plans Another Hop

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Having completed the first non-stop airplane flight from New York to Jamaica, Bert Hinkler, noted Australian flier, plans to continue to South America and may then fly to Africa.

Hinkler took off on the flight to Kingston, without disclosing his intended destination to associates here, and covered the 1,700 miles to Kingston in approximately 18 hours.

Resignation Rumors Annoy Gov. Davis

MANILA, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Declaring he "was tired of the persistent propaganda concerning my resignation," Gov. Gen. Dwight F. Davis announced that no newspaper, office holder or office seeker was authorized to speak for him. He said:

"When I resign I shall announce it."

Now! Her Teeth Are 3 Shades Whiter

Impossible to do with Ordinary Brushing

Now—you can have gleaming white teeth in just a few days. Science has discovered the way to remove ugly yellow and stain—whiten teeth 3 shades in 3 days! It is called the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Try it—use a half inch of this scientific dental cream on a dry brush twice a day. You'll see a marked change overnight.

When Kolynos enters the mouth it instantly becomes a refreshing FOAM. This FOAM does the work. First it removes yellow and stain and destroys the millions of mouth germs—190 million in 15 seconds—that cause most tooth and gum troubles. It stimulates the gums and purifies the mouth. Then it CLEANS TEETH RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL, NATURAL WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY. No ordinary brushing can make teeth so white. No mouthwash can give the mouth a cleaner taste.

Why have dull, yellow teeth? Clean them sparkling white and keep them sound and free from decay this way. Start using the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Results overnight. Buy a tube of Kolynos.

DENTAL CREAM

BY MARY LEE WORK

How to remove it without rubbing—scrubbing—scouring

An easy way to conquer this and 2 other hard jobs

Would you like to know how to get bathtub rings out of the bathtub without having to go through the drudgery of scrubbing and scouring?

Today, I am going to tell you how to do this . . . and to make 2 other hard jobs easier . . . how to cut dishwashing time in half; how to avoid faded, gray-looking washings.

To do this, you use a preparation called Climalene that you can get for 10c a package at any grocery store.

Thousands of women are using it and taking the time it saves them to shop, go to the movies, and otherwise enjoy themselves.

It makes it possible for you to do all your own work, and still have lovely hands. For it is made from the same elements as costly Bath Salts and thus really acts as a beautifying agent for the hands.

Banish Bathtub Ring

Add a tablespoonful of Climalene to your bath water. It makes the water soft as summer rain. Soap makes a quick, rich lather.

After the bath—just rinse the tub. That is all. There just isn't any "high-water mark." No scrubbing—no rubbing.

To Make Dishes Sparkle Like Jewels

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to a dishpan of water, use only ¼ the amount of soap you now use. It instantly cuts the grease from dishes and cooking utensils, makes glassware sparkle and china gleam. The Climalene-softened water, plus certain bland cleansing agents, cuts your dishwashing time ¼ or more—saves ¼ or more the soap you now use.

To Avoid Faded, Gray Washings

Use 2 tablespoons of Climalene, and ¼ the usual amount of soap. Clothes emerge soft, spotless, utterly without fading. For soap fade, and soap eat are ended this way. In recent tests men's blue shirts were washed 75 times without noticeable fade; sheerest French hosiery 100 times or more—to prove the blandness of this way.

Why It Cleans

Climalene instantly takes all the harshness out of Lake water, medium hard water, and hard water. Makes it soft and gentle as rain water. So soft it does the work with ¼ the soap you use now. At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease, dirt and grime, and thus cuts your working time ¼ or more, in washing, cleaning and in the dishpan.

On Hallowe'en We Don't Distill Love Potions

But we do offer a magic charm that will keep your husband true to you forever.

There's nothing supernatural about this charm. Sometimes, in fact, it takes the form of a T-Bone Steak with plenty of Onions and a large cup of Coffee.

Yet there's a secret about this charm and the secret is to give that man of yours what he likes to eat and always the best food that money can buy.

That's where we can help, for we stock only the best food and charge little for it. This practical combination we offer in our magic charm.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

OUSTED ALIEN PARTY LEAVES

United States immigration inspectors left Pittsburgh last night for New York with 13 aliens to be turned over to immigration authorities at Ellis Island, for deportation to Italy, Greece, Spain, Hungary, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and other European countries.

In the party were two women, voluntary deportees under the "distress" feature of immigration regulations, who had asked to be returned to their native countries because they were unable to provide for themselves in this one. They had been living in Pittsburgh.

The others were arrested in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia by inspectors under W. H. Marshall, director of immigration in the Pittsburgh district, and subsequently ordered deported by the Department of Labor because of illegal entry and other offenses against the government.

If It's Dark and Drab Make It Light And Gay!

- Tintex Color Remover Helps Change Dark Fabrics to Light Colors

Don't discard a dress or a set of drapes just because it is unfashionably dark in color!

With the help of Tintex Color Remover, it's really easy to change any washable fabric from dark to light colors.

First use Tintex Color Remover to take out the dark color.

After that you can re-tint or re-dye the fabric with Tintex to suit yourself—either light or dark! There are 35 Tintex Colors from which to choose—from pale pastels to dark gem colors.

Just ask for Tintex Color Remover and your choice of Tintex Colors at any Drug Store or Notion Counter . . . and the rest is easy!

—THE TINTEX GROUP—

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough due to a cold. It takes but a moment to mix, costs little, and saves money, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

STATE REVOKES FOUR DETOURS

New detours to be inaugurated the week ending November 5, as announced today by the Department of Highways, include Traffic Route 88, Monongahela City, and between New Eagle and Finleyville, Washington County.

Detours to be removed the week ending November 5 include Route 885, between Lebanon Church road and Pittsburgh; Route 131, between Lincoln highway and Route 31, Bedford County; Route 546, between Coaldale, Bedford County, and Fulton County line, and Route 251, between Black Hawk Service station and Archer, O.

UTILITY RATE CUTS ASKED

Public utilities furnishing water, gas and electricity to Allegheny Valley towns today had resolutions adopted by Tarentum Council and Harrison Township Commissioners, asking for reduced rates, before them. Copies of the resolutions also were sent to the Public Service Commission.

This action is a preliminary step, it was said, to a drive for lower rates. Other valley towns are expected to join. The resolutions demand public utilities cut rates in proportion to income reductions suffered by consumers in the past year.

MORE THAN A HALF MILLION DOLLARS SAVED

BY OUR CUSTOMERS ON THEIR PURCHASES OF DAIRYMANS FRESH MILK DURING THE PAST FOUR YEARS

Since Butler has been in the Fresh Milk Business stores have been selling at two cents under the home delivered price.

Despite this much lower price the progressive dairy farmers that have co-operated with the Dairyman's Milk Company have received better prices for their milk than they would have under the old order.

Customers have received a rich pure pasteurized milk of the highest quality. Rigid inspection by the health authorities and a spotless plant insure this.

POLES PROTEST BORAH CLASH

The clash occurred at the Laval dinner in the French embassy at Washington when the ambassador took Borah to task for recommending revision of the Versailles treaty.

Dr. Starzynski, in his telegram to the President, assured him that no faith was placed in reports that he considered the revision of the treaty as imminent.

Borah, on the other hand, was taken to task for his "rash suggestions regarding the Polish Corridor and the revision of the Versailles treaty."

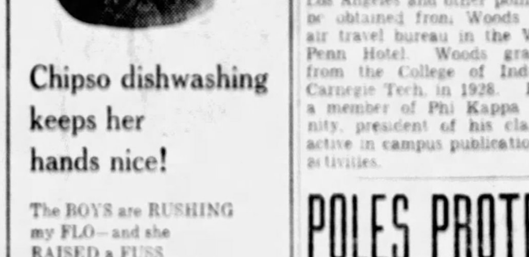
COOKS IN 9 MINUTES' BOILING



"Yes Children! It's another Mueller surprise"

"It cooks up better"

MUELLER'S Elbow Macaroni with creamed ham! A wise mother can widen the variety of household meals immensely, by making frequent use of the Mueller Recipe Book.

But, to get the right results, you should use the best elbow macaroni—not just any brand that comes to hand. To get a real, individual taste, use Mueller's—and with it you get an unequalled lightness, the greatest digestibility and the highest nutrition. It cooks up better.

Only the heart of the wheat, the most nutritious part, is used in making it—according to processes developed specially and used only in the Mueller plants.

Serve this recipe today! Your grocer has Mueller's Elbow Macaroni, or can get it for you.

For Growing Children

Elbow Macaroni with Creamed Ham and Vegetables in Spinach Ring

1 pkg. Mueller's Elbow Macaroni	1 teaspoon salt
3 cups spinach, cooked	¼ teaspoon paprika
4 tablespoons butter	1½ cups cooked ham, diced
4 tablespoons flour	½ cup cooked carrots, diced
3 cups milk	2 tablespoons parsley, chopped

Boil elbow macaroni for 9 min. in 3 qts. rapidly boiling water to which ½ tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Chop spinach, adding pinch of salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Press into buttered ring mold. Place mold in pan of hot water and keep hot until serving time. Make white sauce of butter, flour, milk and seasonings. Combine sauce with ham, carrots and parsley. Unmold spinach onto a hot platter on bed of elbow macaroni. Fill center of mold with creamed ham mixture.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

Patricia Pitt

One of the largest debutante parties of the season was the luncheon Mrs. William Watson Smith gave yesterday afternoon in the Allegheny Country Club. And the guest of honor was her debutante niece, Katharine Frazer, daughter of the J. G. Frazers.

Covers were laid at small tables for more than 200 guests, including friends of the hostess, debs of this year and last and many members of the social set who came out during the last few years.

Autumn flowers were used in decorating. The guest of honor wore a charming porcelain blue transparent velvet gown with a hat to match.

Hospital Benefit

Reservations galore are being made for the Eye and Ear Hospital benefit bridge to be held Monday, November 9, in the Hotel Schenley ballroom. And the affair begins at 2 o'clock.

In charge of invitations and tickets are Mrs. Louis B. Hays, Mrs. H. H. McClintock, Mrs. R. R. Huggins and Mrs. J. L. Kirkpatrick. Mrs. William Scott is president of the board and Mrs. A. W. McEldowney is secretary.

Copeland Wedding

Judge and Mrs. Charles D. Copeland of Greensburg announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Carolyn, to Paul J. Sturgeon, son of the William Carroll Sturgeons, of Greensburg, which was solemnized at 7 o'clock last night in the First Presbyterian Church, of Greensburg. Officiating was the Rev. Henry B. Stroh, pastor, assisted by the Rev. E. S. Wallace, of Blawknox, who was the officient at the wedding of the bride's parents. The altar was decked with palms, ferns, tall standards of chrysanthemums, supplemented by lighted tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a simple gown of ivory satin, having a long train and a veil of tulle finished with a cap of Duchesse lace. Her bouquet was of white roses showered with lilies of the valley. Mrs. Maitland A. Wilson as matron of honor, wore a gown of old satin and carried an arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums and talisman roses. Kathryn Close, of Pittsburgh, and Polly McDiarmid, of Cincinnati, O., were bridesmaids, wearing similar gowns of old gold satin and carrying bronze chrysanthemums and talisman roses. Small Lorita Patterson, daughter of the Samuel F. Pattersons, as the flower girl, wore a dainty frock of yellow taffeta, colonial style, and carried a miniature bouquet of Pompon chrysanthemums.

Richard C. Copeland, brother of the bride, served as best man, and the ushers included another brother, Charles Copeland, Jr., Maitland A. Wilson and Henry Marker, Jr., of Greensburg.

Men in Party

The bride's mother wore a gown of wine velvet with a shoulder corsage of talisman roses, and the bridegroom's mother chose brown velvet for her gown, with a shoulder spray of talisman roses.

The reception was given in the Greensburg Country Club, which was decked with crotons, ferns and fall flowers. After the reception the Sturgeons left for a Southern honeymoon, and will make their home in Memphis, Tenn.

The bride is a graduate of the Knox School and of Sweet Briar College and the bridegroom of Pennsylvania State College.

English Head at P. C. W. To Give Course at Club

An art somewhat neglected in Pittsburgh—that of interpretive reading aloud—is to be introduced to Pittsburgh this fall by Miss Vanda E. Kerst, head of the spoken English department of Pennsylvania College for Women. Miss Kerst will give a course of 10 programs of plays and poetry at the College Club beginning Wednesday morning, but similar courses are being arranged for Miss Kerst by Mrs. George M. Swan in other localities.

Miss Kerst will make up five programs of plays, choosing some of those that probably will come to Pittsburgh during the season—"The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" and others. She also will have five programs of poetry, emphasizing principally modern poets and probably including one program of children's poetry.

Miss Kerst explains that the purpose of the movement is, first of all, for the enjoyment of literature through hearing it read aloud and also for its cultural and educational value. Through the new groups she expects to arrive at verse-reading choirs, such as are known and enjoyed in England where the movement began in the universities, has spread widely.

Gertrude Wagner Is Married to J. H. Nichols

Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Wagner, of Linden avenue, Edgewood, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Alma Wagner, to John Henry Nichols, of Wilkinsburg, which was solemnized yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Dr. Robert A. Smith officiating.

Mrs. Harry Patris was the matron of honor and only attendant. After a southern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols will make their home in Edgewood.

CITY CLUB TO HOLD MUSICALE

Card Party, Drama Tea, Luncheon And Children's Matinee Events of November

In addition to Sunday's twilight musicale, with which the Woman's City Club will usher in November, the calendar for the month includes a poverty card party next Thursday, a drama tea on the seventeenth, a club luncheon on the twenty-first and the second in the series of children's matinees on the twenty-eighth.

The musicale on Sunday, prefacing the customary tea, will be by Cass Ward Whitney, baritone, and Ruth Bowers Gibson, violin, and the club choral.

First Tea In Series

The evening entertainment committee, which will be in charge of the card party, is asking for early reservations. The drama tea is to be the first in a series and will be attended by members of the "School for Scandal" company. George William Smith, of Carnegie Tech, will give a reading of Barrie's "The Will." Receiving with the president will be Mrs. H. C. Bughman, Jr., and Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard, and at the tea tables will be Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. George Phelps Rose and Mrs. H. Allen Machesney.

The program and library committees are arranging for the luncheon on the twenty-first when Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge will discuss "Living Philosophies," the book recently published under that title.

WINTER EVENING WRAPS MAY BE EITHER LONG OR SHORT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—you pay your money and you take your choice when it comes to choosing your winter evening wrap. We mean that you take your choice of length, since the shorter wrap is to be just as smart as the full-lengthed model this winter. Usually, of course, there isn't any choice as to length for all wraps made to wear for the winter season are very long. But women like the youthful, dashing air of the shorter wrap and do not see why they should not have it in winter as well. After all, one is out very little in a wrap in the evening. It is only a matter of stepping into the automobile or walking through a dining room or down the aisle of a theater. Most of the evening the wrap is resting in a cloak room, so why all insistence on long evening wraps when autumn arrives? We are glad that most of the designers have included shorter wraps and short evening coats in their showings, as they will find ready buyers for these models. Velvet and lame are the two most favored fabrics for the wrap, as they are rich and decorative, two qualities essential for the well-bred wrap.

WE SHOW TODAY sketches of a long and a shorter wrap to give you the long and the short of the wrap situation. The shorter wrap, by Bruyere, is in black and white velvet. The white top has white chenille embroidery worked by hand in graduated bands. The lower part of the wrap is in black velvet and there is a deep collar of black fox.

* * *

THE OTHER WRAP is by Irene Dana. It is in white lame with a small gold motif. The collar and skirt border are of white fox. The thin and supple lame lends itself well to the shirred effects on the sleeves. Set-in bands outline the circular panels in back and at the sides.

'Patients' Bind, Rob Dentist in Office

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Dr. E. M. Wildemann, Wheeling dentist, with offices in the Wheeling Register Building, was bound to his operating chair and robbed of $35 by two supposed patients.

Two men waited until other patients had departed, then produced pistols and threatened the dentist with violence if he made an outcry. Trussing him with towels, they rifled his pockets and fled. Wildemann managed to release himself shortly afterwards and notified police.

SPEAR'S
Downtown and East Liberty

...sparkling vitality and a clear skin reflect rich, red blood cells

"IT is good of you to say those nice things," she replied.

Nature has its own way of making a strong body and a clear skin . . . by its use of the red-blood-cells.

So often the pressure of work and worry or some sickness "burn up" these precious red-blood-cells—then the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "what is the matter."

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health in various manifestations.

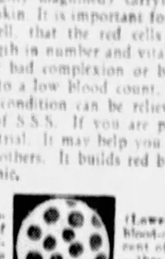
For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Enriches the Blood

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

The above shows the tiny blood vessels (highly magnified) carrying nourishment to the skin. It is important for body and skin health, as well, that the red cells are up to full fighting strength in number and vitality.

Whenever bad complexion or blemishes on the skin are due to a low blood count, or to a lagging appetite, the condition can be relieved or benefited by a course of S.S.S. If you are pale, or languid, give S.S.S. a trial. It may help you as it has helped thousands of others. It builds red blood cells. It is a splendid tonic.



(Upper) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Lower) Weak red-blood-cells—only 40 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form . . . it is Mother Nature's formula.

PARK SCANS REPORT URGING POOR BOARD INQUIRY

Teachers Drop Pay Increases, Cut Budget

SCHOOL BOARD AGAIN PARES ESTIMATE

Hope of Millage Reduction Dim Despite $327,000 Taken From 1932 Costs

The Board of Public Education may set the 1932 millage tomorrow night at a budget meeting in the administration building, Bellefield avenue. Plans to end the budget hearings and take the final slices from the present setup were expressed at a meeting of the finance committee yesterday afternoon, at which $236,190 additional was clapped off.

With the total appropriation asked in excess of $15,596,623, the committee so far has chopped off a total of $327,000. Further paring tomorrow night is expected. It is not likely that any lower millage will be effected, but the 2,000 additional pupils will be cared for without additional cost, it was said.

SUSPEND PAY INCREASES

The Teachers' Association yesterday met with officials of the board and agreed to suspend increases in certain salary rates temporarily. The amount represents a saving of $108,000, taken out of the present budget.

Headed by Miss Adaline Van Kirk, president of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association, the board and teachers agreed that they would suspend certain recommendations of the Citizens Committee for salary increases. Those increases suspended include salaries of elementary teachers above $2,200 a year; junior high school teachers above $2,800, and senior high above $3,200.

$100,000 HELD UP

Payment of $100,000 principal on 1912 bonds was postponed for the year, this amount having been specified in the budget. It was explained that there remained five years in which to pay $200,000 remaining on the bonds. Other cuts included the reduction of a $69,500 appropriation for motion picture films to $50,000, and a $28,500 appropriation for certain supplies reduced to $20,000. The Supplies Department announced it would have a $200,000 surplus by December 1, if the present trend continued.

Request from the County Election Bureau that nine schools be used as polling places on election day was granted after some debate. Superintendent Ben Graham explained that he would double up several classrooms to make provisions for the installations, the County asserting they could not get the machines in the cellars.

BOOK COMMITTEE

Vice President N. R. Criss moved that the board inform the County Commissioners to make arrangements, promised a year ago, for the use of schools as polling places. After complaints among board members against the use of schoolrooms for "political hangers on," Criss suggested that janitors "be given night sticks" to keep political loafers in check.

Appointment of a committee to meet Ralph Munn, director of Carnegie Libraries, and Samuel H. Church, president of Carnegie Institute, was made to discuss the extent of service the library will be able to give the schools with the library budget for new books cut $30,000. Marcus Aaron, president, and Dr. Graham were named after the latter asked for an increase of $5,000 for library books.

MISS LUCILLE JONES

Miss Jones, second-placer in the Western Pennsylvania audition. She's an Oberlin College student, represented Butler County and lives in Kittanning.

Indiana, Pa., Girl and Pittsburgh Youth District Victors

In the closest and most heavily voted contest ever held in a Western Pennsylvania audition of the Atwater Kent Foundation, Miss Mabel Carolyn Fiscus, of Indiana, Pa., and James G. Pastorious, of Pittsburgh, were returned the winners.

Miss Lucille Marie Jones, of Kittanning, Pa., Oberlin College student, was named second in the girls' ranks, and Jack F. Hoyes, of Belle Vernon, winner of last year's contest, is alternate to Pastorious. The contests were held last Saturday and Sunday and were broadcast by WCAE. The competitors were identified only by numbers. Miss Fiscus was 22; Miss Jones, 2; Pastorious, 15, and Hoyes, 7.

The winners will compete in the eastern district of United States audition in New York City next month, and the winners in that will vie with those of the four other areas in United States for the rich monetary and scholarship awards annually given by the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia.

Councilmen Inspect Street, Span Projects

City councilmen and city engineers today were to make inspection trips over several streets and bridges in connection with improvements under way or proposed. Several bridges will be inspected in connection with the plan to expend approximately $28,000 for repairs to railings, guards and other parts of the spans.

LANG TO RETIRE ENGINEERS TO CUT COSTS

Veteran City Workers to Be Pensioned, Many Others Face Idefinite Layoff

Nearly a score of city engineers will be asked to retire on pensions between December 1 and early next spring, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang said today.

Purpose of the "request," Lang declared, would be to cut down the departmental salary estimates in line with Mayor Kline's "economy" program for 1932, and to eliminate engineering units that do not have enough work to keep them busy.

Lang said:

"Some of these engineers have been with the city many years and have given us the best years of their life. They are entitled to go on pensions, and that's what I intend asking them to do."

At the same time the engineers are asked to retire, a number of draftsmen and departmental employes will be dismissed, he asserted.

Other engineers and departmental employes whose services are not required during the winter months, but who are necessary to the department in the summer, will be furloughed indefinitely.

All city employes are to take furloughs of two weeks, starting next Monday, under orders of the Mayor's office.

WIVES SLATED TO GO

A survey is being made by the Mayor to determine the number of married women working for the city. It is understood at City Hall that in instances where it is found the women are being supported by their husbands they will be discharged.

BRIDGE VICTIM FAILS TO GAIN

Thomas McBride, 24, of 1303 Carson street, whose back was broken when he fell 30 feet to the bottom of a coffer at South Main and Carson streets, was reported to be still in a critical condition today in South Side Hospital. The accident occurred shortly after 5 p. m. Tuesday and McBride lay unconscious at the bottom of the pit more than six hours, before he was discovered.

McBride, a laborer, was employed by a construction company building a land pier for the new West End-North Side Bridge. Although he was working as a laborer, it was reported that McBride was a graduate engineer of Tulane University and had accepted the laboring job because he had been unemployed for many months.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Father O'Donnell, head of the great Notre Dame University, did me the honor of a visit out to the "lean to" here. And, by the way, he says constant usage makes a thing correct and that "Notre Dame" is O. K. and the ones that try to say "No-trey Dom" is all wet. He says Anderson is doing a great job of coaching in Rockne's place. No business or school is bigger than the head of it, and you just have to meet this fellow and chat with him to see why that school prospered.

Will Rogers

See what happened in England. No matter what government or party is in, if you have your election during the hard times they will throw 'em out on their ears. The Republicans have just got from now till next summer to make things look better, or out in the alley they go.

Yours, WILL.

CRASH INJURES HOTEL OWNER

Joseph Kilkeary, 53, of 2626 Pioneer avenue, and Mrs. Rose Sendenheim, 6947 McPherson boulevard, were patients in the Allegheny General Hospital today with injuries received last night when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a taxicab at Sandusky street and West Park way, North Side. Kilkeary, a downtown hotel proprietor, suffered a fractured shoulder and Mrs. Sendenheim injuries to the back.

They were in the automobile driven by Joseph Sendenheim, husband of the injured woman. Sendenheim and Drayne Andre, 23, of Linhart street, the cab driver, were arrested.

William Keefer, 11, of 624 Shawana street, suffered a fractured skull last night when hit by an automobile near his home.

German Scientists, Coal Men Arriving

Dr. Karl Glinz and Friedrich Schulte, German scientists, who will take part in the third international conference on bituminous coal to be held at Carnegie Institute of Technology November 16 to 21, are expected to arrive in New York City this week. They plan to come to Pittsburgh immediately before the conference opens.

Dr. Glinz, professor of mining at the Institute of Technology Berlin-Charlottenburg, is to deliver a paper on the impact mills for manufacturing powdered coal. Schulte, of Essen, will address the delegates on the transportation of pulverized fuel.

'Bugs' Reveals What Makes a Conservative

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Ramsay MacDonald proved that you can bounce higher on your toes than you can on your heels.

He walloped the lining out of his old Labor party with all the outlying counties in the bag.

England is conservative again and will step along as gingerly as a cow on a trestle bridge.

A conservative man who does one thing at a time if he can't postpone it, ties his napkin around his neck and objects to strangers in his bathtub.

When things go wrong in England they hold an election. Over here we have them every four years because we like to take our medicine in the dark.

COURT DIRECTS ADEQUATE ACTION

Investigators Prepare to File Taxpayers Suit to Force Audit of Funds

The two reports of the committee investigating the Allegheny County Board of Poor Directors are being studied by District Attorney Andrew T. Park. The reports, the last of which was filed yesterday, have been placed in his hands by Judge James H. Gray for whatever action is justified by the facts.

District Attorney Park last night said he had not had an opportunity to carefully examine the report.

The investigating committee, consisting of Attorneys E. H. Wicks, G. M. McDonald and Paul E. Hutchinson, say they will obey promptly the order of Judge Gray instructing them to file a taxpayers' bill for a complete audit of the administration of the directors, J. Clyde Miller, H. H. Dixon and Dr. W. L. Henderson.

The investigating committee stated that certain acts of the Poor Directors have been in violation of the law. Should District Attorney Park find that the evidence bears out the committee's contention, he will have the power to take the information before the grand jury and ask for indictments.

The report questioned the wisdom of spending approximately $70,000 for a building to house 600 pigs at the County Home at Woodville. They found that the pigs are being kept in a "luxurious home" constructed of cream-colored brick.

K. William Schuchman, running for office against the present Poor Directors, said last night that he has not heard from leaders of the Republican organization on whether they intend to throw full support to the present Poor Diretcors, who have been renominated. Campaign speeches have indicated that the united organization strength will back the entire ticket.

JUDGE OPPOSES TRIVIAL TRIALS

Declaring he will not allow the criminal courts to be used as a collecting agency, Presiding Judge James H. Gray, in discharging jury panels yesterday prior to holding argument court today and tomorrow, explained his endeavors to speed up the work of the courts by discouraging minor suits.

At the same time the so-called Philadelphia system of having one jury sit continuously on minor misdemeanor actions was being tried out.

Judge Gray had before him the case of William Rose, of Scranton, charged with giving a bad check for $3 to an automobile service company. The Judge told the jury the case was trivial, and said the costs would amount to between $30 and $40.

He told of another case involving 12 checks, saying the alderman caused 12 informations to be made, held 12 hearings and wanted to collect 12 sets of costs. The court allowed one.

Baby Girl Hanged In Fall From Chair

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Seven-month-old Catherine L. Carrahar fell from her highchair today and was hanged to death by a strap around her neck.

Contract Bridge Seen As Depression Remedy

The depression may or may not be sweeping the world. Varied minds can decide that.

But to bridge experts there's nothing but bridge. People are apparently taking their minds off their supposed or real worries by playing contract bridge.

No less an authority that Edward C. Wolfe, lecturer from the "official" bridge club of New York, made those statements. Here lecturing today and tomorrow in the Joseph Horne Company auditorium, he says that contract bridge is the thing—auction is passe.

"Of course Ely Culbertson, espousing the 'forcing' system, and Sidney Lenz, exponent of the 'official' system, have real feeling about their coming contest. They're going to play 150 rubbers, starting about November 10 and ending January 10. Their enmity is real. They intend to win—if they can. They've nothing to lose except the money they put up—if they don't kill each other before they finish."

"But who will win?"

"Whoever gets the cards."

Pitt Art Sleuths Record Picture Gazers' Tastes

Half a dozen University of Pittsburgh graduate students are spending two days a week in the Carnegie galleries, where hang the noted International exhibit of art.

The students are inconspicuous, but in their pockets are mechanical tabulators that register the likes and dislikes of art patrons.

How long certain patrons of the arts, picked at random, stand before this picture or that, which walls they instinctively look at, more than others, the contrasting tastes of the early visitors and those that rush in at the last moment—all these are questions that the students hope to have answered.

They are doing the work for the American Association of Museums to learn what the Pittsburgh public actually likes—what in the arts pleases them most. The Carnegie Corporation furnishes the funds, and already several cities have been studied.

Edward Stevens Robinson, of Yale University, is in charge of the problem. A. W. Melton, of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art in Philadelphia, is heading the Pittsburgh research.

New York, Chicago, Boston and other art centers are being subjected to the same tests.

HIGH COURT ASKED TO SPEED HEARING ON TOWN HALL

COUNTY BOARD PRESENTS JOB RELIEF PLEA

Opponents of Nicola Site Fight Advancement of Case in State Tribunal

The question of advancing the hearing on the appeal protesting building the town hall on the Nicola site in Oakland today awaits action by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

The County Commissioners asked that the Supreme Court hear arguments at the Philadelphia session beginning November 23, contending the project could be inaugurated early in 1932 thereby aiding in relieving unemployment.

Ada L. Sheets and a score of Schenley Farms property owners and the Syria Improvement Association who appealed to the Supreme Court from the decision by Judge James H. MacFarlane in Common Pleas Court upholding the selection of the County Commissioners, objected to advancement of the hearing and asked that the argument be listed for the Philadelphia session beginning January 4.

JOHN A. MURPHY RITES SET FOR TOMORROW

Lawyer-Masonic Leader's Funeral in Bellefield Church; Court Pays Honor

Funeral services for John A. Murphy, prominent attorney, former Grand Commander of Knights Templar in Pennsylvania, and leader in Masonic circles, who died yesterday, will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the Bellefield Presbyterian Church.

Common Pleas Court recorded its adjournment yesterday out of respect to the memory of Mr. Murphy, following announcement of his death by Attorney Harold M. Irons before Judges Joseph Stadtfeld and William H. McNaugher.

Mr. Murphy

Mr. Murphy was born in Flat Woods, Fayette County, the son of Pressley and Roxaline Townsend Murphy. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, academic and law departments, and began his practice in Pittsburgh, being associated with Attorney George M. Hosack and later with Attorney Charles A. Locke.

He leaves his widow, Clara Wheelhouse Murphy; two aunts, Mrs. Cecilia Blackburn and Mrs. Ella Patterson, of Pittsburgh, and an uncle, J. I. Murphy, of Scottdale.

MUSIC

Harvey Efimove
Y. M. & W. H. A.

Harvey Efimove, character singer, gave a very happy entertainment in the Y. M. & W. H. A. last night and was vigorously applauded for his songs. The program was made from that vast hoard of Jewish and Yiddish folk melodies which play with the same idiom and yet are so variable in mood and story. They have to do with reverence for the Law, for Jehovah, they are ecstatic to madness, they are comical, tender, mischievous.

Mr. Lissfelt

Efimove is an actor with the background of the Viennese stage. His voice is well adapted for the folk song and his pantomimic sense is gorgeously developed.

The Pittsburgh Art Trio, recently organized by Bertha Gerson, pianist; Grace Bazell, cellist, and David Fisher, violinist, played several groups of trifling arrangements. J. FRED LISSFELT

NURSES LAUDED FOR PAINTINGS

By PENELOPE REDD

The pictures were done by student nurses at the West Penn Hospital under the direction of Anna Belle Craig.

Miss Redd

It goes without saying they are an innovation in nursing education. Verna Bensinger has an ambitious view of the Cathedral of Learning as seen from the porch of the Nurses' Home, while Hayes Gaddis has an excellent autumnal landscape.

A drawing of considerable power is contributed by Clara Kruder. The subject is the silhouette of the very modern nurses' home at the St. Francis Hospital with Friendship Park in the foreground.

Fire and Police Wipe Out Homes Of Hoboes

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—"Hobo Park" has suffered a triple misfortune.

Fire yesterday destroyed hundreds of the huts erected by casuals on the near southwest side along the river. Firemen let them burn.

As the homeless men began the task of reconstruction, fire officials asked the city's permission to destroy the remaining huts as a nuisance, an eyesore and a fire hazard."

Then Desplaines street police were ordered to clear the "hoboes" out of the territory.

Thief Flees Store, Leaves Loot Behind

Leaving his loot, a Negro robber fled from the P. S. McCarthy Drug Store, Penn and Braddock avenues, early today, when Walter Martin, Negro janitor, opened the front door.

Martin told police another Negro, believed a "lookout," stood in the street when he approached the store.

RURAL NURSING NEEDS TOLD

Volunteer workers to assist public health nurses in the rural districts are greatly needed, delegates to the public health nursing section of the Pennsylvania State Nurses' Association convention were told today in the William Penn Hotel.

The importance of this branch in promoting better health was stressed by Miss Marie Peterson, field nursing representative in Western Pennsylvania for the American Red Cross, who presided at the session. The volunteer's aid is needed in carrying on programs for proper nutrition, home hygiene and providing necessary clothing through remaking of old clothes and sewing of new apparel, she said.

Service rendered in Allegheny County through the Pittsburgh Public Nursing Association was described by Miss Amelia E. Loxon, supervising nurse of the section.

FORD FACTORY CUTS WAGES

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—A readjustment of wage scales of workers at the Ford Motor Company factories is being effected gradually, according to reports today. The readjustment, for the most part, is 15 per cent lower than the present wages, it was learned.

Some workers, receiving $7 a day, have been fired and then rehired at $6 a day. Ford officials refused a statement, but recently had declared that "something in the way of a readjustment may be forthcoming."

5 Jobless Men 'Go Native' In South Sea Island Grass Huts in Park

Grass huts resembling the South Sea Island type are the dwellings of five homeless men, who have spent the summer in Schenley Park, near the oval.

During the warm weather the men slept on a large mound of cut grass, but when the frost appeared they hurriedly burrowed into the grass. Propping the dry grass with branches from trees, they constructed cozy little huts from 3 to 4 feet high and 6 to 7 feet long, with barely enough room for one man.

Two of the hut dwellers, Louis Kuharich, 45, and Andy Goserich, 69, said park officials apparently have no objection to their living in the huts.

Kuharich said:

"We bother nobody. We sleep in the huts at night and in the daytime we search for food."

The men were formerly employed in local steel mills.

27 Cases Reported For City Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 6; diphtheria, 2; measles, 3; whooping cough, 1; chicken pox, 4; mumps, 4, and pneumonia, 7.

WARN AGAINST SPLIT BALLOT

Speakers at the Republican meeting at noon today in the William Penn Hotel urged the voters to vote the straight Republican ticket. They called attention to the fact that a vote in any other straight party column would exclude consideration of nominees for the State Supreme Court, the Court of Common Pleas, and County Court.

Speakers were Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, nominee to succeed himself, and Representative M. A. Musmanno, nominee for Judge of the County Courts. Attorney Stephen Stone presided at the meeting.

St. Francis Nurse Class Graduates

Twenty-six nurses of the St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing were graduated at exercises held last night. The exercises were held in the auditorium of Mary Immaculate Hall, Forty-fifth street.

2 Road Men Held On Girl's Charge

Two employes of the Allegheny County Road Department are being held without bail in the Sharpsburg Police Station, on a charge preferred by the mother of a 15-year-old mute daughter, before Justice of the Peace Anthony Ferraro, of Sharpsburg.

The men are listed as Daniel Murphy, 55, of 4913 Hatfield street, and Joseph Hassett, 38, of 48 South Eleventh street. Because of the girl's youth, the Sun-Telegraph withholds her name.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young. To do that you must watch your health, and be sure there's no need of having a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes—pimples, blotches, etc. Your face should be full and round, with a sparkle. Your eyes will be bright, ninety per cent of all sickness comes from impure bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician in this city, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural movement of the bowels you should each day in order to keep the body clean and clearing the system of impurities.

HERE'S THAT MUCH DISCUSSED ANDREWS' METHOD OF QUICK FAT REDUCTION

So Many Overweight People Are Asking About

Recently Brought To This Country From England, It Enables The Average Fat Person To Lose 6 or More Pounds Weekly Without Starvation Or One Extra Step of Exercise

It seems that the British have found a way to rip off excess fat that's the dream of every too-fat person. That is, to rip it off without starving, without tiring exercise.

Under an extraordinarily simple and pleasant regimen discovered there, the average fat person loses as much as six to ten pounds weekly; yet suffers no pangs of hunger, no aching muscles, no weakness or depression. Returning travelers from Europe talked so much about it, that it has now been brought to this country. Anyone can follow it; so if you want to get thin, here's your chance.

Eat, Sleep, Drink And Grow Thin, Doing Only This

All the method involves is a glass of water before breakfast—to clear the intestines and tone the system—and a few minor changes in your diet.

Here is what you do: Tear this article out and save it, so you won't forget.

Before Breakfast: Drink an ordinary tumbler full of cool water to which you've added a teaspoon of effervescent salt. (Get the brand named "Andrews" at any drug store.) This to eliminate the usual curse of fat people: accumulated poisons and bloat. Also to cut the moisture weight of your body—sometimes as much as three pounds in one day.

At Meals: Cut out ONLY fat meats. Eat your usual quantity of lean meats and ADD a double-supply of green vegetables . . . spinach, cabbage, fresh peas, lettuce, etc. Then for dessert, shift from pastry and pies to FRESH FRUIT. The more you eat of these the better. They're super-nourishing vitamin foods.

Drink, too, if you like them, sauerkraut juice, tomato juice or orange juice "cocktails" before lunch and supper. Eat fresh fruit, too, before bed if you like to eat before retiring.

That's all you do. No wonder England and all of Europe is cheering this discovery. You lose weight day by day, week by week . . . usually from six or seven pounds weekly to even as much as ten pounds, and feel amazingly more alert and active while you are. Doctors of world knowledge widely endorse this way. The salt tones and clears the system. The vitamin foods take the place of those that build weight and fat, and thus fat goes like magic.

Embark on the Great Adventure of getting thin today. Ask your doctor about this if you wish to be doubly sure this is the simplest, safest way to lose embarrassing bulk. You can get Andrews Effervescent Salt at any drug store for a few cents.

INSTITUTE GETS CRUISER BELL

Veterans of three American wars, war nurses and statesmen last night assisted the presentation of the ship's bell of the cruiser U. S. S. Pittsburgh to Carnegie Institute. The ceremonies were held in Carnegie Music Hall, with United States Senator James J. Davis, Congressman Edmund F. Erk, Capt. Halsey Powell, last commander of the Pittsburgh and Maj. Samuel J. Cole, national commander of the Army and Navy Union as principal speakers.

The ship's bell was unveiled by Past Commander Mary Welsh and Adjt. Mrs. P. J. Logue, of Katherine May Joyce Post of the American Legion. Col. Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute accepted the bell on behalf of the institute. Capt. Powell made the official presentation.

The speakers were introduced by George W. Dawson, chairman. The Rev. James Neely, 93, one of the founders of the Grand Army of the Republic, pronounced the invocation, and the benediction was delivered by the Rev. G. E. Swoyer, American Legion chaplain.

Consul's Daughter, Man Found Slain

VERA CRUZ, Mex., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The bodies of Lorna Hogg, 23-year-old daughter of the British consul in Vera Cruz, and Alex Taylor, a Scotsman, were found with bullet wounds and police today said it was a case of murder and suicide.

The authorities learned that the girl had been friendly with Taylor, but refused to talk with him over the telephone, after which he was observed to be drinking heavily.

TROOPERS HOLD GOBLIN PARTY

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—When the witches and state police both get after you, it's past time to watch out.

It's time to give up!

And were they after something, or somebody, in this neck of the woods last night? You're asking?

Well, they were on their toes, anyway—these men of Capt. Albert Carlson's Troop A, their legion of friends and an armory full of merry hobgoblins. It was the anual Halloween shindig, the fall social festival of the troop, which has its headquarters at Greensburg.

From early last evening until the wee hours of the morning the witches, goblins and troopers held forth in the armory, the guests including state, county and city officials, men and women of the social elite and of all walks of life. Mayor Harry N. Yount, of Greensburg, acted as master of ceremonies and headed a committee of judges which awarded prizes to those appearing in the most fanciful, unique and comic costumes.

Capt. Carlson, assisted by Lieut. Thomas F. Martin and First Sergt. A. J. Hudak, acted as hosts.

200 Feared Lost On 3 Ships Safe

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Fears that 200 French sailors had perished in the sinking of a French naval sloop and two submarines in the Arabian Sea were dissipated today when the ministry of marine announced that the three vessels had arrived safely at Port Said, Egypt.

Mother's Selfishness Can Be Harmful to Child

Should mamma scrimp and deny herself—do without things she needs—

So sonny or sister can have everything they want?

And if she does, should she be handed a lot of love 'n' kisses for her nobility?

Or should she be told that she is ruining her youngsters?

Worried John thinks she shouldn't—and she is—and he said so. Result? He's in the Dog House and likely to stay there unless somebody gives him a hand.

Listen—then tell us what you think . . .

LONG ENGAGEMENT

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I think you have good common sense, so maybe you can help me. About three years ago I met and fell in love with a girl who so I understood was a widow with a daughter 11 years old. Later I asked her to marry me and she told me she had never been married.

"That isn't the trouble however. Her story only made me more anxious to take care of her. She'd been darn decent and honest, and she'd taken care of her child in a way that was a credit to her. She was only 17 when it was born.

"But because of her past life, she insisted we be engaged for two years to let me make sure I really wanted her. So finally I let her have her way about that. The little girl and I got on famously except that I felt she took the things her mother did for her too much for granted. But I remembered she was only a youngster, and let it go at that.

"However, two months ago, my fiancee (at that time) was all excited about getting an electric sewing machine she'd been saving for for months. (She makes all her own and the kid's clothes.) So the three of us went and picked it out. She was like a child with a new toy. She couldn't talk about anything else.

MOTHER ANGERED

"So imagine my astonishment, three nights later, to find her still using her old treadle. She told me she'd changed her mind. But when Ann, the girl, came in, she showed me a motion picture camera and projection machine she'd been teasing for for ages. (Mother had given up her idea for a new sewing machine, to buy that toy!) When I remonstrated with Ann about it she said, 'Oh, Mother can use the treadle. The electric costs too much money, and uses up a lot of juice too!' Well, I was flabbergasted! And I ended up by calling her a selfish little brat.

"Then Helen (the mother) came to her rescue and gave me a call-down. She gave me back my ring and ordered me out of the house.

"She reads your column, and I'm hoping you'll try to make her see she is wrong.

"Don't you agree with me that it is wrong to pamper the child that way?

"WORRIED JOHN."

SELFISHNESS

Of course, it is wrong, John. And she is doing her child actual deadly harm by doing it. She is making her into just what you called her . . . a selfish little brat who, the chances are, will get kicked by everybody she comes into contact with when she grows up and goes out in the world on her own.

Then she'll hate her mother and, though it seems a bitter return, the mother will be getting exactly what she deserves.

For it isn't love that makes her indulge her child . . . it's selfishness. Real love would make her discipline the girl—teach her courtesy and consideration. But that's grim, tiresome work, and she wouldn't be half as popular with the youngster—now—if she did. So she yields instead, and basks in the sunshine of the world's approval . . . and her own self-praise for her "motherly love."

Some day, of course, it is going to mean tragedy. But I am afraid she will have to learn that bitter lesson for herself.

By FAY KING

It seems to me there is a good deal of similarity between the poise of the upper world and the coolness of the underworld.

Both extremes of the social scale get away with a lot that astonishes the wholesome middle classes.

Women who move in high social circles pride themselves upon retaining their poise under all circumstances. They do not seem to see what they do not wish to see.

But when it comes to low tones, few words, inconspicuous dress and masking their minds, the crooks have it on the board of directors.

"Chinese Treatment" Is Proposed for the Boys

The four of us lounging—almost drowsing—in the August moonlight flooding the farmhouse veranda, sat up abruptly as Bill's voice came through the curtains with its tense query to Marion as to why she had to go away just as he and Hank had come home.

"Why do you say that, Dicky?" Harry Underwood inquired almost crossly, and I blessed the quick wit which made it appear we were in the midst of a discussion and had not heard Bill's plea.

"Because that's my opinion, any objection?" Dicky responded belligerently, playing up. From inside the curtain we heard a smothered gasp and a quick patter of steps away from the window. When the sounds had died away, Dicky slipped his arm from behind my shoulders and, standing up, peered cautiously into the room.

"They're at the farther end and apparently continuing the discussion," he said, "while Hank and Mary appear to be engaged in some sort of fraternal squabble in the other corner. Lil, don't say I haven't warned you about that gal of yours. There'll be a trail of young gents with husky tigmolos in their voices, inquiring, 'Why? why?' from now on."

"Shut up!" Lillian said pettishly, and I leaned over and put a cautioning hand on Dicky's arm. I know that Lillian was in one of her incomprehensible moods concerning any romantic thoughts directed at Marion. She had laughed at the coltish awkwardness of Hank and Bill in their attempts to secure Marion's dances, but even the hint of any serious emotion disturbed her.

"Bill's getting it early," Harry said, bridging the conversational gap.

"Too darned early," Dicky swung the other end of the bridge into place. "And Hank's showing signs."

"I wish I knew what to do with them," I sighed. "They'll be lonesome when the girls go away and when they come back—"

"Ronald and the rest will be trailing along in their wake," Lillian struck in, patently ashamed of her outburst, but unable to keep her voice free from acerbity.

"Which will be the last straw for the poor young dromedaries." Dicky said thoughtfully. "If only there were some younger girls around——"

"They wouldn't look at them," I said, delving into my experience as a teacher of adolescent boys and girls. "They're just at the age when girls older than themselves attract them."

"If you'll turn 'em over to me," Harry Underwood said, "I'll guarantee to make 'em forget girls exist for the next few days, at least. And then they'll be so insulated against romance that, while they may get wildly jealous of Ronald and the other boys, it won't do 'em any harm and will simply add to the gayety of nations, or—rather—of ourselves as onlookers."

"Is it permitted to ask what particular inoculation you mean to give them?" Lillian asked.

Dickey whacked his knee heavily.

"The very thing," he said, "spilling the mess of beans to 'em?"

"It wouldn't be fair otherwise," Harry replied. "And when they know—"

He broke off abruptly, but his wife's voice calmly went on:

"That the objective of the threatened 'Chinese invasion' of the farmhouse and the other opera bouffe performance a little while ago is the lock box belonging to Marion, they'll be regular bloodhounds on the trail. Oh, yes, Harry, I've rounded to. I've had my little flurry for this evening and I'm quite sane."

Her words ended with a quiet little laugh and I saw her husband's hand go out and cover hers. I heard also his sigh of relief and knew that he rejoiced with Dicky and me at the speedy exorcism of her queer somber mood.

"You said three—or yet, four—mouthfulls or mouthsfull—take your choice," Dicky drawled. "Will they be terriers at the rat hole? Just watch 'em. When you going to spring it on 'em old timer?"

"I'm a faithful follower of the lad who emitted the yelp about there being no time like the one before your face," Mr. Underwood said, "Whenever these fair dames decide to break up the party, you and I will haul the boys out here in the moonlight and enlist 'em."

"These fair dames will go into action immediately." Lillian rose and put out her hand to me. "Those girls have a full day tomorrow getting ready for their trip the next day, and Madge and I have to get up early, too."

"Why, Madge?" Dicky demanded. "She's doing altogether too much. You stay in bed tomorrow until noon, do you hear?"

His tone was roughly affectionate, with a protective note in it which thrilled me. But I was panic stricken at the prohibition, for without wounding him I could not telephone Miss Halkett in time to stop my letter to Jack Bickett. And I was not yet ready to tell him about that regretted bit of folly.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bridal Procession

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married very shortly for the second time. Will you please advise me just how we should form in line when going to the altar, and on what side of the groom should I stand during the ceremony? I am having two bridesmaids and two best men. G.

Are you going to have ushers? If so, they go first in the processional, walking two by two. Then the two bridesmaids, walking together. Then you and your father or whoever is to present you in marriage. If one of your bridesmaids is to be a "chief" attendant, then she walks alone, before you and your father. The other bridesmaid would then walk alone, before the maid or matron of honor.

The two best men—it is unusual to have more than one best man—would accompany the groom as he waits for you at the top of the aisle.

Seating at the Informal Luncheon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our club is to give an informal luncheon at which there will be a guest of honor. Should the hostess sit at the head of the table? In relation to her, where should the guest of honor be seated? D. H.

Yes, the hostess should sit at the head of the table, and on her right would be the guest of honor.

Replying to the Three Bid

Partner must respond to an unopposed demand bid, regardless of extreme weakness. He should respond to a demand bid that is opposed by an intervening declaration, provided he holds assisting values of at least three trumps plus one quick trick, or in case he has a sound declaration of his own. He must pass an intervening bid in case he does not hold genuine assisting or shifting strength.

Respond to partner's unopposed opening bid of three as follows: 1. Assist upon three small trumps (or A-X, K-X or Q-J) plus one quick trick. 2. Without a quick trick support upon four small trumps (or A-X-X, K-X-X or Q-J-X). 3. If unable to assist, declare your best biddable suit if you hold one quick trick. 4. Shift to 3-no trumps in case you cannot meet the requirements of any one of the above responses, whether or not you hold any quick trick values.

* * *

♠ K-Q-3
♥ 9-6-5
♣ 10-5-2
♦ 8-5-3-2

Three No Trumps—
♠ 8-6-3
♥ 6-4
♣ A-5-4-3

The next hand nicely illustrates why four small trumps often afford all the support needed for a big hand to go game, even if it offers a dubious appearing opening bid of three.

	♠ 9-7-6-2 ♥ 7-6-3 ♣ 8-7-5 ♦ 10-7-6
♠ Q-10 ♥ 8-4-2 ♣ K-10-6-2 ♦ A-K-8-4	Y / A B / Z	♠ J-5 ♥ K-10-9 ♣ J-9-4-3 ♦ Q-J-9-2
	♠ A-K-8-4-3 ♥ A-Q-J-5 ♣ A-Q ♦ 5-3

Z's opening bid of 3-Spades was raised to 4-Spades upon four small trumps, but Z lost only two diamond tricks and one trick in clubs. Z ruffed the third round of diamonds, then led his two top trumps, dropping all opposing spades and affording two entries to dummy with the 9 and 7 of trumps. Both times entry was gained into dummy a heart was led and a finesse taken. Luckily neither opponent held more than three hearts, so that five spade tricks, four heart tricks and one club trick gave the declarer just the 10 tricks his side had bid.

REAL Doctor's Remedy
safe aid to Constipated

A DOCTOR knows the best and safest way to stimulate the bowels when bad breath, coated tongue, sluggishness, or a bilious, headachy, gassy condition shows they are lagging. There could be no better proof of this assertion than the overwhelming sales and popularity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Syrup Pepsin is a doctor's prescription for the bowels—made by the same formula Dr. Caldwell wrote and prescribed over and over during his forty-seven years of practice. He tested its gentle action with women, older people, babies and children; saw that it does not gripe, sicken or cause any discomfort. He proved its action thorough, complete, with the most robust men. Then as its pleasant taste and perfect action caused it to grow in popularity, he permitted it to be bottled and kept by drugstores everywhere, ready for use.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your drugstore today. Then, next time you or any of your family feel the need of a bowel cleansing, you will have a doctor's choice of what is best.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

WALTER WINCHELL could fill a column some day writing of "Things I Never Knew Till Now—" about Richard Gordon, who is recognized more readily by the radio audience as the astute Sherlock Holmes . . . for Gordon is an altogether different fellow than you might imagine. . . . Like Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit he lives upstate in Connecticut and motors to the NBC studios twice a week for rehearsals and programs. . . . Would you ever guess that you have heard this sleuth of the air in the widely diverging characters of Beethoven, Wagner, John L. Sullivan and Long John Silver? . . . The Hound of the Baskervilles he shouts down with perfect poise on the air yet refuses to hunt or fish because he can't bear to hurt a living thing . . . rivals John S. Young in tonsorial appearance at the studios, but works at a carpenter's bench in overalls when at his home . . . helps his wife, Emily Ann Gordon, cook dinner . . . as moral as a Sunday school teacher, as lovable as Longfellow . . . liquor and tobacco are inhibitions . . . has all the graces of a gentleman and all the artistic attribute that is necessary to "hold the mirror up to nature" in his radio sketches . . . what a man!

Darrell V. Martin

Arthur Bagley's setting up exercises in the morning are child's play to the difficult voice calisthenics in the Bird Song from "Pagliacci," which Rachel Morton, soprano, sings on WCAE at 9 o'clock tonight

Question a Day:

We have pictured Mildred Bailey as a heavyset girl something like Paul Whiteman himself. A neighbor says she is frail, but we can't imagine how she can sing so well if this is true. What is she like?—Mrs. W. F., Sewickley.

Answer—Mildred is five feet two; weighs 100 pounds; has hazel eyes and black hair; owns several chow dogs; manages to save something out of every pay envelope for the proverbial rainy day.

Studio Lights

Douglas Evans has deserted the bachelors at CBS and our "Ear to the Ground Dept." reports that John Comerford, KQV tenor, is engaged to a Cleveland girl . . .

Charley Hamp, Bing Crosby and Russ Columbo were buddies at one time on the Pacific Coast.

Remember the fellow who called "Hello WFA, W8XK calling" dozens of times in that memorable two-way communication between KDKA and Admiral Byrd when Byrd was in Little America? Cheerful Herb Irving . . . well, Herb passed out cigars yesterday . . . it's a boy, 11 pounds . . .

Vera Marsh, of the "East Wind" company is said to have a crush on a certain well-known theatrical entertainer in this city who broadcasts every now and then . . .

WEAF, WTIC and WGY have the Sherlock Holmes' sketch at 9:30 tonight . . .

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra is to help KDKA celebrate its eleventh anniversary by going on the air for the first time this Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Broadcast of the British election returns by CBS-WJAS the other night was one of the cleverest and most alert pieces of radio enterprise we have known.

Eoin Glen Campbell is due back from Scotland the middle of November. . .

Oxford University in England and Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., are to conduct a trans-Atlantic debate over NBC some time in December . . . the time and subject to be debated remained to be selected . . .

Noble Sissle returns to CBS Saturday night and is to be heard four times weekly . . .

"There's a Rainbow Shining Somewhere"—Tom Noonan speaks to the KDKA audience via an electrical transcription, about 6:05 o'clock . . . and another record, Ford Frick gives his outlook of the Tech-Notre Dame game on WCAE at 7:30 . . .

Today's Tid Bit:

Watching Dave Olson from the control room during one of his WCAE broadcasts, a woman leaned forward "in her chair, watching and listening to him intently . . . Another interested spectator bent toward her and said, "He's swell, isn't he? You ought to see him imitate Seth Parker!" . . . The addressed one smiled benignly and replied, "I do. Very often. I'm his wife."

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Dance bands entering upon new engagements continue to make a ballyhoo boy out of the Prince of Wales. Is there a jazz band in the world that hasn't had his approving nod? If we believe the prett agents there is none.

Latest to win the royal favor is Harlem's Noble Sissle. According to the jazzbo's historian we learn that "in his (Sissle's) heart he carries words of praise from the Prince of Wales to sustain him at his first appearance in a large American hotel" . . . When the prince talks about the efficiency of American advertising he can't have in mind our jazz bands. . . . Well, we're spared such outbursts from the symphony bands and that's some comfort. They receive, of all who plunge into the radio sea, the least publicity.

Radio has created strange activity in America, but none stranger than the huddles of manufacturers and their agents for the purpose of choosing a broadcast program. They insist upon audition after audition of concern stars. Broadway ballad warblers, orchestras, comedians. They sit in weighty conference over the respective merits of musicians. Weighty conference usually ends in contracts to a dance band and a tenor.

Latest of the republic's fabulous figures is Ely Culbertson, contract bridge authority. And of course radio snares him. Still, Culbertson breaks away from the expected line of talk, says "beware of the fellow who holds his cards close to his chest" . . . Broadcasters are working on a Christmas message from Galsworthy. Shy fellows, the leading English novelists! They not only have an inherent fear of radio mechanism, they fear their talks will be dull . . Even such an optimist as Galsworthy doesn't want to send over the usual Christmas message of cheer.

Most optimists on the radio are dull. And it's because they don't take pains to strike out in new channels. They air the same old stuff in the same old way . . . One reason why Shaw and Will Rogers are especially welcome on the airwaves is because they try to be different and usually succeed . . . Spies report that more and more commercial sponsors are signing newspapermen to lucrative masters of ceremony contracts with the hope of snaring as guest artists leading lights of Broadway without cost . . . The depression, 'tis said, has worked one benefit. It has lightened the load of the mail carriers. Fan mail to radio stars will never reach the staggering proportions that it has achieved in the cases of the movie stars for the simple reason that the radio stars cannot point to the same quality of personal beauty as the stars of the screen.

Women welcome it as a wonder-working seasoning. Gulden's penetrates the food while it is cooking, enriching the natural taste and giving new appeal to the most familiar dishes. Because it is so perfectly blended, it gives no obvious taste—yet it doubles the deliciousness of meats, makes them much more appetizing.

Spread Gulden's over steak, chops or roasts before cooking. Add it to gravies and left-overs. You will like the flavor!

Glorified Hamburg

Grim New O'Neill Trilogy, A Cubistic Hamlet, Job and Burke

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

Eugene O'Neill's new trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," has been unfolded to New Yorkers by the Theater Guild in a performance that requires six hours, with an intermission for dinner. It is even longer than "Strange Interlude," which had nine acts. The new "Electra" consists of three plays with altogether 14 scenes. It is a New England tragedy like "Desire Under the Elms." And it is described aptly as "deep, dark, solid, uncompromising and grim."

George Seibel

There is a popular theory that in the omnipresent gloom of our financial woes, the theater should present light and trivial things, to take people's minds off their troubles. This theory is poor psychology. It's like playing "Charley's Aunt" on Judgment Day.

O'Neill and the Guild show us troubles that make stock exchange flurries and joblessness look like Ziegfeld's Follies. After six hours of murder and suicide, vengeance and madness, even the most inconsolable of pessimists must feel more cheerful as he leaves the theater.

Such blithe merrymakers as Alla Nazimova and Alice Brady help Electra to adjust her mourning, which she wears becomingly after the style of Sophocles and Hawthorne.

It seems that O'Neill has achieved another ponderous tragic triumph.

HAMLET IN PHILADELPHIA

Meanwhile a new Hamlet has been prepared for the people of Philadelphia by that famous royal Danish architect, Norman Bel Geddes.

This "Hamlet" is the direct successor of the classic "Lysistrata" which with its ribald rowdiness showed us how the Greeks worked for peace.

The Hamlet for the Quakers was imported from Canada and it is an old axiom of the green room that no actor can fail in this role.

True, but it is just as difficult to succeed.

But with Norman Bel Geddes, Hamlet is likely to disappear behind the architecture. Give this man a box of building blocks and he will create a new drama.

The Cubist Classics are upon us!

EVERYBODY DRAMATIZED

Meanwhile they're putting everybody and everything on the stage over in London. The Book of Job has been turned into drama and is being played at Sadler's Wells Theater with Job and Satan as the principal characters. And an Edinburgh surgeon has even made a play out of Burke and Hare, called "The Anatomist."

If you have never heard of Burke and Hare look in your dictionary for the verb "to burke." It means to murder by suffocation, or so as to produce few marks of violence, for the purpose of obtaining a body to be sold for dissection.

He achieved a sort of immortality by giving the English language a new word.

And now he has had a play written about him.

Notes About Stage and Screen

Apropos of the appearance of Mme. Schumann-Heink in "The Mikado" in the Alvin next week it is interesting to note that 50 years ago, when Gilbert and Sullivan began to produce their delightful operas, the English stage was at its lowest ebb. When they staged their first work it was an instantaneous success. The authors had set out to prove that unlegalness and salaciousness were not essential to the success of humorous opera.

Vivian Fay, dancer, is featured in the "Earl Carroll Vanities" coming to the Nixon next week. She made her first stage appearance in a stock production in Sacramento, Cal., at the age of 6. She appeared with Gus Edwards at 13 and danced in West Coast productions of "Naughty Riquet," "Green Fruit," "Listen Desire" and "Good News," and in other presentations, prior to her discovery by Earl Carroll.

NEW PICTURES TODAY

Pittsburgh screen audiences will get their second look at James Dunn, hero of "Bad Girl," when he comes to the Fulton today in the leading male role of "Sob Sister." Linda Watkins, one of the debutante stars of 1931, is in the title part. Minna Gombell, who was also in the cast of "Bad Girl," has an important part in the new talkie.

"Platinum Blonde," comedy romance with Jean Harlow, Loretta Young and Robert Williams, opens in the Stanley today.

"Bought," with Constance Bennett, Ben Lyon and Richard Bennett, opens in the Enright Monday. It will be followed Thursday by "Daughter of the Dragon," with Warner Oland, Sessue Hayakawa and Anna May Wong.

HELEN HAYES' DEBUT

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet," a story said to combine thrills, laughs, love and tears, and which introduces on the talking screen Helen Hayes, legitimate stage star, comes to the Penn tomorrow. It is based on Edward Knoblock's stage play, "Lullaby."

John Barrymore's skill of make-up is said to be brought to the fore in "The Mad Genius," opening Saturday in the Warner. Marian Marsh, Charles Butterworth and Boris Karloff are in the cast.

Edna May Oliver in her first starring film, "Fanny Foley Herself," opens Saturday in the Harris. Hobart Bosworth also is in the film. Buck Jones is on the same program in a new western, "Border Law."

Doug Fairbanks, Jr., is starred in "I Like Your Nerve," romantic adventure film, coming to the Davis Friday. Loretta Young and Boris Karloff are in the cast.

"The Phantom of Paris," John Gilbert's newest starring talkie, recently seen downtown, opens tomorrow on the Sheridan Square screen. Supporting players include Lewis Stone, Leila Hyams and Jean Hersholt.

Socialists Schedule Last Street Rallies

Final street meetings of the Socialist party's campaign for offices to be filled at the election next Tuesday will be held Friday night at Station street and Frankstown avenue and Saturday night at Federal and South Diamond streets, North Side.

James Devlin, nominee for City Council; Milton Weisberg, and Donald Thompson will address Friday night's meeting. Dr. William J. Van Essen, nominee for County Commissioner, is scheduled to speak at Saturday night's meeting.

Mansfield to Speak At 15th Ward Meet

Senator William D. Mansfield, candidate for County Commissioner, will speak at a mass meeting of the Fifteenth Ward Republican organization tonight in Gladstone School, Hazelwood avenue. Leo J. Kirch, Fifteenth Ward chairman, will preside.

Other speakers will include Attorney Artemus C. Leslie.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lennox Robinson, director of the Abbey Theater, Dublin, home of the Irish Players, coming next week to the Twentieth Century Club and Carnegie Music Hall, to present six plays in five days, opening Monday with "The Playboy of the Western World," states that there is no "star" in the company, and that all are of equal importance. Yet it is claimed by those who know that F. J. McCormick probably is the most versatile. He has been with the Abbey continuously for 15 years and has played more than 250 parts, most of which were "creations." Another veteran is F. J. Dolan, who was with the company that visited America prior to the World War. He has to his credit some 500 roles.

Small Timer says the scientist who claims we are all slightly crazy may be right, but it sounds nutty to him.

"The Student Prince" evidently is one of those guys who have to have the college burn down in order to get him out of it. The scion of royalty still is pursuing his education and the progress of the training again will be demonstrated musically and romantically, even comically, in the Alvin the week of November 9. Gertrude Lang will be the prima donna and George Hassell will take care of the comedy.

Small Timer says it is dangerous to overwork, but that there are fewer victims than there are of that tired feeling that develops from underwork.

Our first-of-the-season introduction to Shakespeare will come November 9, in the Nixon, where the Stratford-Upon-Avon Players, from the Shakespeare Memorial Theater, Stratford, will begin a series of the Bard's plays with the presentation of "The Merry Wives of Windsor." Other plays will be "King Lear," "A Winter's Tale," (matinee), "King Henry IV" (part one), "Twelfth Night," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "As You Like It," (matinee), and "The Taming of the Shrew," in the order given.

Small Timer says the missus isn't extra fond of rands, yet she has her own sweet way—in everything.

Phantom!

Robert Coogan May Portray Crippled Boy in Talkie, 'The Miracle Man'

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.

Gary Cooper's illness has upset plans for "The Miracle Man," but Paramount is slowly gathering the supporting players. Robert Coogan, "Sooky" to you, has been cast as the crippled boy in the story.

This will be his first film role other than the Percy Crosby character.

Gary Cooper

There seems to be some doubt as to whether Gary Cooper will play the role created by Thomas Meighan. His physicians are advising a long rest from film work and the studio may not be able to hold up the picture. Perhaps now they will persuade George Bancroft to play the confidence man. He was the original choice.

Sylvia Sidney is to have the Betty Compson part and Irving Pichel follows Lon Chaney.

I HEARD TODAY

Richard Dix is back and it turns out the honeymoon was spent on his ranch. He and his bride have known each other five years. "And, thank goodness, she doesn't know a long shot from a closeup," says Rich. . . . Janet Gaynor has returned from Palm Springs to resume work on her picture. She gained two pounds. . . . Rollo Lloyd, who wrote the screen play of Ann Harding's new film, also is to have a part in it. . . . Hoot Gibson and Sally Eilers will take a place in Beverly Hills. The landlord refused to let them keep a dog in their Hollywood apartment. . . . Leo Carillo gave one of those barbecues of his to "The Dove" Company. . . . Fall is here. I saw Ivan Lebedeff wearing his white spats.

LET THE CAMERAS GRIND

Here is a chance for the home movie fan. The American Cinematographer, official magazine of the Hollywood cameramen, offers $1,000 in prizes for the best motion pictures made with a 16 millimeter camera. The contest opens November 1 and continues for a year. Only amateurs are eligible. Films will be judged on photography, composition, direction, acting, cutting and entertainment value. The first prize will be $500. Please don't write to this department for further details. They can be obtained from The American Cinematographer, Hollywood.

Cold Insurance

He carries it with him, ready for just such times. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made from these tablets.

Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold!" Every case of tonsilitis began with "just a sore throat!" It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, and even rheumatism.

Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Does not depress the heart.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Capone

Something told me at the time I wouldn't see Capone for a long spell . . . I mean the last time I met him in his Florida mansion. . . . He seemed pretty glum after he got that call from Chicago—and they told him that local politicians, aspiring for the heights, were reopening the Colosimo thing . . . He never dreamed that they would finally trap him via the income tax gag . . . The size of Alphonse was what impressed me more than anything about him . . . A mutual friend asked me if I would like to meet Capone, and I said I would . . . Might have made a lot of coin from all those magazines that asked for an article on the visit titled, "The Capones at Home" . . . But I told Capone I wouldn't go commercial on the call—and I didn't . . . He said he didn't care whether I did or not—that he never met a newspaperman yet who didn't cross him.

I had always pictured him as a small and fat person . . . He's over six feet! . . . When I was entering his place, he saw me coming up the three steps leading to the parlor . . . He was playing cards with three huskies . . . Their backs were to the door—Capone faced it! . . . "Oh, come in," he called as he saw me, and in the same breath he must have said to the others "Scram!"—because they disappeared quicker than the bird cage that Keating uses . . . He was sweeping the table clean of cards and chips . . . I sat down on a settee near his side of the table . . . "Sit over here," he said . . . "No, this is all right," I countered . . . "No, sit over here, please," he persisted, but I didn't move . . . My orbs had caught sight of the largest automatic I ever saw . . . It was resting in one of the table nooks, where they kept chips, I guess, and he didn't want me to be startled . . . He covered the gun with one of his immense paws, and hid it on the other side of the table . . . "I don't understand that," I said for want of something to say. "Here you are playing a game of cards with your friends, but you keep a gun handy" . . . "I have no friends," he said as he handed me a glass of grand beer.

Among other things I learned during that call was that every time you referred to it as his gang, he corrected you with "my organization" . . . "Why don't you guys never put in the paper about my breadlines and soup lines?" . . . he asked me . . . Then he told with great pride how his Chicago philanthropies so congested traffic that the police urged him to stagger the hours . . . He argued long and loud about being blamed for everything—most of which he never did . . . "All I ask is that they leave me alone," he said once . . . I didn't tell him so, but I thought of a lot of people who wished he would leave them alone . . . His beautiful mansion was really another prison for him . . . He couldn't leave it without a heavy guard . . . When he moved it was done secretly—by plane or boat—both of which were anchored in the waters adjacent to his home there . . .

The call from Chicago came . . . Before it arrived Capone was in a gay mood . . . He likes to talk, it seems—and he was defending his reputation against A First Impression . . . After the phone call he came back into the parlor and seemed away off . . . "What's the matter?" I asked. "Nothing good?" . . . "Aw," he said, "that bunch in Chicago is trying to pin the Colosimo murder on me. That was years ago! All of us had a hearing!" . . . He told me about the time they nailed him in Philly, where he did time . . . "I was buying tickets back to Chicago," Capone said, "and I told the ticket guy in the cage at the station to keep the change. It was a $50 bill. So that's what I got for being helpful. He must have recognized me. So he phoned the police, I guess, and kept my $50 . . . The detectives, it appears, traced him and his companions to a movie house, and bagged him when they came out . . . They had gone to kill time between trains . . . "What crazy cops they were," Capone barked. "They might have started a panic in that lobby with all those people! That's no time or place to get excited—and maybe a lot of people could get hurt!"

I was looking at him through one eye—his beer was too good. . . . "Yeah," I said, "that's pretty dangerous—with all those people around" . . . One of the cops said, "Hello, Al," and Al returned the salutation . . . "Got a gun on you?" the officer queried . . . "Sure," said Al, "go and get it" . . . Capone explained to me that it was a good thing he didn't remove the gun himself, for that is what the cops wanted . . . "They'd have shot me down claiming self-defense, get it?" . . . They took him before a magistrate there. "Oh, boy," said Capone, "you should have heard the call down he gave me. He called me everything in the world. I was a bum, a rat, a this and that. He missed nothing. All the time I thought he was putting on a show—for the benefit of reporters and others in the courtroom. So I took it all . . . But he wouldn't stop . . . He told me he was sorry that he couldn't put me in the electric chair right then, himself! . . . Finally I promoted a lawyer and figured the bail would be low . . . But the judge, who once was my pal, was trying to crash the spotlight with me. He continued giving me a piece of his mind. So when he said $35,000 bail, and I started to peel it off my bankroll, he changed his mind and said the bail would be higher . . . In tne time I spent in that jail it cost me $110,000. . . . All over the $50 tip!"

"What I can't figure out with a guy like you," I said to him, "is this: You are in a big business. The biggest business men cheat a little, but they rarely give the government a chance to catch them clowning with their income returns. You should have used your nut and paid it!" . . . "Why?" he snapped. "I have no business!" . . . "Then," I countered, "how are you going to explain all this—and your wealth?" . . . "Presents," he said. "My friends and cousins gave me it all" . . . I realized then that Capone wasn't so shrewd, and the beer in me gave me the courage to so tell him . . . A newspaper was brought in . . . "Hah!" I hah'd, "this is good. Look! It says people in New York saw you today on a train. And here's a report that you just passed through Albany!" . . . It was amusing to read those statements sitting with him in Miami Beach! . . . Then he tossed the paper to a couch . . . The paper's front page carried another tale about him being wanted in Chicago for the Colosimo murder . . . "That's another thing about you I can't figure," I said, "you're crazy over that boy of yours. Still you leave newspapers around the house like that where he can see such stories about you. That's not nice" . . . "Don't mean a thing." Capone replied indifferently, "he knows that anything they put in the papers about me is a lie" . . . Bless Mr. Volstead—if it weren't for him there'd be no marvelous Capone beer . . . I think I know the recipe. . . . It must be flavored with lightning!

U. S., Turkey Sign First Political Pact

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—A treaty providing most-favored nation treatment between the United States and Turkey in the establishment of residence for their nationals has been signed by American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew at Angora. It was America's first political treaty with the Turkish republic.

Avoid this menace! adopt KLEENEX

Disposable Tissues

Your handkerchief during colds may carry 4,000,000 living germs—a menace to yourself and to others, unless you use this tissue you can destroy.

THE common handkerchief is now known to be an almost unbelievable source of danger during colds. Germs not only live but grow in the ordinary handkerchief. Often damp, kept in pockets at body temperature, the handkerchief is an ideal breeding place for dangerous organisms.

These germs are carried to your nose and mouth each time you use your handkerchief. They're spread through the air, they contaminate laundry bags and clothing.

Use Kleenex—destroy

There's safety in Kleenex. Kleenex is a gentle tissue that comes in convenient squares, handkerchief size. Made of rayon-cellulose, Kleenex is softer than a linen handkerchief. But here's what's important:

Kleenex costs so little that each tissue may be destroyed after a single use! Dangerous germs are destroyed before they have a chance to re-infect you. Every handkerchief that touches your face is absolutely fresh and clean. And there's no laundering. What a relief to escape from this repulsive work!

Kleenex is particularly valuable for children, who so easily contract nose and throat infections—and who are careless with handkerchiefs.

You'll soon find you can't do without these marvelous Kleenex Tissues. For removing face creams they have no equal. The absorbency of Kleenex is really necessary to blot embedded impurities of dirt and make-up from the pores.

These handy tissues

Try Kleenex for polishing spectacles. For manicuring. For applying medicines and bandaging minor wounds. Keep a package handy in the kitchen, bath and bedroom—and an extra package for the car. Kleenex is sold at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

Disease Germs Found in Handkerchiefs

include the dangerous Staphylococcus (pus germ), Pneumococcus, Streptococcus, and Catarrhalis. A handkerchief used only once was tested and found to contain 240,000 of these organisms. Used over and over, the number runs into millions. Any doctor will tell you the danger of carrying such germs about with you.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES

Dirty handkerchiefs are a menace to society!

"TAKE ME! TAKE ME!

The World Might Call It SIN ... But To Her It Was the Supreme Sacrifice of a Woman for her Child!

When he promised to love her forever—could she know that he would leave her and her child—friendless—at the mercy of the world? If you're not afraid of a heart throb be sure to see this magnificent performance. It will tug at your heart-strings and give you a thrill such as you have never before had in the theatre.

LOCAL GRID MACHINES SET

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Local Bowl's Capacity. Crowds Overestimated. Bevevino Knows Irish. Vance May Be Traded. Leonard Ban Wise. Student Manager's Job.

STADIUM'S SEATING LIMIT IS 67,387

WITH THE STADIUM due to be filled with football fans on two of the next three Saturdays, the first gathering to see Charley Jaskwhich and the other new Notre Dame players against Carnegie Tech, and the second turnout to watch Pitt playing the Army, the usual conflicting reports as to the size of the crowds may be expected. As is the case in all sport centers, the tendency among game goers here has been to overestimate the proportions of big assemblages.

Charley Jaskwhich

For instance, you've heard estimates that from 75,000 to 80,000 persons were present in the Oakland bowl on certain occasions. Don't believe it. And you may continue to discredit like assertions in the future. This for the very good reason that the Stadium won't hold any such number. A check-up of the big arena for the purpose of clearing away the public uncertainty as to just how many the place actually will accommodate discloses that its utmost limit in seating capacity is less than 68,000.

TO BE EXACT there are 67,387 seats in the Stadium all told including the temporary boxes and stands. The regular reserved seats in the concrete bowl total 59,934 and the regular box seats number 1,630. In addition there are 4,506 seats in the temporary stands, 948 in the temporary boxes, 150 in the press boxes and 225 in the two stands for the bands.

That's the actual seating capacity, taking in every seat in the Stadium, even those used by newspaper men, telegraph operators and musicians. It would be impossible to accommodate more without standing them around the bowl behind the last row of seats. The top attendance was 66,110 at the Pitt-Notre Dame game last year. The Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame meeting in 1928 was witnessed by 63,218. To avoid clogging the passageways and causing endless confusion, standing room is not usually sold. Most of those standing around the rim on occasions are persons who have elected to do so instead of occupying the seats for which their tickets called.

IF ANGELO BEVEVINO, little substitute Carnegie Tech quarterback, gets into the Carnegie-Notre Dame battle Saturday, he will have more friends and acquaintances than any other man on the field. It won't be necessary for Bevevino to be introduced to a soul, except the officials.

For he spent one year at Notre Dame, and was a member of the freshman squad there. Many of the present Irish stars were teammates of Angelo, and he can look over a group picture of the Notre Dame squad of some 90 men and name every one of them.

NATURALLY, THE LAD from Warren, Pa., is being asked countless questions these days as to the ability of this or that Irish player, his strong and weak points, and all of his peculiarities. Bevevino can sit by the hour telling stories of Knute Rockne, Joe Savoldi, Marty Brill, Frank Carideo and other great football figures of the past at Notre Dame. And, incidentally, there is an excellent chance that Angelo may see service against his former mates in Saturday's game, as he made a splendid impression by his handling of the Carnegie second team that scored the touchdown against Purdue last week.

Dazzy Vance

AMONG THE VETERAN members of the Brooklyn baseball club sent elsewhere for next season when Manager Max Carey begins to clean house and reconstruct his forces may be none other than Pitcher Dazzy Vance.

The Brooklyn owners are reported so keenly disappointed at Vance's showing this year while he was drawing a salary of $22,500 that they are determined to get rid of him, and Carey's statement that he is not satisfied with the Dodger pitching staff is taken to mean that Max is planning to use Dazzy in a trade.

IT IS BELIEVED that Carey's overtures to that end will be made to the Cubs, not only because Vance was one of the players involved in the six-cornered trade recently considered by the Brooklyn and Chicago clubs, but because the Bruins are one of the few clubs that could afford to pay Dazzy's fancy salary.

Another Brooklyn veteran who probably will not be retained is Dolf Luque. Jack Quinn is to be kept for relief work, so there will hardly be room for Luque. It wouldn't be easy to make a trade for the latter at almost 42. He is likely to be given his unconditional release unless some other club claims him through the waiver channel.

THE ACTION OF the State Athletic Commission in refusing Benny Leonard a license to box in Pennsylvania will be approved by all-right thinking fans as a step for the good of the game in this state and also for the good of Leonard himself, whose first two bouts in a come-back campaign were unsatisfactory.

To let Leonard appear in bouts against hand-picked opponents whom he would be certain to beat would only be fleecing the fans. To let him meet good men at the age of 35 a.d after seven years absence from the game would be allowing him to court serious injury. Far better to keep him out altogether.

THE HEROES OF the line and backfield and the coaches who impart gridiron lore appear frequently in the headlines through the football season, but few of the wildly cheering fans who rise and toss their hats when they see long runs or perfect tackles ever hear about the student manager. Hard working, long suffering, he is the unseen power behind the throne.

Sebastian C. Isabella

FOR INSTANCE, THE student managers are custodians of all equipment. They must prepare it for each player for practice and before each game, and must collect it and store it in lockers when the practice or game is over. At Duquesne all trip matters while the boys are en route are handled by the student manager. Arrangements before the squad leaves the campus are made by the graduate manager. And to qualify for this hard job, which brings no pay, only labor and curt words, ending in the senior year with a much prized letter, the student manager must participate as associate manager in all sports—football, basketball, boxing, track and tennis—and must be present at all practice sessions during this time. That is how he earns the senior managership and his letter.

By TOM BIRKS

With the town's firefighters hoping to eke out a victory over the guardians of law and order, sport lovers of the Tube City are expected to flock to Memorial Field, McKeesport, this evening to watch the annual gridiron battle between the McKeesport Police and the Fire Department.

This is their third clash. The first meeting found the teams deadlocked, 6-6, when the final whistle blew. Last year the Police went into the headlines by virtue of a 6-to-2 victory.

Tonight the Fire Department hopes to tie matters unless fate decrees otherwise. All fires have been declared taboo for the nonce.

As a real sporting gesture the civil departments are donating the entire receipts to the unemployed fund. This is a real sacrifice in that the annual game is the only means by which these two departments may bolster their benevolent fund.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

A crowd of 10,000 fans is expected to help in the good cause, for not only will they help the unemployed situation, but they will see a real gridiron battle. This is one chance the fans will have to see a copper tackled without having a jail sentence follow for the offender.

Members of the famous Olympic team of that city are coaching the rival teams. Capt. Joe Hopkins will lead the Police into action. It was the line plunging of Hopkins that carried the winning touchdown over last year.

Marsden, the fire laddies' fullback, is going to match his ground-gaining ability with that of Hopkins, but most of the balltoting for the Firemen will rest on the shoulders of Daughty.

The Rooneys of the West Penn Independent Gridiron Conference have signed Tony Uansa, former Pitt halfback, and George O'Brien, erstwhile St. Mary's star, for their game with the McKeesport Olympics Sunday.

IRISH ELEVEN LEAVES TODAY

He discredited the statement from Carnegie Tech that if Notre Dame scores early, the Tartan regulars will be benched and saved for next week's game with Pitt. He believes that Judge Wally Steffen jerked them against Purdue last week to have them ready for Notre Dame, and that he will have plenty of new stuff on hand Saturday.

JASKOWICH IMPROVES

Charley Jaskowich, who seems to have mastered his only fault, ball handling, was in with the regulars in yesterday's drill. He caught a hard pass from Marchy Schwartz last Saturday to score, and handled several punts in great style.

He is strong in the other departments, and may be able to keep Emmett Murphy, his rival, with the shock troops.

Plans were under way today for the student body to give them a sendoff tonight when they go on their first of three invasions in the East.

COURT CARD SET

Notre Dame's 1931-32 basketball schedule, pronounced the hardest in Irish history, was announced today by Coach George Keogan.

It includes 20 games, 13 of which will be played here against the best opposition in the Middle West and East. The schedule:

PRESIDENTS EN ROUTE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—A grueling practice that extended here Saturday was staged by Wash Jak's football squad yesterday as final preparation for the Temple combat at Philadelphia tomorrow. The Presidents left this morning for Philadelphia and will practice in Temple Stadium tonight.

TOMORROW: THE MAN WHO BOWLS TWO GAMES SIMULTANEOUSLY.

W. VA. CHARITY TILT UNLIKELY

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 29.—(AP)—West Virginia University might play a post-season football game for charity if a contest satisfactory to school officials is proposed.

Harry A. Stansbury, director of athletics of West Virginia University, believed university officials are willing to consider a post-season game, but added that so far the games proposed do not meet the conditions the school would require.

Although President John R. Turner has expressed disapproval of post-season games, Stansbury said he thought this objection might be waived, provided the opponent was one "with which we have established athletic relations or which we might approve for a place on our regular schedule, and one which would likewise offer substantial profit" for charity.

Any money raised through a post-season game likely would be used for the benefit of West Virginia's hungry and destitute.

Davis and Elkins and Marshall colleges have been proposed as opponents for the Mountaineers, but Stansbury said "these do not meet our conditions."

W. & J., GENEVA GAME OFF

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—Washington and Jefferson College will not meet Geneva College in a post season charity football game. This was the announcement here at conclusion of the fall meeting of the athletic council of the local college. No reason was given for the refusal to meet the Covenanters. Five of the seven members of the council attended the meeting.

Boxing and wrestling were not definitely adopted as major sports on the school calendar, but permission was granted to book four matches in each sport.

In regard to a charity football game, Graduate Manager W. G. Theurer stated that the council felt that discussion of a charity tilt at this time was somewhat premature.

COMISKEY LAID TO REST

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Notables of the baseball world escorted Charles A. Comiskey to his final resting place in Calvary Cemetery today.

Many leaders of the national pastime who watched the late White Sox owner raise from a player to one of the powers of the game, joined with the sorrowing throngs, which passed his bier at his South Side home yesterday.

Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball; John Heydler, president of the National League and Will Harridge, head of the American League, which Comiskey helped to organize, paid their respects and attended the services today. Most of the club owners in the American League, and some in the National, were present at the services in person or sent representatives.

The funeral, though simple, was one of the largest in Chicago's history. The body was removed from the Comiskey residence on the South Side at 9:30 a. m. and taken to St. Thomas the Apostle's Roman Catholic Church, where the final services were held.

LINWOOD DRILLS

The Linwood club will hold a practice session this evening at 7:30; all players are requested to report at that time.

CELTIC BOOTERS WIN

Drum, Bugle Corps To Drill at Tech, Irish Game

An added feature at the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame football game in the Stadium Saturday will be the appearance of the Green Trojans, crack drum and bugle corps of Robert G. Kocush Post 318, American Legion, of Greensburg. The corps of 60 men, led by George Hunter, formerly of Tarentum, will be seen in an eight-minute drill between halves.

Ripley Appears On Screen at Stanley

DREYFUSS NOT AFTER ROBBIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Wilbert Robinson, erstwhile manager of Brooklyn, after serving as its pilot since 1914, will not direct the destinies of the Pirates next season, according to Barney Dreyfuss, who is now in New York.

"Robbie has made no application to me and I have made no overtures to him," Dreyfuss said. "I am not thinking of a new manager at all now, nor do I expect to think of one until December 1, or later."

The Pirate owner refused to say whether he regarded the former Brooklyn leader favorably or otherwise as a possible successor to Jewel Ens.

ROBINSON GETS BONUS

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 29.—(INS)—Wilbert Robinson, deposed manager of the Brooklyn Club, today was in receipt of a $10,000 check from the club's directors, a bonus in recognition of his long and faithful service with the team.

Temple End Plays With Nose Broken

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—(INS)—Despite a broken nose, Len Gudd, giant end of Temple University's football team, will play against Washington and Jefferson here tomorrow night. A special mask has been constructed to protect Gudd's face.

Gudd, who is the best punter on the Temple eleven, sustained a broken nose in the game with the Haskell Indians last week.

BARTON MADE CULVER LEADER

CULVER, Ind., Oct. 29.—Gene Talmage Barton, 332 Woodland road, Edgeworth, has been selected football captain of Battery B, of Culver Military Academy. The selection is no small attainment since many of the varsity men are selected from the ranks of the company captains. Young Barton holds the rank of cadet lieutenant at the prep school. He is a member of the graduating class.

Gene Barton

Gene is a brother to Charles Robert, Jr., and John Phillips Barton, both of whom are also active in school activities. They are sons of C. R. Spang, vice president of the Spang, Chalfant Company, Pittsburgh.

DISARMAMENT WINS

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 29.—(AP)—H. F. Clarke's Disarmament, an outsider in the betting at 18 to 1 and carrying the light weight of 109 pounds, yesterday won the Cambridgeshire Stakes at a mile and a furlong from a short field which included three American-owned horses.

Wilson Boomed As Next Pilot For Phillies

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Jimmy Wilson, catcher of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, is being "boomed" as the next manager of the Philadelphia National League Club.

Speakers at a testimonial dinner last night, given by the Northeast Shrine Club, at Rackledge, praised Wilson highly, and all pleaded for his return to Philadelphia baseball.

DUKES, SKIBOS AND PANTHERS ON EDGE

By JESS CARVER

Starting lineups for the three ball games confronting this city's college gridiron varsities over the week-end are more or less definitely set. The Dukes open hostilities tomorrow night, taking on the surprisingly formidable Catholic University eleven under the lights at Forbes Field. Saturday, in the Pitt Stadium, Tech engages in its annual tussle with Notre Dame, while Pitt makes its first invasion of State College in years for a setto with Penn State.

Bob Snyder

At the conclusion of Carnegie's peppery workout last evening, Bob Waddell said he'd start the same combination that faced Purdue and that held the Boilermakers in check for three periods against the Irish. Up on the hill, where Pitt holds forth, Jock Sutherland gave it out that he was just about set on starting his second eleven against State.

Sutherland is expecting the Lions to throw a lot of forward passes in the direction of his team Saturday, with young Bob Snyder, State's clever little quarterback doing most of the heaving. If it isn't Snyder, it will be Coon, with Capt. George Tarbell helping out.

DUKE LINEUP SET

Joe Bach, at Duquesne, where he has been handling the reins during the illness of Elmer Layden and has made several changes in the line, also has a pretty good idea the sort of a starting eleven he'll toss against the Cardinals.

Only two of the starting linemen at Tech have battled against Notre Dame previously. Don Fletcher and Duke Ducanis were in the game at South Bend a year ago. Hooks Sample broke into the lineup late in the game, but the rest of the boys have yet to get their baptism of Notre Dame fire. What an outlook!

Waddell is tickled pink with the form Stu Deuger has been showing. He's getting to be a forward-passing fool. Besides, the painful ankle injury he received in the Purdue game has healed very nicely. He ought to be hot by Saturday.

CARDS DUE TODAY

The Catholic University squad, 31 strong, will arrive in town this evening, and if the weather is propitious (I love that word!) they'll drill at Forbes Field this evening. The squad will be quartered at the Fairfax Hotel.

When the Irish get in tomorrow morning, they'll establish headquarters at the P. A. A. and drill in the Stadium in the afternoon.

The game tomorrow with the Cardinals will wind up Duquesne's campaign of night games. So far, they've won two games, lost one and been tied twice. They need this one tomorrow, but Dutch Bergman, the chief mentor of the Cardinals, has his club clicking, sports a pip of an aerial attack and a rugged and heavy line.

Carnegie Tech Plebes and Kiski Prep will play their annual game on the Kiski gridiron, Saltsburg, Pa., at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Tipoff

The Wash-Jeff football coaches, Pete Henry and Bill Amos, have completely revamped their offense and starting lineup for the game in Philly tomorrow night with Temple. The monsters were considerably blown up, to say the least, after last week's defeat at the hands of Lafayette, and in Monday's workout, ditched no less than six regulars.

The tough part of the Alleghany schedule lies just ahead of Maxie Chess's Raiders. Tom's team is the only undefeated outfit in the tri-state section besides Davis-Elkins. This week, Grove City is to be battled, with St. Bonaventure, West Virginia Wesleyan and Geneva in the offing. What an offing!

Crum, before the campaign opened, was very much worried over the condition of his reserves. He was so put about that he was missing 40 foot putts, which he usually can hear him tell it, sinks easily. But the Gaiters have been fortunate; they haven't had any serious crackups and right now the Alleghany squad is extremely formidable.

Howard Harpster at Geneva, was so hard up for backs after the Boston U. game that he was forced to reach into the line and dragged out a big fellow to play right halfback. He smashed off Bain Cooper, the All-East tackle, Monday and ran through like a champion, came near getting away for a touchdown run on the kickoff against Grove City and now is a fixture in the Covenanter backfield.

Coe (C. B.) Rose leads his West Virginia Wesleyan Bobcats out of Buckhannon tonight and takes 'em down to Annapolis, where Saturday, they'll stack up against the Navy. It will afford Cliff Battles his second opportunity to run against major opposition. He figures to go better against the Middies than he did against the powerful N. Y. U. varsity early in the fall.

Dick Harlow, who wrote Elmer Layden, congratulating him on the way his team played against the Green Terrors here last Friday night, spoke highly of Elmer's big fullback, Al Zanaglio, in the press box at the Notre Dame-Pitt game on Saturday. Zanaglio was the gent who stood squarely between the Pirates and a good lacing, his fine boots keeping the Terrors at bay throughout the evening.

They tell this one on Marty Brill, former Notre Dame star, now backfield coach at Columbia, under Lou Little. Brill and Little were standing on the field talking the day practice opened at Columbia, and finally, pointing to a group of players tossing and kicking a ball around, Brill remarked:

"Well, Lou, I guess I'll be getting to work. I suppose those greeners are my backfield candidates, eh?"

MAX CAREY TO FEATURE DARING ATTACK

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

P. I. A. A. Creates Eleventh District for Basketball Championship Race

ROBINS' PILOT MAY EMULATE 1921 BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Max Carey, former Pirate captain who recently was named to lead the Brooklyn club, plans to inculcate into the Flatbush flock a new system of play, which he contends, is almost as sure to "click" as Knute Rockne's "perfect play." During the world series in St. Louis, Max touched on his plan with this writer, although he did not divulge in detail the many angles involved in the "system." Carey's plan, nevertheless, is so smart it is apt to revolutionize the sport in the Flatbush, where head-up baseball is hardly the daily menu for the wild-eyed fan.

Scoops being one of the most daring as well as one of the most efficient baserunners the game has produced he probably will stress this phase of play in his new "system," but the brilliant outfielder also will include all the major movements of the game in his plan. The batters apparently will be called upon to show as much smartness as the baserunners. Scoops evidently thinks as many other smart fellows do, that practically every pitcher will serve you the ball you want to sock if you play the game properly and his athletes will have to play out these strings.

DEMANDS UNEXPECTED

On the paths Max was prone to toss aside all conventions, such as stealing with two out. He would swipe second with none out and third with one out much after the fashion of Pepper Martin in the recent world series. Martin's unexpected and daring dashes turned the Athletics upside down, and this is the sort of stuff that Carey loves. He made a good baserunner out of P. Waner in 1930 as he coached the Buccos, and he converted Babe Herman into a fine base-stealer, when he was in Brooklyn before. Certain baseball men think Carey may lean a bit too far towards theories, but Scoops says he is practical in the matter.

"I have a system and it cannot fail," said Carey. And then he went back to the astonishing Pirate club of 10 years ago and spoke in this manner:

"You will recall that team, of course, I don't know how you rated the 1921 combination, but before the season started, that club, on paper, to me seemed to be a seventh-place combination. And it was not a whole lot better than that if things had been carried out in the regular way.

PLAYERS AFTER DOUGH

"Before the season started, we talked with Barney Dreyfuss regarding a profit-sharing plan which was put in effect that year. The players then became imbibed with the idea of winning for the monetary reward involved as well as for the glory.

"Perhaps you do not know it, but that famous quartet composed of Whitted, Grimm, Maranville and Tierney was not an accident by any means. A big concern with us was to draw a lot of people that year and the quartet was formed with this thought in view."

Anybody close to that colorful array does not need to dive into the records to point out that the 1921 club was one of the biggest money-makers Pittsburgh ever had. Thousands of fans, in other cities as well as Pittsburgh, would hie themselves to the parks early to hear the quartet and to watch the antics of the comedians.

The infield workout, in itself, was a work of art. Grimm and Maranville had the fans on the edge of their seats by the fast handling of the ball. Then the quartet would break out in harmony, and sometimes discords and Chief Moses Yellow Horse generally would be around with a wise crack or some appealing gesture to top off the show.

SINGING PIRATES

The singing Pirates went over in a big way at the Polo Grounds where they had to respond to many encores, and they were sure of a big hand at Ebbets Field.

At Forbes Field the Pirates of that vintage played to 700,000 fans or better, and when you compare this with the less than 400,000 who went through the gates this and last year, you will appreciate the drawing capacity of the club. Money, however, was freer at that time.

GIZZY, THOMAS M'KEESPORT VICTORS

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, had little trouble disposing of Harry Forbes, Indianapolis veteran, in the final bout of a double windup last night at the Palisades, McKeesport. The Donora boy, taking seven of the 10 rounds, with one other being even, gave Forbes an artistic trimming, but his punches carried little power and the Hoosier fighter was never in danger of being knocked out.

During the early rounds, Gizzy did not display his usual speed, but toward the end he went into high gear and shot rights and lefts at Forbes from all directions, catching Harry mostly in the mid-section.

THOMAS STOPS PUCCI

Forbes, by tying up Gizzy in the clinches and countering nicely, carried the second and third rounds, but in every other session except the ninth, which was even, he was on the short end. Gizzy weighed 135½, against 132 for Forbes.

Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, punched Eddie Pucci, of Canton, all around the ring in the first of the two scheduled 10-round bouts and finally won on a technical knockout in the eighth round. Referee Robinson stopping the fight to save the Ohioan from unnecessary punishment.

Thomas won all the way and as early as the first round had Pucci's nose bleeding. He weakened the Canton boy with hard stomach blows and scored a knockdown for a count of nine in the sixth round.

Several times Referee Robinson was forced to warn Thomas about hitting low, but the punches that did find their way below the belt apparently did not hurt Pucci to any degree. Thomas weighed 119¾, Pucci 121.

SUSNELL DEFEATED

Jimmy Vaughn, of St. Michaels, Pa., defeated Nick Susnell, of Rochester, in the second bout of six rounds. He had the edge in the second, third, fourth and sixth sessions, with Susnell carrying the first and fifth. Susnell weighed 151½, against 151 for Vaughn.

In the opener, Sharkey Lesko, of McKeesport, knocked out George Schile, local boy, in the third round with a hard right to the stomach. Both weighed 137.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Young Rudy vs. Paul Sigel, 10 rounds, East Liverpool, O.

FRANK SUTTON IN GODFREY'S CORNER

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

News from Philadelphia that the State Athletic Commission had refused to reinstate George Godfrey, the Black Shadow, of Leiperville, was of special interest to at least one Pittsburgher, Frank Sutton, Negro hotelman, who has just returned from a five-week tour through Canada and New England as secretary and trainer of Godfrey.

Frank Sutton

Sutton, who gained wide fame as a close friend of Jack Johnson during the latter's heyday is getting back to the old grind after 20 years in an effort to help Godfrey get somewhere. Jimmy Dougherty, of Leiperville, Pa., is Godfrey's manager.

George has found himself unwelcome almost everywhere as a fighter since his bout with Primo Carnera in Philadelphia last year, and as a result has had to turn wrestler. He engaged in 12 mat bouts and one ring match while Sutton was with him. Now he is preparing to go to California for a boxing bout and he had hoped to box in Philadelphia soon, but the commission dashed this prospect when it turned thumbs down on his plea for reinstatement yesterday.

According to Sutton, George has boxing bouts in the making in Atlantic City and Mexico and Cuba.

Sport Vignettes

Yale's gymnasium director sees a decline in football interest which will enable other college sports to sell themselves to the public. . . . What, for instance—tumbling and flying rings and dumbbell tossing? . . . Southern Methodist football player got himself on the hospital list without even going upon the field. . . . Twisted his shoulder pulling a jersey over his head. . . . What we need in this game is men of iron, or men who do not wear jerseys. . . . Weren't you surprised to read in the papers that the fans booed Benny Leonard's "knockout" victory over Victorio Livan in Boston?

Maybe some birds think they're going to boost the gate receipts at State College Saturday by announcing that Pitt will start its second team against Penn State? . . . Thought we have been reading in the papers the last few days that Pitt lost to Notre Dame because the Irish had two teams and Pitt didn't. . . . All three of New York's big college elevens, N. Y. U., Columbia and Fordham, remain unbeaten, although Fordham has been tied at 6-6 by Holy Cross. . . . Michigan is cutting its football prices, which is something all of the colleges will have to come to sooner or later, if not before that. . . . About the only man not yet named as the likely new manager of the Pirates is Johnny Freund, and he hasn't applied for the job.

Between Rounds

The boxing card arranged for Motor Square Garden next Monday night is the cheapest on record in that arena for a professional show, consisting of two 10-round bouts, an eight-rounder, a six-rounder and a four-rounder, or 36 rounds in all. The main bill includes a 10-round windup, an eight-round semi-final and two six-round preliminaries, or a total of 26 rounds. Mose Brown, local bantamweight, hooks Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland, and Sammy Dorfman, of New York, meets Hal Chiffon, fine lightweight, in the two 10-rounders. Middle.

Young Rudy and Marty McHale will box the 10-round main bout at McKeesport next Thursday night.

PLAN EXPECTED TO HELP WEST PENN GROUP

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 29 (AP).—The 1932 basketball championship of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association will be conducted on an 11-district plan.

The creation of a new district from part of the old district No. 1 has resulted in a revision of the title elimination series and an earlier drawing for the inter-district series. The eleventh district comprises schools in Carbon, Lehigh, Monroe, Northampton and Schuylkill, while the first district includes Bucks, Chester, Delaware and Montgomery counties.

A similar step was taken in behalf of district No. 7 which was conceded a bye in the inter-district round. This group is composed of about 100 schools in the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League outside of the city of Pittsburgh.

The dates of the inter-district games have been left for decision at the December or February meetings of the control board, but the district winners have been paired as follows: East Nos. 1 and 11, 2 and 4, 3 and 5, west, 6 and 8, 9 and 10, 11-bye.

To decide the eastern regional champion the winner of the 1-11 game will play the winner of the 3-5 contest, and the survivor will oppose the winner of the 2-4 game.

In the west the winner in the 6-8 game will play the winner of district No. 7 and the survivor will oppose the winner of the 9-10 contest. The state title will be decided as heretofore by a single game between the regional champions.

City League high school football teams have found their excursions into foreign territory unusually disastrous this season, judging from the records of games they have played with non-league rivals.

Local eleven have played no less than 14 games with non-league rivals so far this season and the best they can show for their efforts are two victories, one tie and 11 defeats. In the 14 games, the Pittsburgh teams have been held to 31 points while the opposing clubs have scored 213 points.

SCHENLEY BOWS TWICE

Schenley, one of the favorites to win the Section I title dropped a 6-0 decision to Norwin and a 47-0 battle to Steubenville.

Westinghouse took two drubbings on its invasion of Greensburg and Wilkinsburg. Greensburg defeated Burton's boys 39-0, while Wilkinsburg won by a 35-0 count.

Oliver was beaten by Johnstown, 13-7 and Perry lost to the same club, 6-0.

Westinghouse meets Schenley in the feature attraction in the City League tomorrow afternoon. The game will be played at Malone Field. In the other Section I game, South is the attraction at Allderdice.

LEADERS IN ACTION

The two leaders in Section II also are slated for action. Carrick plays at Perry, while South Hills opposes Allegheny at the Oliver Field.

Crafton will oppose Langley in a non-league game at Langley Field.

Peabody faces two tough non-league rivals in its next two games. Saturday, Coach Myers takes his East Enders to Donora to meet the conquerors of Charleroi, while the week following Norwin will be invaded.

Fight Results

At Newark, O.—Joey McMurtry defeated Charley White, 10 rounds; Frank Moore defeated Homer Rowan, 10 rounds; Sam Berger defeated Jack Hart, 10 rounds; Al Wiltse defeated Jack McGee, 2 rounds.

SHERIDAN'S COMPANY FIRES SALUTE OVER THE GRAVE

Touching tribute was paid the memory of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Army football star, fatally hurt in the game with Yale at New Haven last Saturday, when he was laid in his final resting place among the heroes at West Point, N. Y., yesterday.

P. DEL VECCHIO BURNS PRO CHAMP

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Handing a punch on the nose to the jinx that is said to trail medalists in golf tourneys, Perry Del Vecchio, pro-greenkeeper at the Greensburg Country Club yesterday literally swamped his assistant, Wayne Tobias, in winning the 36-hole final of the first annual Tri-State P. G. A. match play championship by a margin of 9 and 7, at the Highland Country Club.

Beginning with his one-under-par 70, which gave him medal honors, Del Vecchio averaged sub-par golf for the remainder of the competition. Yesterday morning he had a 72 to be one over par, but on the last 11 holes he was three under, making him 2 up on the Old Man for the 29 holes. Perry led his younger, less experienced foe 4 up at nine holes, 3 up at 18, and 8 up at 27 holes.

He won a gold medal, $150 prize money and a wealth of glory. It was the last, and one of the finest tourneys of the 1931 major golf season here.

Specials to Bring Tech Fans Here

The heaviest influx of visitors from points in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania for a football game in Pittsburgh is indicated for the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame battle at the Stadium Saturday, it was indicated today.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is running special trains from Akron, making stops at Youngstown and New Castle, and from Cleveland, stopping at Hudson, O., and points along the route. Special cars also are being run from Erie, as well as Buffalo. It was estimated today approximately 2,000 fans will avail themselves of these facilities alone.

The W. & J. football squad left from Pennsylvania Station this morning for Overbrook, Pa., for its game with Temple University tomorrow night. The party will arrive back on Saturday morning in time to witness the Tech-Irish tilt.

HAWTHORNE MUTUELS

BURNS BLANKS MACKS, 14-0

A powerful driving backfield and a fast-charging line functioned to perfection at Parnassus High School field last night with the result that the Dan Burns West Penn Conference gridders defeated McChesneytown, 14 to 0, before a large crowd.

A heavy fog spoiled the game, the safety men having a tough time catching and running back punts.

Burns scored in the second and fourth periods. The first was a lucky break, the officials ruling that Berkman was tripped trying to complete a forward pass. Burns got the ball in the danger zone and pushed it over.

In the last quarter, Joe Morbito plunged over for the second touchdown. Temario kicked the extra point both times.

McChesneytown played a fine game, one march for 70 yards, by means of intricate plays, giving the crowd a thrill. The Macks probably gained more yardage than any team opposing the Firemen this season. The lineup:

Burns (14)		McChesneytown (0)
Barbaro	L. E.	Ulrich
Dudonis	L. T.	Tyack
Wilmoski	L. G.	Agnes
Gianakos	C.	Hoag
Temario	R. G.	Rice
Harrington	R. T.	Abatte
Berkman	R. E.	Gill
Peterson	Q.	McClintock
Ford	L. H.	Watkins
Rudner	R. H.	Bevan
Morbito	F.	Johnstone

DUKES LEFT OFF TITANS' FLOOR SCHEDULE

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—Sixteen games are on the regular schedule for the Westminster College basketball team for the 1932 season, Graduate Manager Andy McDonald has announced. In addition to these contests, it is likely that seven or eight pre-season games will be played by the Titans.

In addition to district rivals, John Carroll University, of Cleveland, will be met in home-and-home contests on the court this winter. The regular season opens January 2 with Youngstown Y. M. C. A. College at Youngstown, and closes with Grove City at home March 8. The schedule follows:

January 2, Youngstown Y at Youngstown; 9, Geneva at Grove City; 12, Grove City at Grove City; 16, Youngstown Y at home; January 19, Thiel at Greenville; January 22, Thiel at Carnegie; 23, Penn State at Cleveland; 27, January 30, Waynesburg at Waynesburg.

February 6, Waynesburg at home; February 9, Allegheny at home; February 13, John Carroll at home; February 16, Bethany at home; February 20, Thiel at home; February 22, Geneva at Beaver Falls; February 25, Allegheny at Meadville; March 3, Bethany at home; March 5, Grove City at home.

For the second year in succession the Dukes and Westminster will not meet on the basketball court. Last year, through a mix-up in the Westminster card, what had been an annual and attractive home and home series was discontinued, and the schools failed to reach an agreement for the coming campaign.

Curry-Shannon Soccer Game Off

Owing to the fact that a West Penn cup game is scheduled for the Castle Shannon Field, the West Penn Soccer Association has forced a cancellation of the battle between the Castle Shannon Juniors and Curry, scheduled for Saturday.

The German Sport-Duquesne Republican battle at Sullivan Field will be handled by Andy Verish. George Brannigan will handle the Bridgeville-Gallatin game on Sunday. The Morrys will play a cup game with the Hoovers at Grove Station Saturday.

Purple Grid Star Back in Hospital

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Misfortune continued today to pursue Reb Russell, Northwestern's husky fullback. Injured in the early part of the season, Russell was just beginning to stage his comeback with the Purple squad when a stomach ailment attacked him yesterday and he was sent back to the hospital. Physicians said it was unlikely he will be able to appear in the game with Illinois Saturday.

St. Francis Mass For Sheridan Today

LORETTO, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Solemn requiem high mass will be said at St. Francis College here today for Richard Sheridan, Army football player who was fatally hurt in a game last Saturday. The celebrant will be the Rev. Alfred I. Dove, and the mass will be said at the request of the varsity "F" Club of the school.

Negro Grid Teams Received by Walker

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(INS.)—Mayor James J. Walker today will hold a reception at City Hall for the unbeaten football teams of Lincoln University and Hampton Institute, which meet here Saturday for the championship of the Negro Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Stengel May Sign To Assist Carey

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Rally, Sag | Local Market Narrow

STOCK MARKET RALLIES, BUT DIPS AGAIN

Much of Mid-Session Gain Lost and Losses of Point Or so Appear in Some

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—The stock market made a rather listless effort to rally during the middle of the session today, but lapsed into confused and narrow fluctuations later.

Omission of Jersey Central's dividend halted an upturn in the rails. Steels were well supported. The bond market was rather feeble, particularly the German issues. The security markets generally were dull. Good support for wheat was again encouraging.

The share market got off to a poor start, with a slump in the tobacco shares spreading to other sections of the list. Toward noon, however, losses of a point or so were regained in the steels, and the rails pushed up rather strongly, several issues getting up 2 points or so. Much of the upturn was lost later and declines of a point or so appeared in American Can, Union Pacific, Drug, Lambert, Underwood Elliott, Baltimore and Ohio and General Foods. American Tobacco B lost 4 points, then regained half. Liggett & Myers B lost 2.

The upturn in the rail shares was accompanied by gossip in brokerage circles over the prospect of the carriers reaching agreement with their employes for a temporary wage reduction. There is some expectation in Wall street that this matter may be brought to a head after the railway executives' meeting in Chicago early next month.

The improvement in the wheat market has also been regarded as a bullish factor in the rails.

Jersey Central, having already paid $8 in dividends this year, took no further action at its meeting today. That carrier has been on a regular dividend basis of 2 quarterly to which had been added semi-annual extras of $2, making $12 annually. The road is controlled by Reading, which in turn is virtually controlled by Baltimore and Ohio.

The American Tobacco shares backed up on news that only the regular quarterly dividends of $1.25 been ordered.

Bethlehem Steel touched a new low in the early trading, but later stiffened. There has been some expectation in Wall street of omission of the dividend at the directors' meeting late today, but payment of common dividends from surplus by United States Steel has caused some hope that Bethlehem would do likewise.

The money market was easy, with call loans outside at 2 per cent and federal funds plentiful. There was no indication of an increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate to 4 from 3½ per cent, although some bankers would not be surprised to see it at the higher level within a few weeks.

WHEAT RALLIES BRISKLY

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Grains declined early today under fairly heavy selling influenced somewhat by forecasts of enlarged wheat exports from Argentina. Black Sea shipments also were larger than a year ago. Starting ¼ to ¾c off, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c lower and subsequently sagged further.

Predictions of augmented shipments of wheat from Argentina proved correct, this week's total being 1,617,000 bushels, compared with 1,045,000 the week previous and 725,000 a year ago. Black Sea wheat exports were 4,384,000 bushels, against 3,648,000 at this time last year, although materially less than last week. Brisk rallies, however, ensued on assertions that North American wheat export business overnight was of liberal volume.

Lets Have a Good Cry And Have It Over

By B. C. FORBES

AN ARRAY of inspiring facts concerning this country's possessions and blessings was presented in this column yesterday, captioned, "Lest We Forget."

A well known industrial counsel, C. F. Knoeppel, sends the suggestion:

B. C. Forbes

"Let's have a good cry; then begin the task of thinking straight and courageously."

The idea has a timely appeal.

HE WRITES:

On all sides you hear business men wailing:

"Business is rotten; collections are bad; we're losing heavily on our material contracts; sales are falling off sharply; our banks won't help us like they did in the past; we're getting deeper and deeper in red; we are working only half time and have already cut wages and salaries. Where is it all going to end?"

The upstanding, up-and-at-them business men of 1923-1929, who patted themselves on the back for their genius, shrewdness, ability and money-making talents, are now crawling under a blanket of "self-induced mental depression"—the real cause of the business depression.

The resulting fog is so thick that we are milling around like cattle, and so scattered we can't hear the bell-cow.

Our eyes are so completely covered with a deep blue film that when we look at the sun we think it is the cold, bleak moon.

THE BEST antidote that I know of for all of us—right here and now—is to have a good cry—a long, loud, soul-touching "sob-fest."

The only factory working 24 hours a day seven days a week is the "rumor" factory yielding plenty of orders to the "red ink" factories.

IF WE KEEP listening to the "whispering campaign" and pay attention to those who have inside "tips" (?) that "XYZ" stock (which was 200 in 1929) will end up in the 20's, about all that will be left for us to do will be to call in the undertaker and bury the last mortal remains of "Mr. American Business," who died of that strange malady (which he brought on himself by self-hypnosis) called "blue-funkitis."

Then let's inscribe this epitaph:

"Here lies one who was prematurely interred.
Because his progress was temporarily deterred."

WHAT HAS BECOME of the much-vaunted courage of American business men? What was it that put "wishbones" where "backbones" are usually found? Have our brains, instead of our arteries, suddenly become hardened?

Has anyone stolen any of our money? Have our shops and machines been dynamited? Have our mines been flooded? Has fire destroyed our forests? Have our trains stopped running? Have our materials suddenly become useless?

Are we threatened with wars and possible invasion? Have our workers suddenly been stricken with cramps, charliehorse, color blindness, palsy and apoplexy? Have the needs and wants of our 125,000,000 men, women and kiddies suddenly evaporated?

Come on, you pessimists, let's cry!

THEN WHEN YOU wipe your eyes and start to smile (as people usually do after turning on the optical waterworks), you can better appreciate that we have everything now that we had before this depression appeared — barring one single thing: moral courage.

We're doing a lot of "beefing" because of short sales on the stock market; yet here we are as a people deliberately, if unconsciously, slaughtering values because we are selling our own country short. We are doing this because we "think" more things are wrong than right—which isn't so.

Edward Bok once said that it is not money but thoughts that rule the world.

WE LACK NOTHING that is material; not a single thing essential to prosperity and business success has been lost. It's just our lack of straight, clear, clean, two-fisted "thinking" about the fundamental soundness of this great country and its marvelous institutions.

All we need is a change in thinking, a re-dedication to the spiritual realities which guided those who founded this republic—the greatest nation in time's recorded history; who went through hardships, strife, difficulties, suffering, and even war, guided by one thing: moral fortitude.

So, let us, their none too worthy successors, have a good cry; then begin the task of thinking straight and courageously.

MELVILLE SHOE CHAIN FIGHTING TRADE TREND

50 New McAn Stores Planned By Spring; Old Quarters Remodeled; Sales Gain

By MERRYLL RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Resourceful, adaptable, scientific management does not confine its operations to fair weather conditions. It has the will and the capacity to buck the trend and fight adverse circumstances.

As for the near term outlook Mr. Melville, in discussing his plans told me:

"We intend to expand our Thom McAn chain by 25 or 30 stores by the first of the year, and before spring are hopeful that desirable locations will have been secured for another 25. This is in addition to work now being carried on of remodeling, enlarging and otherwise changing over stores to conform with changing conditions in the communities they operate in. To date about 75 stores have been thus remodeled in the interest of more efficient merchandising."

In relating how he had made the best of unfavorable business trends, Mr. Melville added:

"On November 1, 1930, all merchandise in our John Ward, Rival and Thom McAn chains, now numbering 478 units, was reduced in price 10 per cent. Subsequently, other price adjustments were put into effect in the first named chain. These reductions brought a 300,000-pair sales increase for the first nine months of 1931, as against the like months of 1930. In terms of employment this pair-age increase meant that approximately 40,000 extra days' work were created for shoe operatives while our lowered prices benefited customers in the amount of nearly $2,800,000. Meanwhile employment in the stores remained at or near the level of a year ago with no wage cuts.

LOWER SELLING COSTS

"Other things upon which we have concentrated—still are concentrating upon, in fact—are better methods of controlling stock, increasing turnover and the standardizing and planning of store equipment, studies which have resulted in substantially lower selling costs during 1931. So also in the warehousing end. The completion of our new building in Worcester, Mass., one of the largest shoe warehouses in the world, in the fall of 1930, more than doubled our storage and shipping facilities, in addition to bringing about many efficiencies in regulating the flow of merchandise to our stores. Still another factor has been more aggressive advertising in the 217 cities and towns in which we operate."

Instead of passively waiting for business to turn, Mr. Melville is seeking actively to influence the course of business charts. He said:

"Perhaps I should make clear that we are hopeful of no sensational upturn in the country's retail trade. On the contrary we expect business to continue at present or only slightly higher levels for some time to come, improving in about the ratio of restored public confidence. Therefore we are prepared to continue selling our merchandise at present or even lower prices, with profit both to ourselves and to our customers."

THE LOVE TRAP -:- Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Mary Meets Jealousy, Insult

Instinctively his arms went around her.

CHAPTER VII

Mary was stirred with the acute realization that she had power over Steve Moore. She could tell it by the way he looked, by the tone of his voice. Oh, he adopted a masculine superiority, but every little feminine instinct, each as sensitive as an unseen dictaphone, told her that he had come under her spell. At first she hadn't realized it, she had been thinking of the exquisite poignancy of her own feelings. She was excited, her emotions were deliciously unstable. Never before had any man made her feel that way . . . it was like a rush of springtime in the blood . . .

"I'm going to take you home right now," he repeated with more conscience than purpose in his voice.

It was satisfying to sense victory. It actually amounted to that. It was even pleasant to sense Steve's distress at her connection with Buck Landers. More, it gave her a small perverse pleasure to show a touch of coldness.

"Very well, let's go," she said. "I'm a little tired anyway."

His reaction was almost audible. "It's all over; she's gone back into her shell!" he seemed to be thinking. "She sees that I fell too easy, and now she's tired."

He said aloud: "Yes, home's the best place for you. I've been talking too much. I'm sorry."

"Not at all," she said politely.

But her momentary pretense of aloofness spent itself. She was overtaxed with feeling; her reserve forces were being consumed.

SENSE OF MENACE

Steve Moore was afraid of something, and she shared his fear. A subtle fear, like a faint, rare poison. It was beginning to spread through them, stifling emotion, paralyzing passion. Moments of apprehension shot through with quivers of fugitive happiness—revolving sensations, conflicting around the heart.

In the taxi going home, it was Steve who isolated the reason of their disharmony and put it into words. He spoke almost with difficulty.

A realization came to Mary like a sharp icicle of truth that Steve had dragged something from her subconsciousness into the light. Deep down there had, from the beginning, been a buried sense of menace. Always, remotely, she had felt, with a tiny dread, the cold danger behind the unheated eyes of Buck Landers.

"Things oughtn't be that way," Steve blurted.

Their depression grew—a piling up of balked impulses. Mary felt the invasion of vague, sinister thoughts. Was it really fear of Buck Landers that had risen and finally poisoned her evening with Steve?

"You're not happy and—just for your own sake—I'd like to help you," he said gently. "But it's a darn delicate situation for me—"

She nodded.

"Is it awfully hard for you to tell Buck the truth—that you don't want to marry him?"

"Yes."

"I ought to be able to help you out of all this," he said deliberately.

"I got into it alone," she returned. "I ought to be able to handle it myself without setting you against Mr. Landers."

THROWN TOGETHER

"I suppose Buck has his right to happiness, but so have you. You're young and you're sweet. You'll never be happy if you start off on the wrong foot. Weren't you ever in love with a fellow your own age?"

"I never really loved any fellow."

Suddenly there was a lurch of the taxi. It required no more than that, a sharp swish and a skid to avoid an accident, to substitute fact for conversation—to expose the hollowness of mere words. The momentum threw them together, the soft solidity of her body was swept against him—into his arms. Against her was the rough fabric of his coat; instinctively, automatically, his arms were around her.

There was another sweep of the machine as the driver spun the wheel for safety; in a moment the taxi had righted itself, and was speeding away. But there was a force, stronger than loyalty or propriety or fear, still compressing them together. They were in a corner of the back seat, secluded in motion, overpowered by an upsurge of feeling . . . powerful . . . inevitable . . .

How could their faces, their lips, be so close together without kissing? Neither took the initiative. At first their lips merely brushed but, at once, there was a fierce intensity. Mary slipped into his arms, surrendered breathlessly to the pressure of his embrace. For the first time she knew, physically, the mighty rush of feeling that blotted out all the rest of everything. Her face lifted. Steve was looking at her, youthful madness in his eyes, and back of it all were pangs of vague regret. Was this a trust betrayed?

"Maybe this is the answer to the whole business. I couldn't help what we did," he said softly. "If it could be like this forever . . . with the world shut out . . ."

BOTH BEWILDERED

He moved to kiss her again, but Mary ran her hand through his hair and pushed his head back—prolonged the delay, yet she did not deny him. Her heart was expanding, melting, but obscurely an inner voice was warning her . . . to be sure . . . to be sure.

Did love make itself known by such bewildering, golden warmth of strong desires and satisfactions? A vast, gentle sweetness for Steve Moore was spreading in her breast—but this partook in no degree of wickedness. It was tender, mellow as moonlight. She thought not of herself, but of Steve . . . he was only a boy trying to cope with the beginning of life . . .

She wondered if this could be love—or mere tenderness? It was a million miles away from any feeling she could hold for Buck Landers or anyone else. A glamor, soft and impalpable, was around them like an intoxicating aura. Banishing thought, she yielded herself into the arms that were drawing her closer. Their lips met and clung together in a strange, throbbing dream while the wind slept.

"Mary darling, Mary darling, what are we going to do?" Steve held her a little apart and searched the blue magnetic pools of her eyes. "Something has happened to us—I didn't dream—I swear I did nothing to bring it about! How can I feel this way and give you up? It's as though we were the last two people on earth. Together—just the two of us! Are we really alone in the world, Mary, or is this just some kind of a dream?"

His eyes were shining with a bewildering glow as though he beheld visions. Her own imagination teemed with a contagious fervor, her pulse throbbed wildly. From somewhere in the sky there was the bursting shower of a thousand dazzling stars.

"What is it all about, Steve?" she implored him in a choked voice.

PLEASURE VANISHES

She sensed him as a bewildering dream-figure come to life out of her girlish imagination . . . He had materialized out of the thin iridescent fabric of another world.

Again he held her close and a trembling restfulness crept exquisitely through her soothed being.

"I'm a dog!"

With a shock, like the jar of a blow, she came back to reality . . . she had been necking . . . in a taxicab . . .

"How can I do a thing like that behind Buck's back!" he said hoarsely. "He trusted me with you. You couldn't help it—you're all unstrung and miserable. I can not get any place starting off like a rotten bounder!"

Steve's outburst of conscience might have been no more than a sharp reaction from the ecstasy of his contact with Mary, but its immediate effect was to make them both desperately unhappy. All pleasure vanished out of the taxi window and they rode to her rooming house, each absorbed now in secret uncertainty. Puzzled and low-ebbed, she stepped out of the taxi, and he went up with her to her door. His features looked indistinct, he seemed blurred, unreal.

"Well, good night, Steve," she said briefly.

"It might be best for me not to see you any more—alone," he said mournfully. "Not till Buck gets back anyway."

MARY HUMILIATED

He nodded, and then abruptly went down the street; he looked back, smiled faintly and waved his hand for an instant and went on.

She walked up the dim-lit stairs to her tiny room. She surveyed the four narrow walls papered in sage green with stripes of buff. There was a battered dresser with a scrofulous mirror, a loose wicker chair, a small iron bed. The odor of the place was stale, dry.

Mary stared in the dim glass at her own joyless face, at last she sank into bed. A sickness of the heart was like a leaden pall over her still small form under the sheet. Her eyes, her face were wet with silent weeping. Had he thought she was cheap—so free and easy to caress? She shouldn't have poured out her story to him; did he think she had worn her heart on her sleeve? If so, he certainly had declined it.

Another thing—he was probably used to wealthy, self-confident girls who didn't go around bidding for pity from a man. Oh, she was not sparing herself! The first time she had been with him she had virtually thrown herself at his head. A shameful remembrance brought a hot humiliation to her cheeks. The way she had kissed him so fiercely . . . She had never kissed a man like that before.

"He doesn't even want to see me again!" she told herself. "He practically asked me to leave him alone!"

DESTROYS LETTER

She would write him a cool, dignified letter and thank him for a pleasant evening—would indicate that she was through with him, and so, in a measure, show that she had independent pride. She lit the light and found pen and paper.

"Dear Mr. Moore," she wrote. "This is to thank you for your kindness in entertaining me at dinner last night. I do not feel that it would be wise for us to take up any of each other's time in the future, as my work and many of my other old friends occupy my interest.

"Sincerely, Mary Kennedy."

She read the letter over and immediately tore it into a dozen pieces. It was too weak, too trashy. Nor was it what she wanted to say at all; how could she tell him that he was the nicest man she ever met? In the depth of her chagrin, she fell asleep like a tired child.

At the office next day she found a refuge in mechanical duties. There were tasks, duties that had to be attended to, and her integrity would not permit her to do slipshod work. Nelson, the manager, said nothing in her praise, but she knew he was satisfied with her. Nelson, of course, was one of Buck's creatures, but Mary expected no special consideration on that score.

JEALOUSY AND INSULT

She was in the inner office with the door closed when from the other room she caught the sound of Nelson in conversation with a woman—a throaty, intense female voice pitched high with excitement. Nelson's voice rose, seemingly in protest against something but he was apparently inundated in a tide of words from the woman. Without knocking, the woman entered Mary's room and closed the door behind her.

Tall, deep-breasted, with a shapely, arrogant carriage, she was a beautiful creamy olive. The dark, passionate face with its heavy mouth belonged to a woman of thirty or more. Her black frock was severe, but there was a touch of bizarre in her large pearl earrings.

Mary said politely: "Did you want to see me?"

The stranger laughed. Her voice was insolent.

There was a theatrical magnificence about the woman, a sullen imperious will that gave Mary a moment's sense of helplessness. She felt dwarfed by the other's power of emotion.

"I am sure I don't know why you want to get a slant at me, but I haven't any objection."

"Fresh, eh?" She leaned against the wall and stared at Mary. "I suppose Buck never told you about me, Carlotta Guido?"

Mary waved her to a chair, sat down herself, but her visitor did not move. Finally she said:

"I think it's the darndest piece of nerve I ever heard of. A poor shrimp of a stenographer! My God!" She threw back her head and laughed with low contempt. "Do you think that I'd let you take Buck Landers away from me?"

There was a confident coarseness about her; an impervious vulgarity that encased her like armor. Mary could feel her heart beginning to beat. She knew that she was meeting jealousy and insult—that she had to be calm, to see it through. This was the woman Landers had mentioned the first time they met—the one who had threatened to stab him.

"What amuses me is that he could fall for this baby-baby stuff. Or did the both of you think I wouldn't hear about it? Say, I was tipped off the next day after he installed you here in the hotel. And now they tell me he's talking about marrying you. What I want to know is—I want to know just how much there is to that story?"

"I'm afraid I must refuse to discuss any of Mr. Lander's affairs with you," Mary said, icy and polite."

The woman lifted her dark head and narrowed her eyes, emitting slow smoke from her wide mouth like a man. Mary was fascinated by something terrible in the hard dark beauty of her face. A heavy perfume radiated from the opulent body.

"You might as well tell me the truth," she said, truculently. "It might save you a lot of trouble. And when I say trouble, I mean it."

IS THREATENED

"I haven't anything whatever to discuss with you. Mr. Landers is out of the city and, as far as I am concerned, you can get any information from him you please." She was trembling terribly on the inside, but was making every effort to conceal it. "I'm sorry, Miss Guido, but I haven't anything more at all to say to you."

The other broke into a brief, suppressed laugh and then checked herself.

"Oh, I don't suppose I should blame a poor little shrimp like you for anything. You've been trying for a big shot, and it's not your fault you're not going to get away with it. The trouble is that Buck Landers belongs to me—not you. No. I haven't got anything to settle with you. It's him. But remember this—I've warned you. If you stand in my way I'll make you wish you'd never been born. Remember that, kid."

Mary started to answer her, but stopped short — what was the use? Against this kind of thing—this kind of life — she had no weapons. All at once she wanted to flee, to get a thousand miles away from everybody she knew. She wanted to go somewhere and get rid of this new anguishing feeling that she was somehow mysteriously soiled.

Charlotta Guido looked at her for a moment longer without a flicker of expression, and then turned and left the room with a slight, graceful sway of her body.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Shortly after her mother's death, Mary Kennedy, young and pretty stenographer, decided to live her own life and avoid the poverty she has always known. She rents a small room and then seeks a position. Mary meets Buck Landers, elderly sports promoter, who proposes to her. She does not love Landers, but his wealth attracts her. Without waiting for Mary's decision, Landers presents her with a diamond ring. He threatens anyone who comes between them. Mary meets Landers' ward, Steve Moore, young college graduate. Steve and Mary are attracted to each other. Landers leaves on a business trip and asks Steve to look after Mary. The two dine and dance and are extremely happy until mention of Mary's engagement spreads a pall over their spirits. Mary tells Steve she does not want to marry Landers.

LOVE COMES BUT ONCE
(Or, The Little Match Girl)

It was the first minute of play in the Big Game and neither team had scored. The impatient crowd, tired of it all, was signaling like mad for hot dogs.

Peverel adjusted his rubber helmet—that old swelling in his head was troubling him again. And now his shoe lace was untied, and someone had just jerked his jersey out of his belt. The other players—his own teammates, mind you — were jeering at him. And one burly fellow had deliberately given him a shove.

In all his 33 years of collegiate football, Peverel had never been so down hearted. And up in the stands, he knew that Lucy was watching him.

And now the coach was signaling for a kick. The players went into a huddle. Then one by one, they came over and kicked their captain on the shins.

Suddenly—

Barr for Commissioner

He Is Needed to Assure an Audit, Honest Elections and a Business Administration.

and County Commissioner Armstrong are reported to have agreed to support State Senator W. D. Mansfield and David L. Lawrence, a Democrat candidate, for county commissionerships in the election next Tuesday.

Their interest in Lawrence will not commend him to independent voters. It seems to confirm the widespread opinion that he is merely a tool of the discredited Republican organization.

The course for voters having the best interests of the county at heart to follow is to vote for C. C. McGovern and former State Senator C. M. Barr. Mansfield seems certain of election anyway.

Barr has been before the public for many years and has a good record. His integrity and independence cannot be challenged, and he is a successful businessman. He is needed on the board to assure an audit, clean elections and a business administration.

Vote Them Out

The Present County Poor Directors Have Forfeited the Right to Another Term.

The Board of Visitors, appointed by Judge Gray to investigate the conduct of J. Clyde Miller, W. L. Henderson and H. H. Dixon, as County Directors of the Poor, submitted yesterday another report that presents the Poor Board in an unfavorable light.

It is asserted that the Poor Directors issued $500,000 of bonds last year, ostensibly for new buildings for the County Home at Woodville, but that the only new building erected was a pig pen. It is further stated that an architect was given a fee of $3,351 for planning the pig pen, and that $80 a thousand was paid for bricks when $16 bricks would have done just as well.

The investigators recommend that "apparent violations of the law" be referred to the District Attorney and that a taxpayer's suit be filed demanding an accounting.

This report, coupled with the previous one in which alleged irregularities in real estate purchases and insurance deals were pointed out, makes it desirable that the accused directors be relieved from office.

They forfeited their right to another term when they arrogantly refused to account for their stewardship. The investigators' findings confirm their unfitness for re-election.

Miller, Henderson and Dixon won the Republican nominations for another term because the opposition to them was scattered among 22 candidates.

The candidacy of Bert A. Llewellyn, K. William Schuchman and Bernard L. Flynn on the Square Deal ticket furnishes another opportunity to vote the accused directors into retirement.

A Smokeless City

As the Mellon Institute's investigation of air pollution in Pittsburgh proceeds it becomes more and more apparent that the soiling of hands and faces, clothing, buildings and furniture by dense smoke from factories and locomotives is by no means the only evil resulting from the smoke nuisance. Nor is dense industrial smoke the only kind that must be combatted.

H. B. Meller, S. G. Hibben and Mary E. Warga told the Illuminating Engineers' Society at their recent silver anniversary convention here that impurities in our air intercept the health giving ultra-violet rays of the sun.

Mr. Meller, who is chief of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation and head of Mellon Institute's air pollution investigation, calls attention to another evil in an article in "Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering"—the damage done by combustion products, such as dust from mills, which are not visible like smoke.

The anti-smoke ordinance only prohibits the emission of dense smoke and does not apply to dwellings or small apartment houses. Mr. Meller says we cannot have a smokeless city until the emission of smoke from residences is also included.

This is well worthy of Council's attention, and while it studies the matter it might also give consideration to the damage done to health and property by invisible impurities in the atmosphere.

Why should not the Bureau of Smoke Regulation be expanded into a Bureau for the Regulation of Air Pollution?

Pittsburgh in History

Benefit Will Come from the Study Now Launched of the Part the City Played in World Affairs.

Dr. Solon J. Buck has begun an ambitious survey of local history, to be financed in part by the Buhl Foundation.

At a meeting of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania Tuesday night he called attention to the purposes of the survey and to the vital part that Pittsburgh has played in world affairs.

Pittsburgh was a focal point in the French and Indian wars. If the British had not taken Fort Duquesne the history of the United States and of the world probably would have been vastly different.

Pittsburgh, Dr. Buck said, was a central point for the industrial revolution of the nineteenth century and thus also influenced world affairs.

There is profit in studying these things. There is cultural value in understanding our background, and practical lessons applicable to the present may be found in the story of the past.

No Bids for City Bonds

Philadelphia recently tried to dispose of $15,000,000 of 4½ per cent bonds, but received no bids. It has now raised the rate to 4¾ per cent and is disposing of them over the counter at the rate of $300,000 a day.

The Philadelphia Record, commenting on the situation yesterday, said "reckless mismanagement and downright squandering of public moneys for purposes illegitimate and worse," together with "payroll padding—the support of hordes of superfluous political jobholders," had drained the city treasury of vast sums and injured its credit.

Pittsburgh offered $570,000 of 3¾ per cent bonds Monday without receiving any bids. Pittsburgh, too, has been afflicted with reckless mismanagement, squandering of public moneys and payroll padding.

We believe that Pittsburgh's credit is still good, but Philadelphia's experience, and Chicago's, hold a warning.

Time to Plan for American Relief

By Claude G. Bowers

The conferences with M. Laval in Washington are over and the result is set forth in an official statement couched in language so vague in places as to suggest Talleyrand's idea that language is given us that we may conceal our thoughts. The outstanding achievement, on which there can be no doubt, is an agreement to maintain the gold standard and the Young Plan. It is more than probable that the Premier carries back to Paris the understanding that President Hoover, in due time, will propose a further scaling down of the debts.

Some good has been accomplished through a frank exchange of views, and to this Senator Borah has made an important contribution. One of the reasons for the confusion of European statesmen and publicists in the interpretation of America is due to their tendency to confuse the views of one class in one section of one city with those of the millions of Americans living from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboards.

The wisest politician I have ever known was a corporation lawyer with no prejudices against Wall street, but I once heard him say: "Whenever I am in doubt about the popular reaction on any measure, I go to New York and talk with the fellows at the tip of the island and in the clubs frequented by the financiers, and when I find what they are saying, I know that the very opposite is what the country is thinking."

It is easy for European statesmen and publicists to get the interpretation of America from the tip of the island of Manhattan. They meet men from this quarter in the European capitals. Thus do they blunder in their interpretation of America. That is the reason that Borah, racy of the soil, rendered a real service in the interview which he gave in courteous response to the request of the French correspondents.

The Only Way to Discover America

If M. Laval was shocked at what he heard from Borah it is because he had heard nothing of the sort before. When the Premier was holding frequent conferences with John Pierpont Morgan in Paris, before announcing his visit to America, he could not have heard the Borah views at all. For Wall Street is the last place in the world to get an accurate interpretation of the average American, just as Borah is the last man in the world to interpret Wall Street to the foreigner. By getting the interpretations of both, M. Laval is the gainer. It is the only way to discover America.

The real achievements of the conference are those in which the big bankers are particularly interested—the maintenance of the gold standard, the preservation of the Young Plan, and probably the promise of the administration further to scale down the debts.

The security pact was dropped because utterly impossible of realization and our own policies are rapidly paving the way toward the cancellation of the debts.

Making It Impossible For Debtors to Pay

We are paving the way to that, because we are making it impossible for our debtors to make the money with which to pay. We are making it impossible through a prohibitive tariff wall which makes it all but impossible for them to trade with us. Senator Cordell Hull has an interesting observation on that phase:

"The debtor nations cannot pay their war debts if we exclude their trade by high tariff walls. A continuation of this policy means just that. These preliminaries are leading in that direction.

"In 1920, when I suggested such an outcome if the tariff rates were raised, Representative Longworth, speaking for the Republican party, said the Republicans would cancel the debts rather than surrender their policy."

That is probably the reason these conferees in Washington, seeking a solution of the differences between the two countries did not mention the tariff, which is one of the outstanding differences that is operating to the disadvantage of both nations.

It is passing strange, otherwise, that the tariff controversy was not on the program for consideration. The only notable demonstrations against America in France were inspired by resentment against our prohibitive tariff wall. The American press carried the story of the great parade of protest in the streets of Lyons. We all know that as a result, the French government has retaliated and struck products of our factories and fields from French markets. We all know that on the desk of Secretary Stimson is the French protest.

Here there certainly is a difference between the nations, and it seems a pity that this was not discussed.

And it seems strange, too, for with the bankers inspiring and dominating these international conferences of the President, it would naturally be supposed that the tariff would not be ignored. They are interested above all in the debtor nations' "capacity to pay," since the money is owing them. They know that the present tariff war destroys their capacity to pay, and have said so.

But that is the one question on which the administration "stands pat." It insists on leaving too bad alone.

Time to Consider Situation at Home

Now that the administration has this conference in the background, it may be possible to persuade it to hold a few conferences on the very serious situation at home, affecting not so much the bankers as the farmers, the unemployed workers, the small merchants and miners. On Sunday, when the statement was being drawn, Americans, listening to the radio talk from Germany, heard this:

"We have no more unemployed in proportion to the population than you have in America."

Only recently Lloyd George, a radio speech that was not permitted to reach us for some mysterious reason, told his English hearers that in proportion to the population more breadwinners are unemployed here than in England.

We hear so much about the misery of Europe—just put a pin in this:

Proportionately we have as many unemployed as Germany; more than England; more than Italy; while comparatively few are unemployed in France. We are really Lady Bountiful in Rags.

Now that M. Laval is gone, perhaps the administration will have the time, if not the inclination, to consider plans for such readjustments here as will make for the rehabilitation of America. It appears to have all sorts of plans for other people, and plans for the big bankers here, but—

Does it plan to scale down the prohibitive tariff walls?

Or plan industrial readjustment making for the stabilization of employment?

Or plan a conference of any sort to bring order out of chaos in the mining industry, now in the state of anarchy?

Or plan for the rehabilitation of American agriculture, now in bankruptcy?

Now that the administration has waved farewell to Laval, will it turn to survey the scene at home and assume some leadership in the solution of the vital problems here?

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Choke-Weed

"If the Eugenie hats, slender waists and long curls are to be followed . . . bustles, ruffles and petticoats," writes "A Masculine Optimist," "let us hope that they will bring back the helpless, lovable, clinging woman so dear to the male heart—and that the modern young Amazons will disappear forever."

* * *

Well, the Amazons seem to be on the way out. But the Clinging Vine is still a long way off. And we are wondering if she would really appeal to the modern man, if she should re-appear.

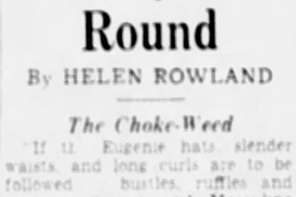
There are times when nothing is so sweet to a man as the sensation of a pair of soft arms around his neck and the clinging dependence of a helpless woman. It is the most exquisite sensation that life holds for a he-man.

* * *

And then again, there are times when a woman's arms are more like tenacles, her body like a barnacle, and her weight like a millstone.

* * *

There are times when a man loves to have a woman sit at his feet and ask him questions that start the flow of his brilliant wit and intellect; but it is NOT when he is changing a tire in the hot sun, shifting gears on a bad grade, shaving with a blunt razor, or figuring out his income tax.



Consoling a timid, clinging woman who is "afraid in the dark" is a delicate adventure. But having her wrap herself around you and scream when the car skids, or when the brakes won't work, shatters a lot of your sweet illusions.

* * *

Helping a pair of cute little feet across the stream, binding up a dainty ankle, or catching a graceful swaying form is diverting—and even carrying 100 pounds of feminine inertia for a few yards has its compensation.

* * *

But when a woman "goes dead" on a man's hands in the middle of a fire, or when the car gets stuck on a railroad crossing somehow, her "helplessness" hasn't the same thrilling appeal.

* * *

Ah, yes! There is all the difference in the world between the "encircling arm" and the strangle-hold.

* * *

* * *

And more men have had their love CHOKED to death than ever had it frozen to death, nagged to death, or even bored to death.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—While the comedy and drama seem to have gone into a tailspin in the legitimate theater this season, the musical revue has spurted into a new and amazing favor. Doubts were expressed for these honeyed extravaganzas due to the flop of talkie versions. Yet—

The three most heavily patronized shows so far have been the Scandals, Vanities and the Follies. While they have been packed to capacity, the other forms of legitimate theater amusements meet only a desultory reception. The inference is the public is in the mood for only light diversions.

Ziegfeld, Carroll and White have gone to lavish lengths to dazzle their customers. Each is said to have spent more than a quarter million in his displays. And not in the history of the Rialto have there been such conspicuously triumphant first nights.

Even the depression put no damper on the sky prices New Yorkers will pay for the sort of show they want to see. Speculators had no trouble whatever in disposing of choice seats for the premieres at $100 each, and in one instance $300 for a pair down front on the aisle.

Handling traffic at such openings is an increasingly difficult police problem. At one it was necessary for mounted police to form their horses into a lane from entrance to curb so the audience could safely depart.

Aside from the "celebrity curious" are the insistent swarms of autograph hunters who surround notables with outstretched albums and pens for signatures. A movie star was so roughly handled upon one occasion she had to return to her car and home to change costume.

* * *

The new 14-storied, $5,000,000 home of the New York Curb Exchange is a striking contrast for those who remember the monkeyish antics of curb brokers in other days. The new home is at Trinity place and Greenwich street, whereas the old was literally the curbs of Broad street. In old days the brokers squatted in office windows and ambidextrously signalled in finger language buying and selling orders to representatives in the streets. It offered a milling spectacle of high tensioned excitement to the stranger.

* * *

My earliest recollections of the Broad street curb was the noon day sermon of "The Bishop of Wall Street," a benign, silver-haired preacher who mounted a soap box among the money changers to remind them there were spiritual values greater than those of Mammon. Oddly, he always attracted large and respectful audiences.

* * *

While the stately Empire Building receives oodles of free puffs in various New York theaters, it is also target for much—and it seems to me cruel—kidding. Emptiness is the theme, yet those who know say that when the pick-up begins it will fill magically as innumerable other buildings have that got off to a bad start.

* * *

A wheeze about the Empire by Willie Howard concerns a despondent gentleman who leaped from the top spire a week ago. "Where did he land?" he was asked. Howard replies: "Nowhere, yet."

* * *

Then there was George Jessel's bright thrust at Jesse Lasky, who in disgressing in a banquet speech suddenly inquired: "Let me see, where am I?" Shrieked Jessel: "In the Hotel Astor. And your name is Lasky!"

* * *

Bread cast on Broadway waters. Six years ago she told him: "You have a wife and I no longer want the label 'Kept.' Loan me enough to start a business of my own." He did. She prospered and paid him in full. The other day she heard he was facing bankruptcy and sent a check that prevented it.

I walked my clown Sealyham to Grand Central today to meet a friend. When the train came thundering in the dog bolted for upper levels like a blue streak and was found huddled and trembling with terror under a newsstand. Sometimes you cannot get the country out of a dog either.

-:- LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

I was a little girl, taking my first lesson in algebra. A confused, cross little girl.

"Let X represent the unknown quantity," said the teacher.

What on earth did she mean? What was this new thing—this "unknown quantity"? Weren't there already enough tiresome known figures to add, subtract, divide and multiply without dragging in this mysterious, and utterly unnecessary "X"? Just another way to make a fellow miserable—

The other youngsters scribbled busily, but I sat sulking at my paper.

"Why don't you take down what I told you?" demanded the teacher. "Don't you understand?"

"No, I don't," I grumbled. "Unknown quantity. What's that mean? I don't see any unknown quantity."

"There's always an unknown quantity," said the teacher.

Long since I have forgotten all the algebra I ever learned but I have never forgotten that answer. With each new, slowly turning page of life, I realize its truth anew.

THERE IS ALWAYS AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY.

Human experience—how cocksure I was at 20 that I could outsmart Fate! How certain that I knew how to add, subtract, multiply and divide the elements of life so that they would result in success and joy. And how soon I was to learn that "the best-laid plans o' mice an' men gae aft agley!"

For you never can tell. The shrewdest plan will crumble and the flimsiest plan succeed. And we think it's because God is picking on us. But of course it isn't. It is simply a matter of Faith. Lacking Faith, our shrewdness goes for naught. Filled with Faith, an idiot or a child can move a mountain. But why and what is Faith—that most unknown quantity. The stuff that dreams are made of? Or Life's fiercest dynamite?

And again, those other unknown quantities—grief and shame and heart-break? I had heard of these things at 20. But I thought—as Youth always thinks—that they were accidents, which a man might take or leave as he chose. And now I saw that they were beyond any man's choice or refusal . . . or understanding. No man could tell when these things might happen to him nor, still stranger, what they would do to him. For shame was often the beginning of the finest pride! And a broken heart was often the most fertile!

Human experience—you never could tell. Human behavior—that was even more mysterious. I had thought that black was black, and white was white . . . that hate and love and beauty and ugliness were as fixed as the multiplication tables. But here, again, was that unknown quantity!

Why was cruelty sometimes kind? And kindness sometimes cruel?

Why was some love more vicious than hate? And some hate more fair and free than love?

And what was the thing that went on in the hearts of all men—the laborer in the ditch, the fool in the gutter, the king on the throne, the criminal in the electric chair . . . this flickering, wistful dream that shone like a candle through all darkness . . . this sharp, untarnished pride that flashed like a blade above the slime—what was it?

THE UNKNOWN QUANTITY. The spark of God in an image made of clay. The hand of God above the troubled water. THE UNKNOWN QUANTITY . . . IT WAS ALWAYS THERE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

These are times when it is unwise to make careless statements concerning banking institutions.

A little idle talk begins it. Some institutions fail because the mass of people are so like sheep that they do not think before they follow a leader.

Because one church member is a wolf in sheep's clothing is no reason for condemning a church which may have thousands of honest and loyal communicants.

The safest thing a depositor can do is to run down every little report that is heard derogatory to his or her bank and when the source is found there should be a severe penalty imposed on the destroyer of confidence in the many stable and reputable banks that operate for the people's convenience.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS SPEEDED IN EAST DISTRICT

NEW CONTRACTS PROVIDE JOBS FOR MANY

Borough, Township Officials Join City in Starting Street and Other Projects

Continuing their efforts to provide additional public improvement employment, authorities in the East Communities district have joined the City of Pittsburgh in taking action on several thousand dollars' worth of street construction.

A contract for supplying concrete for municipal work was let at a meeting of Wilmerding Council last week to F. O. Steelman, of Turtle Creek, on his bid of $3,500.

An additional contract was let for the paving of Water alley, between Miller street and Airbrake avenue, at a cost of $600.

J. E. Holohan, borough secretary, has stated that the new projects will provide two months' work for at least 100 men.

Penn Township Board of Education will open bids November 6 for the construction of a sewage disposal system in the new $70,000 William McKinley School, Verona Hill. Work is expected to be completed within 15 days after the letting of the contract.

City Council has authorized the vacating of a portion of Greenfield avenue, from Second avenue to Irvine street, made necessary by the proposed relocation of that section of the street and the widening of Irvine street.

The Public Service Commission has been asked to approve the temporary abandonment of street railway tracks in Second avenue, 664 feet east of the ramp at Glenwood Bridge. A contract for the removal already has been signed by the Pittsburgh Railways Company, Second Avenue Traction Company, United Traction Company and the city.

NEEDY DIG OWN FREE COAL

Free coal for the needy families is drawing from 80 to 100 workers daily to three mine "entries" on Milligan Hill, Swissvale. Upon application, Swissvale Borough will give needy families a supply of coal from these mines if it is found that their cause is worthy. About 55 tons of coal are being taken out of the mines daily by the workers, they report.

Every precaution is being taken by the borough to protect the inexperienced diggers from accidents. Electric lights have been installed and other safety measures have been taken.

Negley Avenue Man Files Divorce Suit

Sidney L. Stark, of 1138 North Negley avenue, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Margaret K. Stark, of Wilkinsburg, charging desertion. In a habeas corpus action three years ago, Mrs. Stark was awarded custody of their son. The case was appealed to the Superior Court, where she also won.

They were married September 4, 1920, and were separated April 2, 1927.

Soviet 5-Year Plan Explained by Editor

SQUIRREL HILL JOINS IN TAX RATE FIGHT

Petition Seeking Reduction In Rate Before Council; Wilkins Protests Held Up

A specific reduction in the tax rate on real estate has been asked of City Council by the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade, which has joined with several other organizations in requesting a reduction in the city's 1932 tax millage.

In a resolution adopted by the board last week and given Council Monday for action by its finance committee, the board stresses curtailment of unproductive activities and elimination of all unnecessary employes as a means of bringing about the tax reform.

Acting on the assumption that the new Board of County Commissioners will be "in sympathy" with their protests over alleged unequal and unfair tax assessments, hundreds of taxpayers of Wilkins Township who have signed petitions asking for a survey of the township's tax situation will hold their petition until after January 1.

This decision was made known by Andrew A. McKeever, tax collector, and one of the backers of the protest movement.

The petitions, which have been circulated for the past several weeks, declare that the small property owner is carrying the tax burden of the township.

COAL DIGGERS HALTED

Complaints by coal mine owners and farmers have resulted in the abandonment, for the time being, of "free" coal digging in Mifflin Township. Digging has been ordered discontinued on a farm just north of Bettis Field, on the Homestead-Duquesne boulevard.

Twenty residents of the Homestead district alleged to have been found digging coal in the open fields after warning had been issued, arraigned Monday night before Justice of the Peace John R. Engel, of Homestead, were discharged.

Police Chief Crawford, of Mifflin Township, has reported that he has received many complaints from farmers, who say that large holes are left open by the coal diggers in the vicinity and that they endanger their cattle.

It was also pointed out by Chief Crawford that children use the fields as short cuts to and from school and that there is the added danger that they may fall into the holes, some of which are 20 feet deep.

Dr. Cain Made Head Of Homestead Clinic

Dr. John W. Cain, Amity street, Homestead, has been appointed head of the Tuberculosis Clinic in Homestead by the State Department of Health.

The clinic, which is free, is on the second floor of the Dixon Building, Eighth avenue and Ann street. Munhall and West Homestead share the maintenance cost of the clinic with Homestead.

GAY HALLOWEEN CELEBRATIONS ARRANGED

Many Communities to Hold Street Parades, Parties; Homewood Fete Tomorrow

Elaborate plans for Hallowe'en celebrations have been made by various social and civic organizations in the East Communities district.

Under the auspices of Company No. 2, East McKeesport Volunteer Fire Department, a parade will feature the borough's celebration tonight. The parade will disband at the engine house, where a masked ball will be held, with games and a buffet lunch included on the program.

A street parade also will feature the annual Halloween celebration of the Homewood-Brushton district tomorrow night, forming at 7:30 p. m. Two bands will head the marchers. They are those of the Homewood Post, No. 251, American Legion, and the Westinghouse High School.

SORORITY PARTY

Members of the Beta Alpha Tau Sorority will hold a party tomorrow night at the home of Helen Perlut, 5710 Hobart street. Rose Lewis is chairman of the social committee, with Lilyan Perilman and Elsie Suchman as her aides.

Braddock will open its Halloween celebration tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock with a street parade in which the North Braddock and Braddock High School bands and the Duquesne Drum and Bugle Corps will march.

Following the parade, a benefit football game will be played between Erie High and Scott High. Street dancing will follow the game, in Eighth street, between Talbot avenue and Washington street.

Jerome Katz will supervise the parade, and judges will be Burgess James H. Rose and Justices of the Peace House and Parlak.

William Caughey, superintendent of public works, will head the safety committee; Councilman Jacob Mendelblatt, dance committee, assisted by Charles Carr and Mose Balsamo; Borough Secretary Joseph R. Shermer, prizes, assisted by Ben Sachs and William F. Babcock.

Parking will be prohibited on Braddock avenue from Thirteenth street to the West Braddock bridge, on Talbot avenue below Seventh street, and on Sixth street from Braddock avenue to Talbot avenue.

WILKINSBURG FETE

J. E. McCullough is general chairman of the Wilkinsburg celebration tomorrow night, sponsored by the Wilkinsburg Business Men's Association. A parade will feature the borough's observance.

The parade will march along Rebecca street to Wood street, Penn avenue, Coal street, Ross avenue, Swissvale and will return to Penn avenue, to Hay street, and disband at Ross avenue and Wood street.

The Student Government Association of the Pennsylvania College for Women has completed arrangements for the annual Halloween party to be held tomorrow night. Committee chairmen include Miss Betty Nies, decorations; Miss Jane Mitchell, refreshments; Miss Marjorie Larimer, invitations, and Miss Ruth Ludebuehl, novel entertainment.

LIBERTY AVENUE TRAFFIC PERIL PROTESTED

Board of Trade to Carry Fight to City Council Against 'Faulty' System

The Bloomfield Board of Trade will carry its complaint against the present lighting system on Liberty avenue to City Council, it has been announced, and will point out to Council the dangerous traffic conditions existing on parts of Liberty and Millvale avenues.

Board members have termed the lighting arrangement on the street as "ineffecient and faulty." They point out that lights are "staggered," causing dark spots and shadows.

President Larkin has indicated that Council will be asked to provide a lighting system similar to that in use on principal streets in Squirrel Hill.

To install a new system in Liberty avenue, from Millvale avenue to Center avenue, and from Herron avenue to Main street; on Main street from Penn avenue to Liberty avenue, and on Fortieth street, from Penn avenue to Liberty avenue, would cost $8,209, an increase of $3,711 over the cost of the present system, according to a survey made by the board.

PAPER BALLOTS IN M'KEESPORT

McKeesport voters will use the old familiar ballots in the general election November 3, as a result of action by the County Commissioners. Likewise, there will be an absence of voting machines in the Second Ward, of Clairton, and the Fifth and Eighth wards, of Pittsburgh.

The Commissioners have decided that the machines will be used in all districts of Duquesne.

Announcement already has been made of the Commissioners' decision to exclude machines in the 33 districts of McKeesport, six districts of Clairton, 19 districts of the Fifth Ward, and 13 districts of the Eighth Ward, Pittsburgh, following the announcement that more than nine parties are contending for honors.

CHILD PLAYERS IN REHEARSAL

Members of the Children's Theater of the Y. M. and W. H. A. have begun rehearsals for their initial production of the season, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," under the direction of Mrs. Jerome Katz.

Members of the theater group write, stage and act their productions. They meet twice a week. In the first division are children between the ages of 6 and 10. The second division consists of children between 10 and 14.

The Co-operative Playhouse is the older group of the association members. Their production "Processional" will be presented November 15 and 16.

Delta Zeta Alumnae Hold Founder's Day

Members of the Pittsburgh Alumnae Chapter of the Delta Zeta Fraternity held their founder's day banquet Saturday at the University Club. Speakers were Mrs. Mary Sanner Karcher and Miss Mabel De Forest.

Speakers at World Peace Rally Denounce War

World peace was the subject of a mass meeting Monday night in Memorial Hall, Oakland. The meeting was one of 150 being held this week in the principal cities of the country in the interest of peace.

Speakers included the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University; William T. Stone, Washington representative of the Foreign Policy Association; Bishop William F. McDowell, of Washington, and Attorney Robert L. Vann, editor of the Pittsburgh Courier. They discussed methods of bringing about a lasting world peace.

Peace is the most deeply founded inclination in man's heart, in the opinion of Dr. Callahan, who declared that "war is a disease and it should be diagnosed the same as a physical disease."

Speaking on "How Can Another World War Be Averted?" Bishop McDowell said that the mass of the people themselves make the will for peace. He declared:

"It is a delusion to think that we ourselves have nothing practical to do with world peace except to talk it to death, and and finally it is a delusion that war is inevitable."

Stone said that disarmament is the most immediate and most critical of all needs for world peace, and Attorney Vann averred that the present scheme of the world was attuned to the power of money instead of the value of money.

The local sponsors were headed by Dr. Thomas S. Baker and Dr. John G. Bowman. Judge Frank P. Patterson presided. Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter said the invocation and the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann pronounced the benediction.

MIZPAH CIRCLE TO GIVE PLAY

Plans are nearing completion for the presentation of "Daddy Long Legs" by the Mizpah Circle of the Homestead Park Methodist Church, November 20, in Carnegie Library. The committees who are making the arrangements for the production are:

General, Hazel Jack, Martha Sharp, Marion Richards; publicity, Ada Anderson, Anna Cadman and Nellie Shissler; music, Jane Vance; stage managers, Edward West and John Johnson; tickets, Jane Lloyd; candy, Cora Percival, Ethel Hartman, Emma McCullough and Margaret Dixon; children, Viola Anderson, Margaret Parkinson and Eva Berrett, and program, Sarah Ammerman, Sarah Wilson and Emma McCullough.

Pitt Deans to Meet Parents of Students

Chancellor John G. Bowman, Robert C. Clothier, dean of men; Miss Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women, and the deans of the undergraduate schools at the University of Pittsburgh, will meet the parents of students at a reception November 20 in Memorial Hall.

Following an address by Dr. Bowman, secretaries will distribute the marks of the first eight weeks' work.

Malta Commanders Meet in Wilkinsburg

The Knights of Malta Past Commanders' Association opened its fall season Tuesday night with a meeting in the Malta Temple, South avenue and Coal street, Wilkinsburg.

Norval R. Daugherty, state commander of the Odd Fellows, was the principal speaker. John G. Miles, president of the association, presided.

Homestead Names Yearbook Staff

NURSE TO SAIL FOR INDIA

Miss Irma Emily Schlater, formerly of Altoona, will sail November 13 for India where she will be stationed in the Brindaban Hospital as a member of the Methodist Board of Missions. Miss Schlater visited her sister, Mrs. Eugene Kuhns, of Pitcairn, before leaving for New York to embark.

This is Miss Schlater's first missionary assignment outside of the United States. She has been preparing for the work during the past year, culminating her career as a trained nurse.

111th Vets to Hold Three-day Reunion

The 111th Infantry Veterans' Association will hold its thirteenth annual reunion November 8 to 11, with headquarters in the Gen. Albert J. Logan Armory, Thackeray street. George Z. Murray is reunion chairman.

ROONEYS, OLYMPICS MEET SUNDAY IN SANDLOT GAME

LOCAL ELEVENS TO BATTLE IN TUBE CITY

Conference Leaders Eager to Strengthen Position at Expense of McKeesporters

East End followers of the Western Pennsylvania Independent Football Conference will have the treat of the season at McKeesport on Sunday when the J. F. Rooneys, undefeated champions of the Big Six, clash with the Olympics for the second time this season.

With both teams priming for the battle which is expected to draw the largest crowd in the history of the independent sport in the Tube City, fans are promised a battle of giants.

Manager Art Rooney of the North Siders naturally is keen to win this game and finish the season without a defeat because should the big Green machine again triumph over the Black and White it is hardly possible that any club in the Conference will be able to stop the collegiate outfit that Jimmy Rooney is directing.

Bill Bowes feels that the season will be a success should his club stop the Rooneys. At the first meeting at Bridgeville it was Jimmy Rooney's education that turned the tide of victory to the North Side.

The kicking duel between Jimmy Rooney and Rudy Halpate will be worth going a long way to see.

The Rooneys are standing pat but there is a rumor that the Olympics will have a new fullback for the game.

Stulginski and English will be missed by the Olympics and Hooks Carroll, one of the best ball carriers in the conference is wearing a red leg[illegible] spirit he had a

HANDBALL TEAM IN ACTION

At the opening of their handball season Sunday the Pittsburgh Y. M. & W. H. A. team divided the single games, but was defeated in all three doubles by the Baltimore Y. M. H. A. at the Bellefield avenue courts.

The scores were: Nelson, Baltimore, defeated Rosenfeld 21-9, 21-16; Oblum, Pittsburgh, defeated Lipnick 21-11, 21-12; Bratman, Baltimore, defeated Gladstone 21-13, 15-21, 21-6; Wolf, Pittsburgh, defeated Blum 21-16, 14-21, 21-4; Altmer, Pittsburgh, defeated Rosenfeld, 21-9, 19-21, 21-10, and Trivas, Baltimore, defeated Fierst 21-16, 8-21, 21-18.

In the doubles, Nelson and Blum, Baltimore, defeated Alman and Altmer 20-21, 21-13, 21-18; Lipnick and Rosenfeld, Baltimore, defeated Oblum and Alpern 13-21, 21-14, 21-4; Trivas and Bratman, Baltimore, defeated Fierst and Lapidus 21-17, 21-13.

George Nelson, of the Baltimore team is former national singles champion and has been runner-up for the national championship for the past three years.

Swissvale Sketch Club to Give Play

The Swissvale Sketch Club will present "Stop Thief" in the Dixon School November 2, 3 and 4 for the benefit of the Relief Association of Swissvale. W. Parry is general chairman in charge of tickets, and Mrs. C. D. Smith is vice chairman.

"Harvest Home," which is the annual collection of food and clothing for residents of the Ladies' G. A. R. Home at Hawkins Station is being held today, with Mrs. Frances Kuhn, president of the board of directors, presiding.

MILITARY BALL AFTER GAME

Pittsburgh Chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association will hold its anual dinner and military ball in Webster Hall, November 14, on the evening of the Pitt-Army game.

Guests of the chapter will include Col. Kemper Williams, New Orleans, president of the national organization; Maj. Gen. John B. Gulick, chief of the Coast Artillery, and Col. Thomas M. Anderson, chief of staff, 99th Division.

Capt. William Maish is general chairman, assisted by Maj. C. B. Shaffer, Maj. John H. Shenkel, Col. Leo DePew, Capt. J. Sandels Morrow, and Lieut. Vincent C. Neeson.

CHURCH PRAYS FOR NEEDY

Eight hundred men, forming one of the largest processions in the history of the church, marched in formation in St. Brendan's Roman Catholic Church, Braddock, Sunday night, as part of the observance of Eucharist Day.

The Rev. William A. Bey, of St. Coleman's, Turtle Creek, preached.

Woman's Club Hears Homewood 'Y' Head

The work of the Homewood-Brushton Y. M. C. A. was explained by James H. Dale, secretary, before the Homewood Woman's Club Musical in the Homewood Carnegie Library. Dale was presented by Mrs. E. S. McClelland, meeting director.

SCHOOL TEAM TO GET TROPHY

One of the six high schools that go to make up Section 1 of the City High School Football League will be the winner of a silver football trophy, which has been donated by the Regent and Schenley theaters.

Manager John Phelps of the Regent has arranged for the teams to see a series of six one-reel action pictures in which Howard Jones, coach of Southern California, explains some of the more tricky plays and formations.

Plans are being made to take moving pictures of the game between Peabody and Schenley High School November 13 at Schenley Field.

Schools to Get Washington Portraits

Portraits of George Washington are to be presented to East District schools by the Bi-centennial Commission at Washington, D. C. The portraits are being given to schools in the Thirty-second Congressional District.

BOOTERS AWAIT CUP BATTLES

Now that East End fans have had a full schedule of league soccer, the first-round games of the West Penn Senior Cup, carded for Saturday, will be welcomed, for, while league games are interesting, it is the cup tie eliminations for the local and national championships that provide the thrill.

However, the luck of the draw in the first-round games gives the fans little to become enthused over, not one outstanding game being listed Saturday.

The Castle Shannon Morrys will be back in Lawrenceville meeting the Rovers, but, since the Keystone Leaguers handed the Rovers a nifty lacing last Saturday, it is hardly possible that a reversal of form will be witnessed.

The German Sport Club will entertain the Duquesne Republican Club and since little is known of the makeup of the Duquesne club, the Germans should enter the second round of play.

Westinghouse, probably feeling cocky after swamping the Germans, will meet Union Switch and this is going to be a tough assignment for the Valley aggregation. Union Switch compares with any club in the district.

Some of the Celtic players are former Curry boys and that should add a little color to the game. Kirsopp and Ashton, the Green and White fullbacks, probably will have a tough time protecting that goal for 90 minutes on Sunday.

There is a movement on foot to transfer the Duquesne-Sport Club game to Duquesne on Sunday. From a box office standpoint it might be a good move on the part of the German club.

Braddock Sophs to Give Masquerade

November 6 is the date set for the sophomore masquerade party of Braddock High School, to be held in the school gymnasium under the chairmanship of Esther Cossman.

Pitcairn Residents To Organize P.-T. A.

Residents of Pitcairn will organize a Parent-Teacher Association, November 5, at a meeting in the high school. The committee arranging the meeting includes Ray Maund, chairman; Mrs. Myrtle Reese, Mrs. Gladys Toothman, Mrs. Gordon Plubell, C. F. Applegate, S. J. Yothers and S. S. Boyd.

Wilmerding Y. W. Discusses Democracy

Mina Williams was general chairman of the discussion Tuesday of "Democracy" by the Supper Club of Wilmerding Y. W. C. A. Next week's entertainment will be arranged by Mary Hengst, Helen Foley and Lois Kurtz.

BIG SUNFLOWER WINS FAME

John C. Schirm, 816 Brushton avenue, recently produced a sunflower 13 feet tall. Its picture and a story was published in the Sun-Telegraph. Last week an envelope was received at the postoffice with the following directions written on it:

The letter was from J. D. Bush, of Fennville, Mich., and asked for a stalk of the giant flower.

Legion Auxiliary Installs Officers

Officers have been installed in the Ladies' Auxiliary, George Westinghouse Post, American Legion, Wilmerding. The ceremonies were held Friday in the home of the post, Marguerite avenue. Mrs. C. F. Minck, instructor at the California State Teachers' College, presided.

The officers are Mrs. Margaret Greene, president; Mrs. Ellen Clements and Mrs. Edith Dunn, vice presidents; Mrs. Kathleen Clements, secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth Ferree, treasurer; Mrs. Christina Puesley, chaplain; Mrs. Margaret Undercoffer, historian, and Mrs. Elva Brush, sergeant-at-arms.

Y. M.-W. H. A. Floor Team to Open Season

The Y. M. & W. H. A. basketball team will meet the Jeannette Felders in their opening game November 12, according to tentative plans announced by Arthur Scher. The team will play the Altoona club November 19.

Some of the other teams included on the "Y's" schedule this year are Akron Firestones, Akron Goodyears and the House of David, according to Manager Harry Savage.

Peter Minuit Buying Manhattan Island

Peter Minuit, sent over by the Dutch West India Company, reached New Netherland in 1626. Knowing that on account of its location, Manhattan Island would be of great value, he bought it from the Indians — with trinkets, hatchets ad knives valued at about $24.00.
